Taxing Area For Fire Aid Wins Support

Representatives from unincorporated neighborhoods outside San Rafael agreed last night to recommend creation of a single taxing area to finance improved fire protection.

Their recommendation will be made tonight to the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission which has been asked to give its blessing to formation of either one or two new fire taxing areas.

The commission meeting is slated for 7:30 p.m. at Civic Center. Commission approval is required if the matter is to go before area voters in November.

Last night's meeting was called by Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere to decide how improved fire protection should be financed.

With one exception, Roumiguiere said, the representatives agreed on a consolidated taxing area to finance a new fire station at the top of Puerto Suello Hill. It would have two fire trucks and three men on duty at all times.

Areas which would be covered by the new fire station are California Park, Bret Harte, Bayside Acres, Country Club, Knockaboul, Rafael Meadows and Santa Venetia.

The tax rate would be about 65 cents per $100 assessed valuation, which is 24 cents higher than the structural fire tax imposed by the county. The county provides little in the way of structural fire protection.

Under the agreed upon proposal, the owner of a $50,000 home would pay about $25.60 more per year in taxes if approved by voters.

Roumiguiere added, however, an improved fire rating might cut the owner's fire insurance.

He said representatives from the Country Club subdivision declined to join the others until checking with their association. He said they expressed interest in a higher level of protection.

The consolidated taxing area was selected from a list of seven options, each with a different tax rate and a different level of protection.

Three of the seven called for two taxing areas, one for unincorporated neighborhoods north of Puerto Suello Hill and one for south of the hill.

Under those three, the area south of the hill would contact with the City of San Rafael while the area north of the hill would finance an expanded county fire department.

The next three options called for one taxing area to finance an expanded county fire department at various tax rates, ranging from 65 cents to $1.04.

The last called for a single taxing area to contract with the City of San Rafael at a tax rate of $1.20.

The rates do not include improvements to water lines. Roumiguiere said such improvements could be financed by individual neighborhoods through special assessment districts.

Dismissal Is Asked In Reinecke's Trial

Transcripts Faulty, According to Witness

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government prosecutors were taken by surprise today in California Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke's perjury trial when a stenographer testified that changes had been made in a Senate hearing transcript forming the basis for charges against Reinecke.

Benjamin H. Firshein, who recorded the testimony during a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing, said the transcript submitted to the court did not contain corrections he made in it.

Firshein testified as a government witness but assistant special prosecutor Richard Davis was clearly taken aback by the disclosure. He said he thought corrections had been made in the transcript introduced in evidence.

Reinecke's lawyer immediately called for dismissal of the case against Reinecke. Judge Barrington Parker did not immediately rule on the motion. Instead Parker ordered the jury out of the room and sharply criticized the government lawyers for their failure to have caught the mistake.

It was not immediately clear what the changes were but Firshein's testimony indicated they were in the part of the hearing transcript that the government had cited in accusing him of lying to the committee.

Former presidential assistant Clark MacGregor testified earlier that he urged Reinecke to tell the truth in the Senate testimony that led to his trial.

MacGregor said he talked with Reinecke in 1973 about "differences in recollection" between the lieutenant governor and former Attorney General John Mitchell over the date of a meeting where they discussed an offer by ITT to help finance the 1972 Republican convention.

MacGregor —who left the White House to become head of President Nixon's re-election campaign in mid-1972 —said he probably had expressed "some concern" over differences between Reinecke's and Mitchell's statements.

But he said he told Reinecke "that all he could do was to tell the truth and to be responsive to the question."

MacGregor said he met with Reinecke shortly before the state official testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Watergate prosecutor's office charged Reinecke lied when he testified he did not tell Mitchell about the ITT offer until September, 1971 —two months after settlement of a federal antitrust suit against ITT.

In previous testimony, Sen. John B. Tunney, D-Calif., and Lee Fremstad, a reporter for the Sacramento Bee, said Reinecke had told them he informed Mitchell of the ITT offer in May 1971 —prior to the antitrust settlement.

Reinecke's lawyer, while conceding his client gave some erroneous information to the committee, says Reinecke's problems may stem from being straightforward to a fault.

Turkey Ready To Invade Cyprus

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Turkey sent an armored division to its southern coast today to join troops massed for a possible invasion of Cyprus 50 miles away and world leaders increased pressure on Greece to end the coup before Greece and Turkey go to war over the issue.

Turkish Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit and Defense Minister Hasan Esat Isik flew urgently to London for crucial talks while Turkish newspapers spoke openly of imminent invasion. Deposed Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios also flew to London for talks with British leaders.

The British government pledged that it stands firmly by its guarantee for the independence of Cyprus and urged the restoration to power of President Makarios.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson gave the pledge in an hour long conference with Makarios, who flew here earlier today en route to New York to plead the Cyprus case personally before the special session of the U.N. Security Council. He and other Allies including the United States have brought pressure on Greece to end the coup.

A spokesman said Wilson assured Makarios that Britain stands firmly by the terms of a 1960 treaty "which guarantees with Greece and Turkey the independence and integrity of the embattled island."

Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit summoned Parliament to approve a possible attack on Cyprus and then flew to London with Defense Minister Hasan East Isik, who is also acting foreign minister.

Turkey, Greece and Britain are co-guarantors of the freedom and independence of Cyprus but Turkey says Greece defaulted by permitting Greek officers to lead the Cypriot national guard in the revolt against Makarios. Turkey has threatened to act alone if Brit-

Sausalito Council To Finance Dig At Indian Burial Ground

Over the protests of several archeologists, the Sausalito City Council last night voted to fund an archeological dig at the site of a Miwok Indian burial ground in the city. (Another Sausalito City Council story, page 11.)

On a 3-1 decision, Violeta Autumn opposed, the council said it would pay $2,500 to David Boloyan, a graduate student at the University of California at Davis, to excavate the site at Caledonia and Pine streets.

The work is pending a final decision by city attorney Leland H. Jordan on whether excavation by the city would violate a state moratorium on disturbing Indian burial grounds abandoned less than 200 years.

That question was raised in a letter from Dr. Michael J. Moratto, director of archeological research at San Francisco State University.

Moratto cited burial and mission records from San Rafael that indicate the area was used as a cemetery by the Indians until the 1830s. He said there would be no violation of the law, which he helped draft, if the property owner paid for the excavation.

He argued that if archeology is to be required by the city, then the property owner should finance any excavation. His letter did not make clear why it would be legal for the developer to fund the dig and not the city.

Moratto said the city funding a dig would be "an irresponsible, precedent setting move . . ." and promised "a personal interest in this matter to insure appropriate legal and archeological agencies are kept informed of the city's actions . . ."

Also urging preservation of the site was archeologist Stephen Wilson of Mill Valley, Archeological Research and Consulting Services, saying he represented the Bay Area Archeological Cooperative and the Miwok Archeological Preserve of Marin, among other organizations.

Wilson told the Independent-Journal that excavation of the burial grounds would be against the desires of native American organizations.

He urged the city to allow the property owners to go ahead with plans to pave the area for a parking lot. This would seal off the ground and protect it, Wilson said.

Councilmen said they wanted the excavation begun to avoid delaying the property owners in their plans for a parking area on the vacant lot and to avoid the continuing risk that the site will be vandalized by artifact hunters.

The empty lot at 107 and 108 Pine Street has been the object of controversy since mid-June when two off-duty firemen dug up two Indian skeletons and other artifacts.

Dizzy Dean, 64, Cardinal Pitching Great, Succumbs

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Dizzy Dean, one of baseball's greatest pitchers when he played with the "Gas House Gang" during the 1930s, later a radio and television announcer famed for his unique brand of fractured English, died today at 64.

He had suffered a massive heart attack Sunday evening while dining with his wife, Pat, shortly after being released from a hospital where he was admitted after complaining of chest pains.

Mrs. Dean was at his side in St. Mary's Hospital when he died at 1:35 a.m. Also present were his brother Paul, and Paul Dean's two children.

The son of a cotton-picker whose family moved about the South in the early 1920s, young Dean developed a strong arm by throwing dirt clods at prairie dogs.

Amiable although incredibly vain, he was the soul of the 1934 St. Louis Cardinals, popularly known as the Gas House Gang.

He swaggered sitting down, once dangled a teammate out of a 12th-story hotel window and liked to invade formal parties dressed in house painter's overalls.

Brighter Economic Picture Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Commerce Department is expected to report tomorrow that the economy, as measured by the Gross National Product, pulled out of recession in the second quarter because of increased productivity and easing food and oil prices.

"The raw figures suggest that the economy will flatten," said Dr. Sidney Jones, White House deputy assistant and former assistant commerce secretary for economic affairs.

House Steps Up Marincello Deal

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Purchase of the Marincello property on the Marin Headlands as a key portion of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area appears likely this fiscal year, according to Rep. John L. Burton, D-6th District.

Burton reported that a House subcommittee yesterday added $5 million more to the budget for buying additional lands in the ultimately 34,000-acre recreation area in Marin and San Francisco counties. The administration budget had included only $10 million for GGNRA. Burton said he and his brother, Rep. Philip Burton, D-5th District, won approval of the additional $5 million from the House appropriations subcommittee chaired by Rep. Julia Butler Hansen, D-Wash. The addition is binding on the administration and cannot be impounded because of recent court findings, John Burton's office reported.

The subcommittee also instructed the Nixon Administration to spend $150,000 for an experimental bus program to carry visitors to and from, and inside, the GGNRA.

The National Park Service already has spent $16.1 million to buy land within the recreation area; the new allocation will enable purchase of most of the remaining private land needed, according to Philip Burton, who was an author of the bill creating the area.

Under terms of the option for purchasing the 2,087-acre Marincello property, the federal government must pay $700-a-day interest on the property if purchase isn't completed by Dec. 1. Cost of the land is expected to be $6,436,000. The allocation also will permit the $2 million purchase of the Witter ranch in the Southern Marin highlands (which the federal government moved yesterday to condemn, filing suit in U.S. District Court in San Francisco) and the Cliff House and Sutro Baths in San Francisco for the recreation area.

The House subcommittee also approved a $2,687,100 operating budget for the recreation area.

Developer's Absence Result Of Mix-Up

The Corte Madera Town Council last night learned why a developer failed to appear to plead his own case at Monday's public hearing. (Another Corte Madera council story, page 7.)

Chagrined town manager Ronald E. Bartels told the council that a representative of the developer, Cal-West Communities of Palo Alto, had phoned him yesterday morning to say that legal notice of the Monday meeting had only just arrived.

Bartels told the council that due to a clerical error the notice — usually mailed about two weeks in advance of a meeting — did not leave his office until Friday.

Councilmen expressed doubt that the presence of the developer, Cal-West Communities, would result in a reversal of Monday's unanimous vote against permitting the proposed 528-unit Madera del Presidio project.

(A permit for the project was first approved in January, 1972. It was rescinded this June 10 by a planning commission decision — which the developer then appealed to the city council.

(Cal-West also has submitted a 326-unit proposal for the same site, which is still under consideration.)

The council agreed with Mayor Robert J. Flahive that it was obligated to the developer to "hear him out," and voted to schedule another public hearing for August 5 at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

Telephone Talks Continue Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and unions representing about 750,000 workers negotiated today for a new contract to replace one expiring at midnight.

Even in absence of an agreement by midnight, there was little chance of an immediate strike throughout the Bell System since two of the major unions —the Communications Workers of America and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers —have not taken a strike vote.

A tight news blackout was placed on the negotiations but lack of a strike vote was believed to indicate the two sides had not reached an impasse.

Accept Pay Package

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Presidents of American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees union locals voted "reluctantly" today to accept a new wage package and call an end to a strike of state employees at Ohio penal institutions, mental health facilities and liquor stores.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Sinatra Ends Australian Tour

SYDNEY (UPI) — Frank Sinatra left Australia today after a sellout four-concert tour that brought him $540,000 and a series of stormy battles with unions and journalists.

Sinatra

The singer joked to his audience yesterday that President Nixon was delighted with his scrap with Australian newsmen.

"I understand it's taken Watergate off the front pages in the United States," Sinatra said.

The 58-year-old singer touched off the fireworks at his first concert in Melbourne July 10 when he referred to the press as "bums" and "parasites" and labeled women journalists "buck and a half hookers."

Outraged unionists cut off all services to Sinatra. But later a compromise was worked out and Sinatra was allowed to continue his concert tour.

El Cordobes Jailed

CORDOBA, Spain (UPI) — Manuel Benitez, the fiery "El Cordobes" of Spain's bull rings, is back in jail following the latest of his many run-ins with police.

Authorities said the retired matador was being held for allegedly insulting a policeman during a heated argument over a traffic ticket.

Police said the 38-year-old matador, who fought his way from rags to riches, was being held while a judge considers testimony on last Sunday's traffic argumnt.

An unorthodox matador whose technique was despised by purists, El Cordobes retired from the ring three years ago. Repeated rumors of his return have never materialized.

Bomb Arrest

BELFAST (UPI) — Police today charged an 18-year-old apprentice with an overnight pub bomb explosion that killed one man and seriously injured three others.

Officers said William Kernaghan, a Protestant, was arrested after he was found in a car, identified as the getaway vehicle, that crashed about a mile from the explosion in the dock area.

Kernaghan denied the charges.

The blast last night killed Thomas Braniff, a 25-year-old Roman Catholic with a wife and two children. His elder brother James, 36, had his foot blown off in the explosion, but survived.

Computer Error

NEW YORK (UPI) — Embarrassed city officials have admitted that a computer erroneously spewed out $7.5 million in unauthorized checks in the past three months to welfare clients who have been dropped from the rolls.

The problem has been corrected and authorities are now trying to get the money back — but some of it has probably been lost for good.

Acting Human Resources Administrator Howard S. Stein said the computer issued the checks in April, May, and June because of a programming error.

Checks were issued to about 21,000 former welfare clients, many of whom had either died or moved from the city.

Cancer Scare

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A search has begun for an estimated 6,500 local women who may be susceptible to cancer because their mothers took the drug diethylstilbestrol (DES).

Dr. Charles Mangan, an assistant professor at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, said yesterday the drug was administered to pregnant mothers between 1949 and 1970 to prevent miscarriage and bleeding.

He said physicians in Boston made the first discoveries of dangerous side effects of the synthetic female hormone in 1970, including several cases of vaginal cancer.

The use of DES declined in the late 1950s, Mangan said, because a more effective drug was developed. He said the drug can be used safely when there is no pregnancy involved.

Strip Mine Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican House leaders say they can support strip mining legislation as long as it strikes "a judicious balance" between expanding the coal industry and protecting the environment.

The main committee bill, which has come under attack by Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton and Federal Energy Administrator John C. Sawhill, would require most strip-mined lands to be restored to their "approximate original contour."

Legislator Beaten

SWEDESBORO, N.J. (UPI) — More than a dozen migrant workers swinging sticks and baseball bats chased and attacked a New Jersey legislator touring a labor camp near Swedesboro yesterday and broke his arm, the lawmaker said.

The assailants, who were said to be angry because they felt they were being harassed, also assaulted two other persons on the tour.

No one was critically hurt.

Democratic Assemblyman Byron Baer of Bergen, N.J., who has sponsored legislation designed to help an estimated 12,000 migrant workers in the state, suffered a broken left arm before he escaped in a car.

'Pill' For Dogs

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Drug manufacturers are testing a one-time birth control pill for female dogs which will give lifetime protection, the director of the National Humane Society said yesterday. But he said the government is afraid if the pill gets on the market people might take it.

Frank McMahon of Washington estimated the product might be five years away from marketing because the federal Food and Drug Administration is reluctant to license it. He said the FDA fears humans might take the pills.

Hussein Criticized

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Palestinian guerrillas issued a stinging attack in Cairo against King Hussein today, marring the start of talks aimed at reconciling bitter differences between the Jordanian monarch and the commandos.

Falastin Al Thawra, the official newspaper of the Palestine Liberation Organization, accused Hussein of "collusion with imperialism and the Zionist enemy."

The newspaper called on Arab nations to force Hussein to abandon plans to form a federation with the occupied West Bank if Israel abandons the region. The guerrilla group demanded recognition by Hussein as "the sole representative of the Palestinian people."

Commission Finds Judge Unqualified

OAKLAND (UPI) — The state Commission on Judicial Qualifications has recommended the removal from office of San Leandro-Hayward Municipal Court Judge William D. Spruance.

The commission said in its report to the California Supreme Court that the 48-year-old Spruance was guilty of political "cronyism" and exceeding his jurisdiction on matters not directly before his court.

The commission, made up of five judges, two lawyers and two private citizens, found 10 instances of misconduct.

These included violating rules of the court, circumventing legal procedures, tampering with other judges' calendars, blocking the interrogation of a suspect, appointing lawyers who were campaign supporters to represent a disproportionate number of indigent defendants, deriding the testimony of a witness and making an obscene gesture in open court.

The judge, elected in 1970, has 30 days in which to petition the high court to reject the recommendation. In the meantime he is disqualified from the bench but will continue to receive his salary.

Spruance was the fourth judge against whom the commission voted in the panel's history.

Four months ago the commission conducted hearings on Spruance. There were 65 witnesses.

Raid Charges Are Dropped

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Charges against three White Panthers arrested during a police raid on their communal headquarters have been dropped.

Charges of assaulting a police officer, being accessories to a crime and possession of destructive devices were dropped yesterday against David Kraft, 23, John Judson, 24, and Terence Lane, 23, the district attorney's office said.

Police who were fired upon Friday sought a burglary suspect. A fire started in the house during the raid.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Television talk show host Merv Griffin, 49, hospitalized six days ago with mild pneumonia blamed on exhaustion, plans to go home today and start work again on Monday.

Bill To Aid Consumers Hits A Snag

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation to create a new agency to go to bat for the consumer is meeting heavy opposition, partly over its possible use in labor disputes.

But backers of the bill are pleased by an initial test vote yesterday which they said showed the measure would clear the Senate —as it already has the House —if it survives what may be two weeks of filibuster and parliamentary delay by its opponents.

The bill would create a federal agency with a staff of about 250 to present the consumer viewpoint when other government agencies are making decisions involving health, safety, prices and other issues.

For example, it could tell the government's regulatory bodies that a proposed airline fare increase was contrary to the interests of consumers, that a new drug had not been sufficiently checked to go on the market or that advertisers of products were misleading the public. If turned down by regulatory agencies, it could seek judicial review of its arguments. It would not, however, have any direct powers of decision-making or enforcement.

Opponents, which include the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers, claim it would be a busybody, would cause delay and would be a Ralph Nader in government clothing.

Yesterday's test vote — on a motion to table the whole bill — showed 66 votes to keep the measure alive and 25 who wanted to drop it.

Concern On OEO Chief's Removal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-N.Y., chairman of a House subcommittee on equal opportunity, is considering whether to investigate the White House firing of Alvin J. Arnett as director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Arnett's dismissal as head of the antipoverty agency and President Nixon's nomination of Bert A. Gallegos, OEO general counsel, as his successor were announced yesterday.

The White House acknowledged that Arnett's dismissal was connected with his fight to keep OEO programs alive in the face of Nixon's intent to abolish the agency and not provide any funds for a major antipoverty program, Community Action. It provides federal grants to public and private state and local agencies to carry out a variety of antipoverty projects.

Arnett told UPI he had no "hangup on preserving OEO as an agency," but he readily admitted to lobbying governors and mayors for support in continuing programs such as Community Action in another federal agency.

Arnett takes credit for a major role in a lopsided 331-53 House vote on May 29 to create an autonomous division within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to carry on the Community Action program.

The administration is opposed to the House bill on grounds it should give the secretary of HEW control of running Community Action.

ALVIN J. ARNETT
Championed programs

Hawkins said giving HEW that kind of control would result in a "token type program."

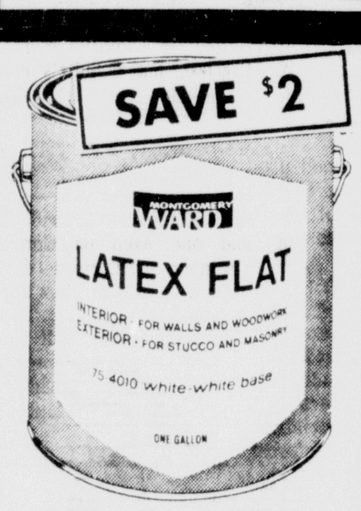

Hawkins also told UPI that the Arnett firing has prompted members of the Senate Labor and Welfare Committee to move quickly on the House-passed measure or one of its own.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., senior Republican on the Senate panel, has introduced a bill that goes even further than the House, by creating another independent agency to carry out Community Action. Hawkins said he hoped to convince the Senate to accept the House version and avoid a certain veto of the Javits bill.

SINKING — Corte del Bayo in the Greenbrae Marina presents this ordinary street scene to the casual passerby, but five of the 13 houses are sinking slowly into unstable bay mud, a series of lawsuits in Marin Superior Court claims. Residents complain of cracks in walls, floors and walks, severed utility lines and doors and windows that won't open.

IN GREENBRAE MARINA

Homes Moving, But Not Mobile

By GEORGE NEVIN

When neighbors in the Greenbrae Marina greet each other, they don't ask: "How are you?"

Instead, the question often is: "How's your house?"

And all too often, the answer comes back: "It's still moving."

Like so many glaciers, 34 homes in the marina and on the Greenbrae hills above it are on the move; inch by inch, they creep, and as they do they buckle, twist, and break. At least, that's what their owners say in 23 lawsuits filed against various companies controlled by developer Neils Schultz Jr.

On Riviera Circle in the marina, lined with 47 expensive houses, 16 are sinking into the bay mud, the suits claim.

On nearby Corte del Bayo, the percentage is even higher: five of 13 houses.

In all, lawsuits filed in Marin Superior Court (some of them now dropped due to compromises), put the number of settling houses in the waterfront subdivision at 24 out of 71.

Another 10 are on nearby hillsides.

In most cases, following long-standing legal prctice, the suits name everybody who possibly could share the blame: engineers, designers, contractors and neighbors. Seven of the suits hold the Schultz-owned companies solely responsible.

The legal actions paint a grim portrait: the marina homes are not only sinking into the mud, they are doing so unevenly.

In scientific terms, the homes are undergoing "differential subsidance." In layman's terms, parts of a house's foundations may have sunk four inches while a nearby section may have gone down 18 inches.

This has led to cracking floors, foundations, walls and walks; doors and windows that won't open; severed electrical lines and water and sewage pipes, and other ills that have left many of the houses "unfit for use," according to the suits.

The suits say the marina homes are sinking because they were built on seven feet of unstable bay mud which was improperly filled and graded.

But despite the legal blitz, marina homes still are being built and sold. A newly completed house has just been put on the market for $89,950.

Up on the hills, the problems are different, though in some cases the symptoms are similar. Due to improper engineering and poor site selection, houses have been hit or undermined by slides, resulting in more cracks, shifting and buckling, plus some flooding, according to the lawsuits.

To date, seven suits involving 18 waterfront and hill homes have been settled out of court.

Schultz and various other defendants — Dames and Moore soils engineers, Hageman and Eklung building designers and Ghilotti Brothers contractors — have paid the homeowners in excess of $300,000.

Precise figures are unavailable because many of the homeowners won't say how much they got.

Legally, the fact that Schultz and the others have paid to settle the suits does not mean anyone is admitting guilt or liability.

In fact, several of them say they did nothing wrong but agreed to the settlement merely to avoid further legal expenses and hassles.

"It gets to a point where it's dumb to stand by your principles because it's going to cost you," said Edward Hageman Jr.

Only in one case was the blame fixed legally. Following a trial without a jury before Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick, several Schultz-owned companies, Ghilotti Brothers and a neighbor were held responsible for a slide and assessed $18,745.

Still pending are another 16 suits seeking $2.3 million in damages. All but four of the houses are in the Greenbrae Marina.

Most of the 16 suits still pending are moving slowly through the legal preliminaries, far from either trial or settlement.

But trial on one marina suit — on behalf of Carlton and Margaret Dethlefsen, of 230 Riviera Circle — is set to begin Aug. 14 before Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire.

The Dethlefsens are one of 11 families and a real estate company which joined together in a suit. The other plaintiffs have settled for a total of more than $200,000, but Schultz's companies say they can't pay the Dethlefsen's $33,000 claim.

Five other suits have been consolidated and are due to go to trial Sept. 10. They involve three homes on Riviera Circle and one each on Corte del Coronado and Corte del Bayo.

As a result of the lawsuits against Schultz and his companies, Schultz himself has filed suit against two insurance firms, Firemen's Fund and Transamerica.

The companies insured him against losses like the ones he is suffering because of the lawsuits, Schultz's suit alleges, but they have refused to pay any more of his claims.

Schultz has asked a court order to force the insurance companies to pay the claims and attorney fees.

CRACKING — Unstable land in the Greenbrae Marina has spawned a series of lawsuits by homeowners, who say numerous cracks, like this one in a seawall behind 45 Corte del Bayo, have made some houses unfit for use. In 16 suits yet to be settled, the residents are asking $2.3 million in damages.

Judge Dismisses Election Charge

A charge of violating the state election code by distributing unsigned flyers in last September's Corte Madera recall election has been dismissed against a Corte Madera woman.

Judge David R. Baty of Marin Municipal Court dropped the charge Monday against Regina Brown, noting she has not repeated the offense.

Mrs. Brown was charged with the misdemeanor after the recall election, which centered on a much-debated regional shopping center plan.

The flyers, which opposed the recall, were unsigned, a violation of state law.

House Passes Cattle Loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has passed legislation to provide $2 billion in loan guaranties to cattle ranchers, squeezed between lower prices for their animals and higher costs of marketing.

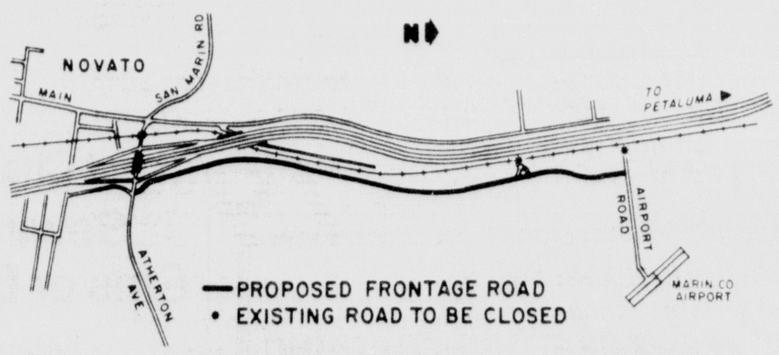

Opponents of the measure called it a "great beefdoggle."

The bill would guarantee 80 per cent of loans up to $250,000 per borrower compared to a Senate-passed bill to guarantee 90 per cent of loans up to $350,000 per borrower. Differences in the two bills will have to be reconciled in a conference committee.

Historic Papers Starred In Race

By VINCENT EDWARDS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Few people who look at the Declaration of Independence in Washington's National Archives Exhibition Hall these days realize that the closely guarded historical document was neglectd and almost totally ignored by the nation's earliest citizens.

In fact, for years after the 56 signers affixed their signatures, the official paper lay unnoticed in government archives. It took a feud between two publishers to bring it to public notice.

In 1810, a clerk in the federal offices at Washington had what he thought was a brilliant idea. He believed that if a decorative copy of the Declaration of Independence could be reproduced with all the original signatures shown, this facsimile would have strong appeal and sell readily to the American public.

The clerk discussed his idea with an engraver, and some rough sketches were made. The engraver, in turn, carried the idea to John Binns, a Philadelphia publisher. Binns was interested, and six years later — in 1816 — he advertised that he would bring out a handsome facsimile of the document. Nevertheless, despite all the publicity, he let the project lapse.

A year later, however, Binns was rushing to complete his undertaking. It seems that a rival, Benjamin Owen Tyler, a professional penman and teacher of writing in New York, had a similar idea.

And Tyler evidently knew how to make the most of a good thing. In 1817, he had gone to Washington, hoping to find something that would show off his amazing pen-writing skill. When he saw the original manuscript of the Declaration of Independence, he knew he had found it.

Acting promptly, he obtained permission to copy the document, including the autographs of all the signers. His first copy was made the exact size of the original. Later, he made a larger copy, setting off the most striking passages with special embellishments, so that, while not a facsimile, it was an excellent specimen of penmanship and ornamental lettering.

The appearance of this copy made quite a sensation. Tyler must have been a good publicity agent, too, for when he showed his handiwork to Richard Bush, acting Secretary of State, the latter was so impressed that he not only certified the accuracy of the duplication, but he went out of his way to praise the penman's amazing reproduction of the signatures.

When Tyler's copy of the Declaration of Independence was engraved and put on the market in 1818, it fanned into flame a merry rivalry.

Finding that he had been beaten to the profits by the New Yorker, John Binns could only hustle about in order to offer his own copy of the Declaration of Independence to the buying public. When his copy was ready for sale in 1819, purchasers discovered that it was more ornate than Tyler's.

Tyler had been content to furnish decorated text and facsimile signatures, but Binns enveloped the Declaration in an elaborate chain of seals of the 13 original states, with portraits of Washington, Hancock, and Jefferson crowning the top. The seals had been skillfully done by Thomas Sully, and the portraits were copied from paintings by Stuart, Otis, and Copley.

The surprising interest that Americans showed in the original document convinced Secretary of State Adams that an official facsimile should be made of the Declaration. This was done in 1823.

To this day, no other facsimile has been made from the original Declaration. The copper plate of the 1823 engraving is one of the most prized possessions of the State Department. It is from this plate that all copies of the Declaration of Independence now are made.

DEAN

unsuccessfully sought to be governor of Mississippi.

A 6-foot, 4-inch, 200-pound righthander, Dean joined the Cardinals in 1932, and began his own legend with the announcement that the only pitcher in the world even close to him in ability was his younger brother, Paul.

Sportswriters promptly tabbed the brothers "Dizzy and Daffy," although the younger Dean turned out to be modest enough.

In the spring of 1934, Dizzy announced that "Me and Paul" would win 45 games between them that season and that the Cardinals would win the National League pennant.

They bettered the boast, winning 49 games between them to pitch the Cardinals to the pennant and then beating the Detroit Tigers twice each in the World Series.

Dizzy finished the year with a 30-7 record, a 2.65 earned run average and 195 strikeouts in 50 games and 312 innings.

Only one major league pitcher —Denny McLain of the Detroit Tigers in 1968 has won 30 games since.

Paul, a sidearm pitcher who may have been faster than Dizzy, won 19 games again in 1935 but developed a sore arm that soon ended his career.

Dizzy's turn came all too suddenly when, in the 1937 AllStar game, he was struck on the right toe by a line drive off the bat of Earl Averill of the Cleveland Indians.

The toe was broken, but Dizzy insisted on pitching within a few weeks. He unconsciously changed his pitching motion, developed a sore arm and finally was hit by bursitis.

Ex-Airman Sentenced To Honor Farm

An Air Force veteran, who began taking drugs while in the service and then went on a theft spree in May to pay for heroin, pleaded guilty today to two counts of grand theft.

David Lee McMillin, 20, was ordered transferred to the Marin Honor Farm, and will enter the College of Marin next month.

Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best spent 30 minutes grappling with the problem of where to put McMillin, who said he didn't want to enter a residential drug program.

Finally the judge decided on the honor farm, but told McMillin to return to court July 31 to discuss whether to release him to some other residence while he attends school.

McMillin admitted taking money from Amber Griffin Books in Novato and the Positively Fourth Street Saloon in San Rafael.

Banks Want 50% Down Payments

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Three of Hartford's largest banks are now charging record interest on home mortgage money and requiring prospective buyers to be able to pay 50 per cent down on homes.

The Society for Savings this week established new mortgage rules requiring 50 per cent down at an interest rate of 9.75 per cent annually. Further, the bank will offer mortgages only to regular customers.

The bank had been writing mortgages at 9 per cent interest with 50 per cent down and 9.5 per cent with 25 per cent down.

CYPRUS

ain does not join it in intervening in Turkey.

With the anti-Makarios insurgents apparently in virtual control of Cyprus Greece's 14 Allies in NATO called on the Greek officers who led the coup to leave the island and permit Makarios to return. There were appeals from the United States, Britain and other Allies to Greece and Turkey to use moderation.

The Soviet Union issued a stern warning to Greece and said "the Soviet people resolutely denounced the armed putsch" against Makarios. A number of Soviet warships were reported in the vicinity of Cyprus and at least seven U.S. 6th Fleet ships including the carrier Forrestal were in the area. However, Washington said the 6th Fleet had not been placed on an alert.

The British Defense Ministry said it diverted the 28,500-ton British troop carrier Hermes with a 900-man commando unit to the eastern Mediterranean today because of the Cyprus situation. The ship had been expected to dock at Malta today.

The Cypriot representative to the United Nations Security Council asked the Council yesterday to demand a cease-fire in Cyprus and let the 2,000-man U.N. peace-keeping force there enforce it. No action was taken. Britain and the United States were reported to believe the situation too fluid; the Soviet Union took a stiffer stand and called the coup a threat to world peace.

Greece maintained that the coup on Cyprus was an internal affair of Cyprus and that the colonels ruling Greece had nothing to do with the uprising. Turkey and Makarios put the blame squarely on the Athens government and today U.S. Ambassador Henry J. Tasca told Greek Foreign Minister Constantine Kypraios the United States opposed any violation of Cyprus' sovereignty.

Cyprus' new Greek-sponsored regime today broadcast "sincere feelings of friendship" for Turkish Cypriots and reopened the island republic for eight hours.

SLA Witness Back In Jail

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Cynthia Garvey, 23, who had known one of the six Symbionese Liberation Army members who died in a Los Angeles gunfight, returned to jail yesterday for refusing to answer grand jury questions about the Patricia Hearst case.

Miss Garvey was jailed on contempt charges but was released pending an appeal. U.S. District Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli rejected the appeal, and Miss Garvey turned herself in to federal authorities.

London Tower Bomb Injures 36 Persons

LONDON (UPI) — A bomb, possibly planted by IRA terrorists, exploded in the 900-year-old Tower of London today, hurling broken glass and masonry into crowds of children and their parents jamming the city's most popular tourist sight.

At least 36 persons — more than half of them children — were injured in the explosion, several of them in critical condition with crushed arms and legs. Detectives sifting through the debris found the severed foot of a small child.

Police said most of the injured were German and Danish.

The explosion sent hundreds of American and other foreign tourists fleeing from the moated stone fortress. A few were crying but there was no panic.

The bomb, the second to explode without warning in London today, might have been the work of the Irish Republican Army, police said, but there was no proof. Police said the bombings had some of the hallmarks of other IRA attacks that have killed 12 persons and wounded 115 others in England since December.

A Mrs. Harris of Sydney, Australia, near to the explosion in the Tower but who emerged unscathed, said: "There were wounded all over the place — it looked like a scene out of hell."

At least half of the tourists stumbling for the exit were children. Many were school groups being shepherded by teachers.

"Move on, Move on," police shouted. "There might be another bomb."

The first blast today damaged a government office building in the suburb of Balham before dawn, but caused no casualties.

The Tower, guarded by the colorful pike-carrying Beefeaters, daily draws thousands of foreigners to see the royal family's ceremonial jewelry and its collection of armor and firearms.

The famed Tower served as prison for hundreds of enemies of British royalty, including Sir Walter Raleigh. Many famous prisoners were murdered or executed at the Tower, including two young princes, nephews of Richard III, and two of Henry VIII's wives, Anne Boleyn and Catherine Howard.

Senators Want To Take Pay Cut As Example

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three Republican senators suggested today that members of Congress take a 10 per cent pay cut to demonstrate the serious nature of the nation's economy.

Sens. Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska, James A. McClure of Idaho, and Clifford Hansen of Wyoming, said in a statement:

"Members of Congress should lead the way in demonstrating the seriousness of the situation by taking a 10 per cent cut in their own salaries until the budget is balanced."

Members of Congress get $42,500 a year. A 10 per cent cut would be $4,250.

The senators also proposed a $10 billion cut in the budget; an interest exclusion from taxable income on new savings of $100 per person to encourage savings, and legislation to grant tax incentives to persons not covered by other retirement plans to save for their retirement.

In an effort to combat "a very serious crisis", Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, has urged President Nixon to emphatically tell Congress he will veto any spending bill that exceeds White House budget requests.

Energy Official Asks Strike End

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Federal Energy Administration's regional director is urging an immediate resumption of service by the strike-bound Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District's buses.

William C. Arntz, the director, said yesterday that bus drivers should return to work even before a settlement is reached in their 17-day walkout.

"The issue isn't only the inconvenience to the public ... but the disastrous waste of fuel," Arntz continued.

He pointed out that thousands of automobiles, which could be idle, are now carrying commuters.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Where Does Privacy End?

Norm Nature bought a small farm far away from the city.

He wanted to find privacy and to get away from the maddening crowd. Norm and his wife grew their own food and by making a few handicrafts earned a living. However, in addition, he was growing some marijuana.

A deputy sheriff flying the county airplane spotted the patch of marijuana in neat rows between the other plants, surrounded by a forest of trees. The sheriff sent a small posse to Norm's farm. They went on Norm's property to confirm what they saw, without a search warrant. They went into the cultivated area. They checked the plants, and arrested Norm.

Norm claimed a violation of his right to privacy and that the entry to his land was an illegal search.

Norm lost and was sent to jail. It is permissable to look onto private property from an airplane. True, everyone has a right to be free from trespass and to have privacy. But "privacy doesn't mean sanctity."

A policeman can look onto your property from the street, from a cooperating neighbor or from a common hallway. True the police have no right to invade some privacy where there is a reasonable expectation of privacy, such as peeking into a closed toilet booth, or putting a microphone on top of a closed phone booth.

The law may even protect you from people spying into your home from airplanes flying overhead. But not when a person has contraband growing in an open field. A property owner cannot claim a reasonable expectation of privacy.

The law recognizes that a person is entitled to some sanctuary in which he has freedom to escape the intrusions of society. A person who builds a fence around his yard can expect privacy, say, to sunbathe free from observation by helicopter pilots. If there are improper activities being conducted these must be discovered in some other way to justify an intrusion.

Several cases have involved one's garbage. When it is in a can on one's property, it may not yet be abandoned property. There are many reasons why residents would not want their castaway clothing, letters, medicine or other telltale refuse examined by persons trespassing on the premises. That would be protected from police search.

When that garbage is tossed into a refuse truck, the rule may be different.

St. Louis To Burn Garbage For Power

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Virtually all St. Louis area trash will be burned to generate electricity by mid-1977 under plans announced by Union Electric Co.

A $70 million plant will burn solid waste, eliminate the need for landfills and generate about 6 per cent of its power from the burning.

Drivers Strike Airport Buses

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Some 50 drivers for the San Francisco airport bus service struck yesterday to back contract demands.

Officials of Teamsters Union Local 265 said the drivers were demanding a $6 raise to $50 a day this year with $5 raises each in the next two years.

A representative of Airporter, a Yellow Cab Co. subsidiary, said the drivers were offered an immediate hike of $3.60 a day and either $2.80 a day or up to seven per cent in cost-of-living adjustments — whichever is greater—the next two years.

A federal mediator was called into the dispute.

Efforts Fail To Keep Man Alive

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Marvin Booker was dead today after surviving his first visit from the coroner.

When a rescue team was unable to revive Booker after a heart attack yesterday, the ambulance crew put a white sheet over his face and called the coroner.

The coroner, hearing a gasp from under the sheet, called the ambulance back and rushed Booker to the hospital. But he died there a few hours later.

Novato Protests Money Split Of State Park Bond Issue

A protest on the Marin County plan for distribution of money from the recently passed state park bond issue was made last night by the Novato City Council which at the same time authorized the city staff to negotiate the best deal possible for Novato.

City Mgr. Phillip J. Brown reported that the original plan was to divide the money 50-50 between the county and incorporated cities, although the cities have the biggest share of the population.

He said the new county plan is to include special districts and take their share out of the cities' half of the money.

A suggestion that the county stick to the 50 per cent for the cities, or allocate by population was voted down and the staff was instructed to make the best possible deal with the cooperation of the other cities in the county.

The Novato City Council Also:

CHAMBER — Authorized payment of $2,900 as the city's quarterly contribution to the chamber of commerce.

FAIR — Approved a $1,500 license for the Renaissance Pleasure Faire for six weeks starting Aug. 24.

CODES — Set Aug. 13 for a hearing on applying the California Vehicle Codes to the streets in Hamilton Air Force Base so that Novato police can enforce them. In the past the Air Police have patrolled them, but the Navy now has the housing portion of the base.

PUBLIC WORKS — Approved plans and specifications for a $56,000 storm drainage project on Hill and Diablo Avenues; a $6,000 street improvement on Fifth Street between Grant and Vallejo avenues and $124,000 for traffic control lighting at Rowland and South Novato boulevards.

ANNEXATION — Received a petition from five residents who did not want to be included in the Center Road annexation at Gregor Lane, and told the residents that the annexation has been enacted, is legal and cannot be reversed.

BUSINESS — Adopted a resolution stating that the city of Novato and its staff will help business and industry to locate in the city.

POOL — Received without comment a recommendation by Lester S. Russell, director of parks and recreation, that the city not use the pool on the O'Hair property as a public pool.

ZONING — Passed an amendment to the zoning ordinance that requires the council approval of precise development plans.

HANNA — Passed an ordinance approving the master plan for planned commercial for the Hanna Ranch on Rowland Boulevard east of Highway 101 bypass.

ADJOURNED to 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato Community House.

Proposed Novato Law Criticized

A proposed growth control ordinance for Novato was presented last night to the city council and planning commission and was sharply criticized by a majority of both.

The staff was instructed to rewrite the ordinance and come back with something different.

Planning Commission chairman Robert Glascock termed the proposed ordinance the creature of bureaucracy, adding "You may be good planners, but you'd starve as builders."

Commissioner Lewis J. Frederickson said the proposed ordinance would take up too much staff time and require hiring "a batch of engineers."

The proposed ordinance would set up a complicated system for evaluating a project on 31 points.

Each project would be given from zero to 9 points on such things as: dwelling capacity of the land, effect of the total planning area and the Novato general plan, nearness to bus lines, water, sewage, storm drainage, streets, schools, police and fire protection, historical and archeological features, geological features, aircraft flight accidents and many others.

The work of evaluating the projects would be done by an area planning commission selected by both the city and county.

Each year the council and supervisors would have to approve an evaluation handbook setting the standards and the number of units to be approved that year. The point system would determine which projects get final approval.

Planning Director Brian W. Mattson admitted that he had not shown the plan to the county staff for an opinion, although they would take part in any area planning.

City Atty. Clark M. Palmer said that he did not think Judge Lloyd H. Burke (who ruled against the City of Petaluma) would approve the plan but that the supreme court probably would hold it legal.

Councilman Fred F. Ruegg said that the administration of it was too complicated and that the staff should keep it simple.

Councilman David Milano expressed concern on the amount of staff time to evaluate each project through all the items and the impact of the ordinance on the small developer.

No date was set for the staff to come back with a revised version of the ordinance.

Chamber Head Calls For Spending Curb

DENVER (UPI) — Arch N. Booth, president of the National Chamber of Commerce, says a solution to the nation's inflationary problems is to curb government spending.

"Congress must control spending so they no longer resort to deficit spending. They must spend only the amount of money equal to what they take in taxes," he said yesterday.

A REAL FRIEND TO ANIMALS

Carroll Soo Hoo, who may be San Francisco Zoo's best friend, sprays a cool stream of water on the zoo's polar bears. Soo Hoo knows all the animals by their first names and well he should since he bought many of them for the zoo. He bought his first animal in 1958 after hearing a little girl ask: "Mama, where are the zebras?" There were none, so he put up $1,000 for a zebra. Since then he has given the zoo Cape hunting dogs, kudus, gnus, cheetahs, Siberian tigers and on down the animal kingdom list. (UPI Telephoto)

McNear's Park Visitors Learn Expensive Lesson

It was a hot day at McNear's Beach Park on Sunday. But 11 Marin families didn't begin sizzling until they returned to their cars at the day's end.

Their cars, parked on unposted San Pedro Road in San Rafael between Cantera Way and San Marino Court, had been towed away without warning on orders of the city police department.

Result: towing bills as high as $30.

A city police spokesman said yesterday that so many sunbathers flock to the county park on summer weekends that the facility's parking lot quickly becomes filled, as do unposted shoulders along Cantera Way.

With no place to park, residents turn to stretches of unposted roadway along San Pedro Road. More often than not, their cars are towed away if left on paved portions of the roadway.

San Rafael police Sgt. Kenneth Homen said the 11 cars towed Sunday compared with 20 cars towed away on the Fourth of July weekend.

He said that San Pedro Road will be posted as a no-parking zone this weekend by the city public works department.

A Bad Day All Around

Clumsiness and a slow getaway car proved the undoing of a burglary suspect who was arrested yesterday by Larkspur police.

Leonard Joseph Raymond, 37, of 215 Drake Avenue, Marin City, was booked into Marin County Jail and held in lieu of $5,000 to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Police gave this account of the arrest:

Marven W. Stroh, 1075 South Eliseo Drive, got home about 1 p.m., yesterday and heard someone inside. As he opened the door, a man bolted onto the patio, tripped over several pieces of furniture and fled in a 1963 automobile.

Several neighbors heard the commotion when the burglar tripped and gave police a full description.

A short time later police saw Raymond driving the 1963 car onto Highway 101 southbound at the Lucky Drive interchange and began chasing him. He stayed in front of police in heavy traffic on the Corte Madera flats but his car lost power going up Alto Hill and he was stopped by police.

Cocaine Ring Charges Filed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Phyllis Bradley, 29, daughter of Mayor Tom Bradley, was charged yesterday with being part of a cocaine selling ring.

The sheriff's department brought a felony charge of "conspiracy to furnish cocaine" against Miss Bradley, and related charges against three other persons. Miss Bradley is still facing charges of assaulting a police officer from an incident June 27, when she allegedly had to be manacled hand and foot after kicking and clawing officers who chased her auto when she sped away from a traffic violation. She was convicted in 1967 of stealing clothes from a car and in 1972 of marijuana possession.

Passengers Get Return Assurance

OAKLAND (UPI) — Trans International Airlines said yesterday it has assured its passengers who were caught overseas by a strike that they will be flown home by other firms.

The charter airline, which operates 10 jets, was struck Monday in a labor contract dispute by the Teamsters Union which represents its cockpit crew members, stewards and stewardesses.

GOT THE ROBBER

Denver grocery store owner Julian Marquez, 80, shows a sawed-off pool cue he used to stop an armed robber in his store Sunday. Marquez, who looks young for his age, said he's in his second childhood. The robber fell to the floor after being maced. Marquez used the pool cue to knock a knife from the robber's hand. Police said the robber was about 40 years old. (UPI Telephoto)

Sewer Expansion Set By Council

Despite its previously stated intent to postpone any capital outlays for the Corte Madera Sanitary District until later in the year, town councilmen agreed to go ahead with what the public works director called "high priority items."

Councilmen, who also serve as district directors, also approved $11,500 in additions to the proposed capital improvements allocation, raising it to a total $131,100. (Another Corte Madera council story, page 1.)

The impact on the district tax rate, presently estimated at 45 cents per $100 assessed valuation is not predictable, because the council has not decided whether to fund improvements by raising fines or by levying special service charges.

Councilmen learned last night that they need not resort to a sewer service charge — previously estimated at $20 per family — to fund proposed extensive sewer replacement.

The council was informed, in a letter from Deputy Town Atty. John W. Rosenberg, that Corte Madera Sanitary District is not bound by the tax rate ceiling imposed by state law on most agencies.

The district is bound only by the act which created it, Rosenberg said, and that sets the maximum tax rate at one dollar per $100 assessed valuation. The district's rate for this year had been thought by the council to be limited to 45 cents.

Each increase of $4,300 in tax funded spending for the sanitary district would result in a one cent rise in the tax rate.

Authorized last night were: $10,000 for a pump control to prevent sewer backup in the Mohawk Avenue area, $5,000 to replace an emergency generator at Sea Wolf station, and $2,000 to replace a compressor at Lucky Drive Station.

The additions bring the total proposed sanitary district budget to $345,968, up from $336,370 last year.

The council also approved a net reduction of $3,952 in expenses for the town department of public works.

The changes were: reduction of $6,732 in salaries by switching from full-time to part-time janitorial service, addition of $780 in salaries for Sunday morning park cleanup, and addition of $2,000 in operational supplies for algae killing treatments for the lagoon bounded by Birch Avenue and Lakeside Drive.

The net approved reduction brings the Corte Madera general fund budget to $1,435,575, an increase of $277 from last year. The general fund tax rate remains unchanged at $1.37 per $100 assessed valuation.

The council adjourned its budget hearings until tonight at 7:30 p.m. in city hall, when it will consider the recreation budget and perhaps miscellaneous expenditures. Allocation of revenue sharing funds will be considered tomorrow night.

Videotape Show On Cable TV

A 30-minute videotape featuring interviews of town councilmen will be aired at 8 p.m. tomorrow for cable television subscribers on channel 3.

The city-sponsored program also includes clips of tiny tots, Little League and local events, according to parks and recreation commissioner Irma Kay.

The program will be followed at 8:30 p.m. by Marin Video Magazine, a cable program featuring topics ranging from acupuncture to photography.

Elimination Of Many Oil Sumps

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Department of Conservation said yesterday that more than 3,300 oil sumps have been eliminated or screened since 1971 in a state effort to protect waterfowl and other wildlife.

The department said sumps that are considered hazardous to wildlife are reported to the Division of Oil and Gas by fish and game officials. The sump owner is then given 30 days to take corrective measures.

The division began its campaign in October 1971 when aerial surveys showed 3,750 oil sumps, most in the Bakersfield area, posed a threat to wildlife.

Chinese Leaders Sick

HONG KONG (UPI) — At least six members of the 26-member Political Bureau of the Chinese Communist Party are ill, in the hospital or otherwise unable to perform normal duties, according to Peking-based diplomatic sources.

Bunker Not In First Fall Show

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The "meathead" and the "dingbat" carried the load on the first episode this season of the "All in the Family" television series. Archie Bunker's chair was empty.

Carroll O'Connor, who plays the irrascible middlebrow, is involved in a dispute with the series producers, Tandem Productions, which he charges owes him $64,000 in back wages. Tandem said the first episode of the fall season was taped last night.

O'Connor wasn't there, so a script was used in which he does not appear. Other such scripts are ready, said the show's creator, executive producer Norman Lear, indicating that if O'Connor does not return to the family within three weeks, he will be permanently written out of the show.

College Board To Adopt Budget

Marin Community College District trustees will adopt a publication budget for 1974-75 when they meet today at 7:30 p.m. in Room 101 of the College of Marin Science Center.

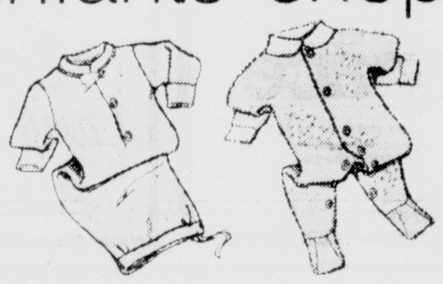

Last month trustees approved a tentative budget of $30,698,128, an increase of more than $6 million over this year's record spending.

VICE PRESIDENT FORD
Urges Nixon to abide

Ford Views Court Ruling Possibilities

By DONALD ALMBRO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford predicts that if President Nixon defies a Supreme Court order in the Watergate tapes case, it will "shift the odds materially" in favor of Nixon's impeachment in the House.

Ford, in an interview with UPI yesterday, said he has personally urged Nixon to abide by a Supreme Court decision if the high court orders him to turn over the tapes and documents being sought by Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Ford said that should Nixon choose to defy the court's decision, "I think it would have a very adverse effect. It would shift the odds materially."

"I have urged him to abide by any court decision on the tapes," he said.

Right now, Ford said, he figures the odds against the House voting for impeachment of Nixon are "4-3, 5-4, something in that area."

He conceded there is a likelihood the House Judiciary Committee will vote articles of impeachment, but he stressed that the committee "ideologically doesn't fit the composition of the House as a whole. No decision out of that committee will determine what the House will do."

Ford said he does not think the House will vote for impeachment "primarily because I don't think there's sufficient evidence under the definition of impeachable offenses as defined in the Constitution.

"I do not think the evidence has been presented" to impeach, he said. "I don't think there will be a majority vote."

The vice president stressed he does not think defiance of a Supreme Court order to turn over the tapes would "necessarily" constitute an impeachable offense.

"It would go from a question of evidence to an institutional confrontation," Ford said.

Ford rejected a charge made by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., a member of the Watergate committee, who said Sunday that a high-level cover-up of White House involvement in Watergate is still continuing.

"I respectfully disagree there is any presidential effort at cover-up," Ford said. "The President has given more information to Congress ... than any other President in history. I know of no cover-up."

Strauss Expects Impeachment Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic National Chairman Robert N. Strauss says he will be surprised if the House does not vote to impeach President Nixon.

Strauss told a group of reporters yesterday that evidence against Nixon released by the House Judiciary Committee is "devastating and overwhelming." He said it "preponderates so much against the President I would be shocked" if the Judiciary Committee did not recommend impeachment and "very much surprised" if the House did not vote to impeach.

Candidates To Be Grilled Before Public

The Fairfax Town Council, continuing the task of sifting through applications for the post of city administrator, last night said top contenders will be interviewed in open session.

The panel set 10 a.m. Saturday in the Fairfax Women's Club to interview five candidates for the job, according to Mayor Frank J. Egger.

The five candidates to be interviewed Saturday are among a list of nine favorites the council has screened from 112 applications. The other four candidates will be interviewed in open session at a later date.

The council will turn to a list of 14 other top candidates if it is unable to choose one of the nine favorites.

Egger said that although the interviews will be conducted in open session, residents will not be allowed to quiz candidates.

Helicopter Downed By Bad Engine

I-J Special Report

EMERYVILLE — A helicopter with 10 Marin County passengers among the 20 persons aboard, made a forced landing without incident here yesterday morning.

The big twin-jet helicopter's pilot, Joseph Northrup, said a trouble light indicated a malfunction in one engine just after he took off from the East Bay heliport in Emeryville. He landed the craft on a wide frontage road near the Holiday Inn. SFO Helicopter Airlines, owner of the craft took the passengers to San Francisco International Airport by taxi.

The landing was at 9:15 a.m., according to the airline operations office. The helicopter had picked up 10 passengers at the Marin County Heliport before going to Emeryville, on a trip intended to end at San Francisco's airport.

DOWN THE DRAIN

An estimated 17,000 gallons of milk was poured down the drain at a Los Angeles Sanitation District water pollution control plant Monday because no market could be found for it. Another 6,000 gallons was dumped yesterday. The liquid was skim milk from which the cream and butterfat had been removed. A spokesman from the Milk Producers Assn. said he didn't know why the milk could not be sold.

Budget Trimmed In San Anselmo

The San Anselmo City Council, reviewing a proposed $2.1 million budget for 1974-75, last night cut $24,290 from accounts proposed for the public works department, the planning commission and the city chamber of commerce.

City Administrator-Controller Alfred C. Kaeppel, who presented the tentative budget to the council last month, said the cuts could drop the tax rate by three or four cents.

The initial spending proposal would have required a tax rate of $2.51 per $100 of assessed valuation, up 16 cents from last fiscal year's $2.35 tax rate.

While approving $40,000 for purchase of a residence at 15 Magnolia Avenue as headquarters for the public works department, the council deleted an additional $10,000 to remodel the structure.

Vice Mayor Woodrow V. Capurro called the house a "rat trap" and successfully urged the council to put off remodeling until the structure's various uses can be determined.

Similarly, Capurro persuaded the council to trim $2,000 budgeted for an outside planning consultant to assist city planners with the general plan.

However, the council added $500 to the $1,200 previously allocated for the planning commission's office supplies in order to afford greater publicity of the commission's public meetings.

The planning commission's proposed budget now is $49,623 as compared to $52,981 last year.

The council trimmed $2,000 from the public works budget by canceling the $22,000 installation of a storm drain on San Anselmo Avenue, and ordering the remaining $20,000 spent on extension of a culvert system along Broadmoor Avenue upstream from Brookside Drive.

Another $2,640 was deleted when the council cancelled resurfacing of the city corporation yard pending the construction of a new facility.

Another $5,200 was cut when the council refused to purchase a new street sweeper although the old vehicle is in ill repair.

The council also refused purchase of four radio channel guard units at a cost of $960 to shield city vehicles from interfering emergency dispatches from other cities, and the purchase of $1,510 in new equipment for the municipal machine shop.

Lastly, the council trimmed the chamber of commerce's requested $3,500 subsidy to $3,000, saying the organization should be encouraged to become self-sustaining.

The council will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in city hall to conclude its tentative budget hearings.

To Discuss Budget

The Alto-Richardson Bay Fire District board will meet today at 8 p.m. at the district firehouse to disucss its proposed budget of $301,000 for 1974-75, according to Chief Carl O. Heynen Jr.

BILLBOARD DREAM — Three panels of a hand-painted color photograph adorn a San Francisco billboard. The panels portray a young maiden lolling on a bed of oranges that gradually disappear as they tumble from a cornucopia, an image that represents the illusory "California dream," according to Larkspur artist Larry Sultan. The pop art-work will appear on the billboard for the next six weeks. Space for the art was donated by Foster-Kleiser.

Happiness — That's Their Business

By NELS JOHNSON

Larkspur artist Larry Sultan is "in business to make people happy."

Sultan and a partner, Mike Mandel of Santa Cruz, have spent the last three months and $500 to create a mammoth mural erected yesterday on a billboard at Embarcadero and Howard streets in San Francisco.

They don't expect to make a penny from the endeavor. They do hope to enrich the lives those who view their pop art poster.

Sultan, 27, is president of Clatworthy Colorvues, a fledgling Larkspur firm aimed at making art accessible to those who don't go to art galleries.

LARRY SULTAN
Billboard artist

"The thrust of the firm is to make art that the public will see," said Sultan, a native New Yorker who holds a master's degree from the San Francisco Art Institute. "For example, to project slide shows on the sides of buildings, or erecting billboard art posters."

The 10-by-21-foot mural now gracing the busy San Francisco street corner is a montage of three hand-painted color photographs of a young brunette lolling on a bed of oranges that have tumbled from a giant cornucopia.

The poster is a mass image of the California dream, Sultan explained.

"It has a powerful visual impact that makes people think," he said. "If it can wake people up, and make them look, it's been worth it," he said.

"What we're doing is spending all this time and money to allow people to appreciate art," he continued. "This poster beautifies the environment."

Sultan, a photography teacher in San Francisco and at the School of Arts and Sciences in San Anselmo, said he finances his aesthetic efforts with money earned from his teaching posts.

Sultan said that although his firm is a "noncommercial enterprise," he hopes to attract local and federal funds to finance a series of 10 art billboards commemorating the nation's bicentennial.

Clatworthy Colorvues first got into the pop art business last August with erection of a portrait of the Berkeley Sheet Metal Works on a billboard in Emeryville.

The San Francisco billboard, Sultan said, will be the scene of a wine and band block party at 6 p.m. today.

Retired Landscape Architect Is New Sausalito Planning Member

Paul B. Meserve, a political supporter of environmentalist councilman Violeta Autumn, last night was appointed to the Sausalito Planning Commission. (Another Sausalito City Council story page 1.)

Meserve, 72, a retired landscape architect and city planner, succeeds Frank Bowen, whose term has expired.

His appointment was announced after a closed session of the council prior to last night's public meeting.

The selection of Meserve was questioned by resident Alan Conner, who said he had heard rumors that Meserve was a long-time violator of city zoning laws. He declined to elaborate.

Mrs. Autumn rushed to the defense of Meserve, calling Conner's charges innuendo. "I object to casting a shadow on one of the most beautiful people this city has the pleasure to house," she said. Mayor Evert H. Heynneman agreed.

The council took no action on a request by Conner to investigate possible zoning violations by the new planning commissioner.

Meserve said today he believes Conner was referring to accusations that he has an illegal apartment in his home at 494 Sausalito Boulevard, a neighborhood zoned for single-family homes. He denied the charge and labeled Conner "a trouble maker."

Although the vote on the appointment of Meserve was not announced, councilman Sally Stanford made it clear that she was the only one to oppose the appointment.

A resident of the city 12 years, Meserve helped draft the city's first open space report, was a member of the open space bond committee and is a temporary member of the city tree committee, acting as a summer replacement.

He also serves on a citizens' committee of the Golden Gate Bridge District, studying transportation methods for the Golden Gate Corridor, as does Conner.

A widower, Meserve has a grown son.

The Sausalito City Council also:

BOATYARD — Postponed until Aug. 6 a decision on a request by Schoonmaker developers to raze Bob's Boatyard on the city's waterfront.

WOLFBACK RIDGE — Asked planning commissioners for recommendations on putting into effect the general plan goal of one dwelling unit per acre on Wolfback Ridge.

ZONING — Set the July 30 council session to consider proposed amendments to bring the city general plan and zoning in conformance as required by state law.

TREE — Denied a request by Frank E. Farella to require a builder to replace a redwood tree at 46 Currey Avenue. The tree was killed by vandals and the builder has no responsibility in the matter, councilmen agreed.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned until 7 p.m. today in the Johnson Street firehouse for a review of the city's proposed 1974-75 budget.

Police Chief Named

CARLSBAD (UPI) — Roy J. Kundtz, police chief of Los Alamitos since 1968, was named police chief of this San Diego County city last night.

Doar To Give Alternatives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John M. Doar, special counsel for the House Judiciary Committee, said today he will present a "number of alternative" forms of articles of impeachment against President Nixon so that committee members will have a choice.

Republican committee members, meanwhile, asked Sam Garrison, deputy GOP counsel for the impeachment inquiry staff, to draw up what they called a balanced presentation of the proposed articles.

The presentation of proposed articles of impeachment had been scheduled to begin tomorrow but Doar said today he could not complete his report by then and the presentation would be delayed until Friday.

Herbert W. Kalmbach, until recently Nixon's personal lawyer, testified in closed session before the committee today, completing the panel's list of witnesses it began hearing July 2.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said that when the committee begins debating and voting during the next two weeks, sessions will be open to reporters and the public. But he said live broadcast or telecast of the sessions would not be allowed.

Doar said the proposed articles —which will almost certainly urge impeachment — and arguments supporting them would be written in several different ways so that the 21 Democrats and 17 Republicans on the committee could take their choice.

Democrats explained that the joint role of Doar and Albert E. Jenner, chief GOP counsel to the committee, was to present evidence for impeachment and that was why their proposals would be one-sided in favor of bringing Nixon to trial in the Senate.

A number of Republicans disagreed with that explanation. Some have been critical of Jenner for going along with this reasoning and for not presenting an alternative side to the question.

Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, ranking Republican on the committee, asked Garrison Monday to prepare counter arguments to Doar's presentation. Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., said today that all 17 GOP members had now asked Garrison to go beyond that and draw up a totally separate presentation.

Doar is expected to present six to 12 possible articles of impeachment, drawn from more than 35 volumes of evidence accumulated in the six-month investigation.

Nixon Vows He'll Fight To The End

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — President Nixon, having put thoughts of resigning behind him, plans a "fight to the finish" against impeachment in order to save the presidency, according to a book written by one of his strongest defenders.

Nixon also says that if the Watergate-related accusations against him were true he would not remain in the White House "for a minute" and "nobody would have to ask me to resign."

The comments were made in the book "The Personal Nixon: Staying on the Summit," written by Rabbi Baruch Korff, head of the National Citizens Committee for Fairness to the Presidency.

Korff interviewed Nixon May 13 in the Oval Office and later got written responses to questions. He made the 123-page book public yesterday after meeting with Nixon.

At a news conference, Korff said he has the impression that Nixon "agrees with me" that the conspiracy-perjury conviction of John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's former No. 2 aide, is "a blot on justice."

Funds Added To Pay For Teacher Raises

The Marin County Board of Education last night added $200,224 to its proposed 1974-75 budget to help cover whatever salary raises are granted to teachers.

The additions would be enough to cover an 8 per cent raise and similar increases in employee benefits for teachers in county schools' office programs, according to Joseph Amato, business director.

Eight per cent raises already have been given to classified (nonteaching) employees and administrators but teachers have discontinued negotiations until they return to work in September.

The teachers are going to continue negotiating but we are limited by time in adopting a budget," Amato said.

He said the 8 per cent figure would bind neither side in negotiations but would provide funds to cover all or most of whatever raise is granted.

The change increased the proposed budget to $6,257,106, a hike of $568,100 over this year's spending.

To finance the increase, the countywide education tax rate would have to be increased from 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation to 20.68 cents, Amato said.

The board will continue review of the budget when it meets Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the county schools office. A public hearing and adoption of a final budget will be in August.

Safeway Won't Reprice Goods

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Safeway, with the largest sales volume of any supermarket chain in the nation, promised today not to put higher prices on stocks already on the shelf when prices go up for new stocks.

It said its nearly 2,000 stores henceforth will sell all existing stocks on the shelf at the old price.

The company said it was announcing the new policy in response to complaints from customers who found two or more price stickers on a product, showing the price of goods already on hand was sometimes raised when the price of new stocks increased.

Vote Of Burton On Reform Hit

Thomas O. Caylor of San Francisco, Republican nominee in the Fifth Congressional District, today criticized his Democratic rival for voting against reform of the committee structure in the House of Representatives.

Charging that Rep. John L. Burton "has sold out," Caylor said that "he told us that he was a progressive and a man of the people, but now that he's in office he feels he can ignore the will of the people."

Burton's vote against committee reform came "at a time when the polls show that the people of this country think even less of the Congress than they do of the President," Caylor declared.

House Resolution 988, drafted by a bipartisan committee, was tabled indefinitely by a narrow majority, he said. It would have cut the number of committees to eliminate overlapping jurisdictions such as occurred last winter, when 14 separate committees held hearings on the energy problem.

Asserting he would have voted for the resolution, Caylor said, "I am the reform candidate in this race and Burton is the reactionary." Burton's vote, he said, "stole progress out of the hands of the people."

Small Saving To Taxpayers

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Red tape is saving Idaho taxpayers money.

State Auditor Joe R. Williams has reported that his office has sold waste paper and used data processing cards for $851.75. This, he said, went into state cofers.

Williams said he was so pleased with the sale, which amounted to five tons, to a Nampa, Idaho, paper recycling company that this would become standard procedure for state government.

Program On Dam Was Not Shown

A documentary film on the Warm Springs dam near Healdsburg, scheduled for showing on the "Reasoner Report" television program Sunday night, was not shown.

Paul Kayfetz of Bolinas, attorney for opponents to the controversial Army Corps of Engineers project, said he was informed by network officials that the film's time slot was preempted by one on Lebanese refugees.

The dam film has not been rescheduled.

Garbage Charge Stays Unchanged

The garbage collection service charge for residents of the Tamalpais Community Services District will not be raised for 1974-75, district directors have decided.

During a meeting Monday, board members set the rate at $2.40 a month, the same as the current charge. They originally believed a rate hike necessary to meet rising costs for fuel and labor, but determined that the district could hold the line on the collection fee for one more year, according to Director Richard A. Drever Jr.

Directors set the charge for sewer service at $45 a year per household, also the same as the current rate.

Five Mill Valley Plans Examined

A landscape architect last night presented five plans for improving the parking layout and landscaping around the old downtown Mill Valley bus depot.

Robert Hanna, associate planner, said that the alternatives suggested to the city's architectural advisory committee by architect Ralph Alexander will be discussed again at a joint meeting of the committee and planning commission.

All the plans hinge on enlarging the bus depot pedestrian plaza, greatly increasing landscaping and greatly revising traffic patterns around the depot, Hanna said.

The choices include:

1. Rearranging parking from a north-south pattern to an east-west, reducing parking by six slots to 50 and stacking buses in front of the depot on Throckmorton Avenue instead of inside the depot parking lot.

2. Using the same basic plan as No. 1 but keeping the present 56 parking spaces.

3. Using an east-west parking pattern, reducing parking to 49 spaces and having buses stack behind the depot as they do now.

4. Keeping the north-south parking arrangement and the present 56 parking slots but stacking buses in front of the depot on Throckmorton.

5. Keeping a north-south parking arrangement, reducing parking to 50 spaces, stacking buses in front of the depot and expanding the depot plaza on Miller Avenue.

Wine Drinkers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women are the best wine customers in the United States, says the Newspaper Advertising Bureau, Inc. The bureau said 14 million of the nation's 27 million wine dirnkers are women. The fair sex also makes 51 per cent of the wine purchases in the United States.

WAREHOUSE SALE

Statement of Policy

In this time of rampant inflation and a very unstable import market we feel that there are going to be some excellent buys on the market. We want to pass this savings along to you the consumers. This is why we are clearing our warehouse of wines we have bought at a lower price than they could be purchased in todays market. Then we will have room to bring in more wines and continue to pass along the savings. We will not handle inferior wines just to be able to sell them cheap, but we will have quality merchandise at better than competitive prices. Feel free to come in and discuss this with us as we can save you money on all your wine purchases on a continual basis.

DOUGLAS CORRIGAN
Shuns publicity

Wrong-Way Corrigan Reminisces

SANTA ANA, Calif. (UPI) — Thirty-six years ago today, a grinning pilot climbed aboard a dilapidated monoplane — after being forbidden to fly it to Europe — and took off on a flight that was to earn him a spot in aviation history and sobriquet, "Wrong-way Corrigan."

His announced destination when he took off from Floyd Bennett Field in New York, on July 17, 1938, was California.

But 23 hours and 15 minutes later, Douglas Corrigan landed at Dublin and asked naively of astonished officials:

"Is this Los Angeles?"

The flight brought him fame and a small fortune as well as a starring role in a movie of his life, but Corrigan, now 67, shuns publicity and declines interviews.

"I've done enough talking in the past," he told a reporter this week. "Everybody knows what I did."

What he did was fly across the Atlantic Ocean without a radio in a 9-year-old Curtis Robin that he had bought for $310 as junk seven years before and rebuilt from salvaged parts for another $900.

His only instruments were a compass, which he later claimed was set wrong, and a 10-foot pole to knock ice off the wings. He had two boxes of figs for food and took off with $69 worth of gasoline — 320 gallons stored in five fuselage and wing tanks.

The Department of Commerce, which regulated flying in those days, rated the plane strictly experimental, forbade him from flying it at night and emphatically rejected permission for a transatlantic flight.

Which way did Corrigan really intend to fly?

For years, he contended that his destination was California.

"I set that compass wrong or I would have got to California," he said. "Honest, I meant to go there. It was just dumb Irish luck that I got to Dublin."

But on the 20th anniversary of his flight, he said, "That's my story. I've been telling it so long I'm beginning to believe it" and another 10 years later, said, "I really can't remember now. It was a long time ago."

Since 1969, Corrigan has lived quietly in retirement in his modest, four bedroom ranch style home, tending the half dozen remaining trees from his grove.

Still sitting in the garage, gathering dust, is "Lizzy," the old monoplane that carried Corrigan to fame.

Asked if a UPI photographer could take a picture of the aged craft, Corrigan thought briefly then replied, "No, no pictures," and ended the conversation.

Brown Rot Hits The Peach Crop

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's valuable peach crop has been hit by a heavy outbreak of brown rot resulting from the unusual rain in Northern California earlier this month.

State Food and Agriculture director C. B. Christensen has reported brown rot losses to clingstone peaches "will be the greatest in the 200,000 tons of extra early varieties that are now ripening.

WILLIAM C. WESTMORELAND
Blames defeat on himself

Old General Thumped At The Polls

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland, his voice only a whisper because of laryngitis, blamed himself for his crushing defeat in yesterday's South Carolina Republican gubernatorial primary.

"I was an inept candidate," said Westmoreland, former chief of staff of the Army and commander in Vietnam at the height of U.S. involvement. "I'm accustomed to structured organization, something like this is so nebulous."

Westmoreland was thrashed by State Sen. James Edwards, a Charleston oral surgeon who had hesitated about even getting into the race with one of the nation's most well-known generals.

With most of the state's Republican precincts reporting, Edwards had 19,487 votes or 58 per cent of the total to 13,886 votes for Westmoreland.

He will face either Rep. W.J. Bryan Dorn or political newcomer Charles (Pug) Ravenel in the fall. The two Democrats will be in a run off election in two weeks to decide the party nominee.

Ravenel, who spent more than $300,000 to make his name known, edged Dorn, dean of the South Carolina congressional delegation in a seven-man Democratic race.

With most of the votes counted, Ravenel had 83,402 votes — 33.99 per cent —to Dorn's 91,069, or 33.14 per cent.

Unlike Westmoreland, who often came across as a general addressing a private instead of a candidate pleading for a vote, Edwards has a gregarious campaign style.

Edwards said he was sympathetic to Westmoreland's problems.

"It was difficult for someone who had been a commanding general for so many years to come down and campaign," he said.

Westmoreland's chances of victory were dimmed by a light voter turnout. Many old-line Republicans were miffed that it took Westmoreland until March to decide he was a Republican, and their votes for Edwards were magnified in the reduced voter turnout.

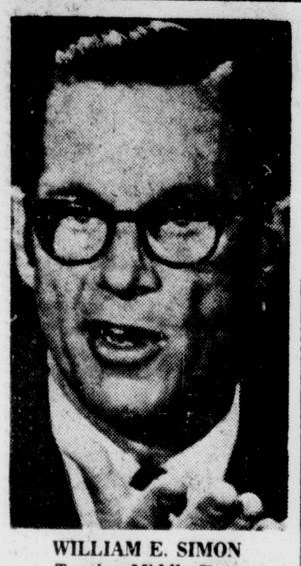

Westmoreland said he has no plans other than to "relax and learn how to play golf."

"I suppose this proves I'm not a politician, but I wanted to prove to this state and this party that there could be a two-party system," he said.

Safety Railing

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The number of bars on the 300-year-old safety railing around the observation dome of St. Peter's Basilica will be doubled to eliminate child-sized gaps, Vatican sources said yesterday. A 4-year-old Italian girl, Maria Pasqua Agostino, tumbled through one of the gaps June 29 and plunged to her death.

Richardson Bay Board Adopts $435,420 Budget

The Richardson Bay Sanitary District Board last night adopted a 1974-75 budget of $435,420, up $90,881 from last year's, according to Board Secretary Eber D. Russell.

Under this spending plan, the tax rate will remain the same as last year's — 70 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Most of the budget increase is from larger capital expenditures which will amount to $274,950, including installing three standby pumps, adding storage space at the plant, repairing lines in the Redlands and Tiburon Knolls areas, upgrading chlorine treatment at the plant and correcting infiltration problems in lines.

About $79,000 will go towards salaries, including a 12 per cent raise for employees. Russell said the district board gave employees eight per cent as a cost of living increase and four per cent to upgrade pay.

The remainder of the budget will go for general maintenance and operations.

Board Orders Strike Plans

HAYWARD (UPI) — The Regional Water Quality Control Board has ordered operators of San Francisco Bay Area sewage plants to draw plans to keep operating in case of strikes or other emergencies.

Board members voted unanimously yesterday after executive director Fred H. Dierker declared a strike by municipal employes in San Francisco demonstrated the need.

In March, 423 million gallons of raw sewage were dumped in San Francisco Bay because of a strike in that city.

Plans were ordered also for coping with earthquakes, vandalism, strikes against suppliers and equipment failures.

Israel Says $2 Billion Aid Needed

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israeli leaders told Treasury Secretary William E. Simon today that Israel needs more than $2 billion a year in military and economic aid from the United States, government officials reported.

Finance Minister Yehoshua Rabinowitz told Simon that Israel's balance of payments deficit this year amounts to $3 billion, most of it due to defense spending during and since the October Middle East war, the officials said.

Simon met for an hour with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and then conferred with Rabinowitz in the second day of a three-day visit to Israel.

The treasury secretary told newsmen upon arrival in Tel Aviv last night that the United States "will be helpful in every way that we can help with assistance that's been so characteristic of our relations."

Simon today also discussed with Commerce and Industry Minister Haim Bar Lev the possibility of increasing trade between the two countries, especially the lowering of import barriers to Israeli products in the United States, government officials said.

They also talked about ways the United States might help Israel increase its exports to the European Common Market countries and Israel's increasing reliance on imported energy.

Simon's visit to Israel was the second stop on a four-nation Middle East tour to work out the details of economic issues discussed by Nixon during the President's recent trip to the region.

He wound up three days of talks in Egypt by signing economic assistance agreements for war reconstruction projects, including reopening of the Suez Canal. The next stops will be Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

Peacock Gap Brush Fire Arson Found

A fire which was deliberately set yesterday roared over 20 acres of grassy hillside above Biscayne Drive north of the Peacock Gap Country Club.

According to San Rafael Fire Marshall Kenneth Mazza, an arson device was found, but there is no suspect. It had been placed at the intersection of Biscayne Drive and the west end of Knollwood Way.

The fire — which began at about 11 a.m. and was swept uphill by 15-to-30 mile-per-hour winds off the bay — was fought by four units each from the San Rafael and Marin County fire departments.

It was brought under control by 12:15 p.m., but mopping up continued until 7 p.m., Mazza said.

There was no damage to any structures in the area.

Livestock Loans

90% FROM CALIFORNIA

It's The Time Of Year For Dishes With Plums

FROM OVEN TO WOODS, that's the only way to eat beef jerky, the favorite of oldtimers everywhere. Jerky is nutritious, satisfying, easy to make — and what a special treat for hiking or biking.

Plum trees throughout the county are full of ripe, delicious plums. And there will be more to come as the season progresses.

California grows 90 percent and 20 varieties of the nation's plums, and whether you're in Marin or Sonoma Counties, the abundance has probably meant wasting some of these nutritious favorites.

You can enjoy fresh plums for quick snacks, flavorful additions to salads and fruit compotes or for fruity toppings on cake and ice cream desserts. You can even put some away for winter by letting nature do the preserving for you. Sun-drying is an ancient way of preserving that works just as well today.

Freezing California plums is also good insurance for the months to come. All freeze well and hold their shape when cooked. California plum growers recommend Santa Rosa, Nubiana and Queen Ann varieties for canning.

SUN-DRIED CALIFORNIA PLUMS

Fresh California plums
Cheesecloth

Line shallow cardboard or wooden boxes with a double layer of cheesecloth. Wash plums; halve and remove pits. Spread fruit, slightly apart, on cheesecloth. Arrange boxes of fruit in the sun, on a table. Cover each box with a single thickness of cheesecloth, so that cloth does not touch fruit. Drying may take from 2 to 7 days. Fruit should be brought indoors, at night, if night time temperatures drop more than 20 degrees below midday highs, or if there's fog or rain. When plums are "done", their flesh will be firm but still pliable. Cool fruit before packaging. Store in double plastic bags, clean glass jars or plastic containers. Let fruit mellow for two weeks before using. Store in cool dry place, in refrigerator or freezer. Fruit should keep for a year. Dried plums can be tenderized before eating by dropping it into boiling water for about 15 seconds; then dry on paper towels.

NOTE: If any mold forms, make a solution of 1 tablespoon sodium hypochlorite (available in drug stores) and 1 quart water. Dip cloth into solution and wipe off mold. (This process will slow down molding, but will not prevent it.)

PLUMS JUBILEE

8 fresh California plums, peeled, halved and pitted (may leave plums whole, if desired)
½ cup sugar
1 Tbsp. slivered orange peel
4 whole cloves
1 Tbsp. water
4 Tbsp. orange-flavored liqueur
4 Tbsp. brandy
About 1 quart vanilla ice cream

In a saucepan, combine plums, sugar, orange peel, cloves, water and 1 tablespoon each orange-flavored liqueur and brandy. Let stand about one hour, stirring occasionally, to dissolve sugar and let juices form. Gently bring the mixture to a boil and simmer about 3 minutes or just until plums begin to soften. Chill until serving time.

To Serve:

Heat plums to simmering in chafing dish over flame at the table. Warm the remaining liqueur and brandy; pour over plums and carefully ignite with a long match. Gently stir sauce until flames die down, then spoon mixture over large scoops of vanilla ice cream. Serves eight.

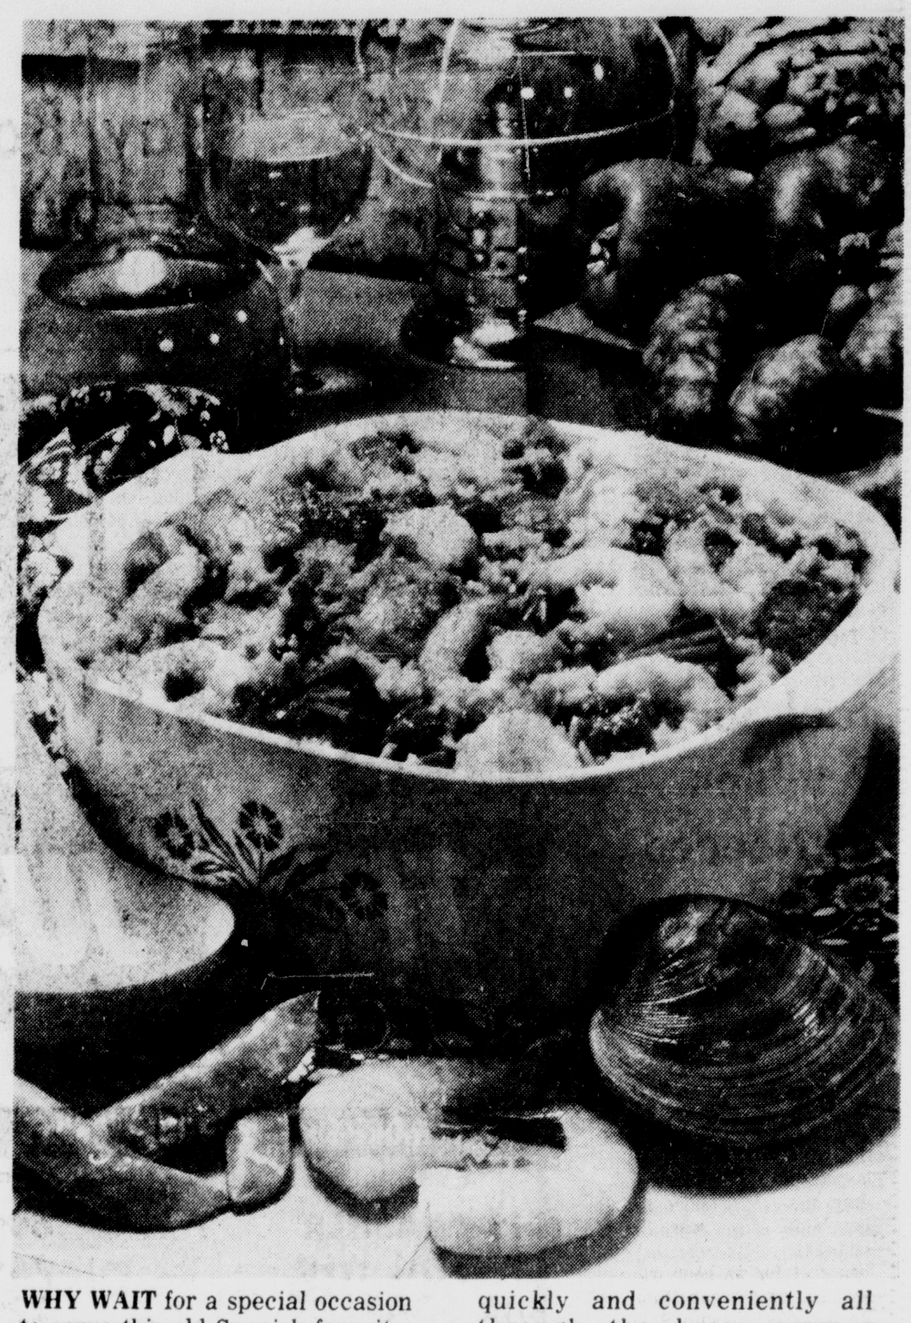

Note:

To peel plums, place in boiling water until skin cracks; transfer to cold water, then slip off skins.

LANCASTERSHIRE PLUM 'N BISCUIT BAKE

1 pound California plums, pitted and sliced (about 6-8 plums)
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
¼ tsp. lemon juice
1 package (8 ounces) refrigerator biscuits

Arrange plums in 9-inch layer cake pan. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake in 400 degree oven for 20 minutes. Meanwhile, in mixing bowl, blend cream cheese, sugar, egg and lemon juice. Remove plums from oven and reduce heat to 350 degrees. Pour cream cheese mixture over plums. Open package of dinner rolls. Arrange them in an overlapping ring over plums. Bake 30 minutes longer. Serve warm. Serves eight to 10.

WHY WAIT for a special occasion to serve this old Spanish favorite. Now, using an easy one-dish menu, Paella can be served quickly and conveniently all through the busy summer months.

Make Beef Jerky Just Like Grandma

There's nothing like digging into your pocket and pulling out a slice of beef jerky, a spicy, country-flavored treat that is both nutritious and satisfying.

The original jerky was made from buffalo. Today beef, as well as venison, work just as well for the backyard or woods-bound outdoorsman.

To make your own jerky select a lean cut of meat from which long strips can be easily sliced. Brisket flank steak or a lean heel of round roast are naturals and they will be easier to work with if slightly frozen. Cut with the grain if you like chewy jerky or across the grain for a more tender snack.

Homemade jerky costs 21 cents an ounce, based on beef at $1.60 a pound. Besides its terrific taste, you're saving from 34 cents to 98 cents an ounce, by doing it yourself.

OVEN-DRIED BEEF JERKY

2 to 2½ pounds lean, boneless beef
1 cup water
2 tbsp. Wright's Liquid Smoke
2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. garlic powder (optional)
1 tsp. onion powder (optional)
¼ tsp. black pepper

Trim all visible fat from meat. Cut into strips 4 to 6 inches long, ½ to 1 inch wide, and ⅛ to ¼ inch thick. Mix water, liquid smoke, salt, garlic and onion powders and pepper. (For less highly seasoned jerky use only water, smoke and salt.)

Marinate overnight in refrigerator. Drain and pat dry on paper towels. Cover bottom rack of oven with aluminum foil or a cookie sheet. Hang or lay strips on top rack so they do not overlap. Dry meat at the lowest oven setting (150 to 200 degrees.) until it has turned brown, feels hard and is dry to the touch, about 4 to 7 hours. Let cool, then remove from racks and store in an airtight container at cool room temperature; it keeps indefinitely.

Manicotti: Meatless, Cheap Italian Treat

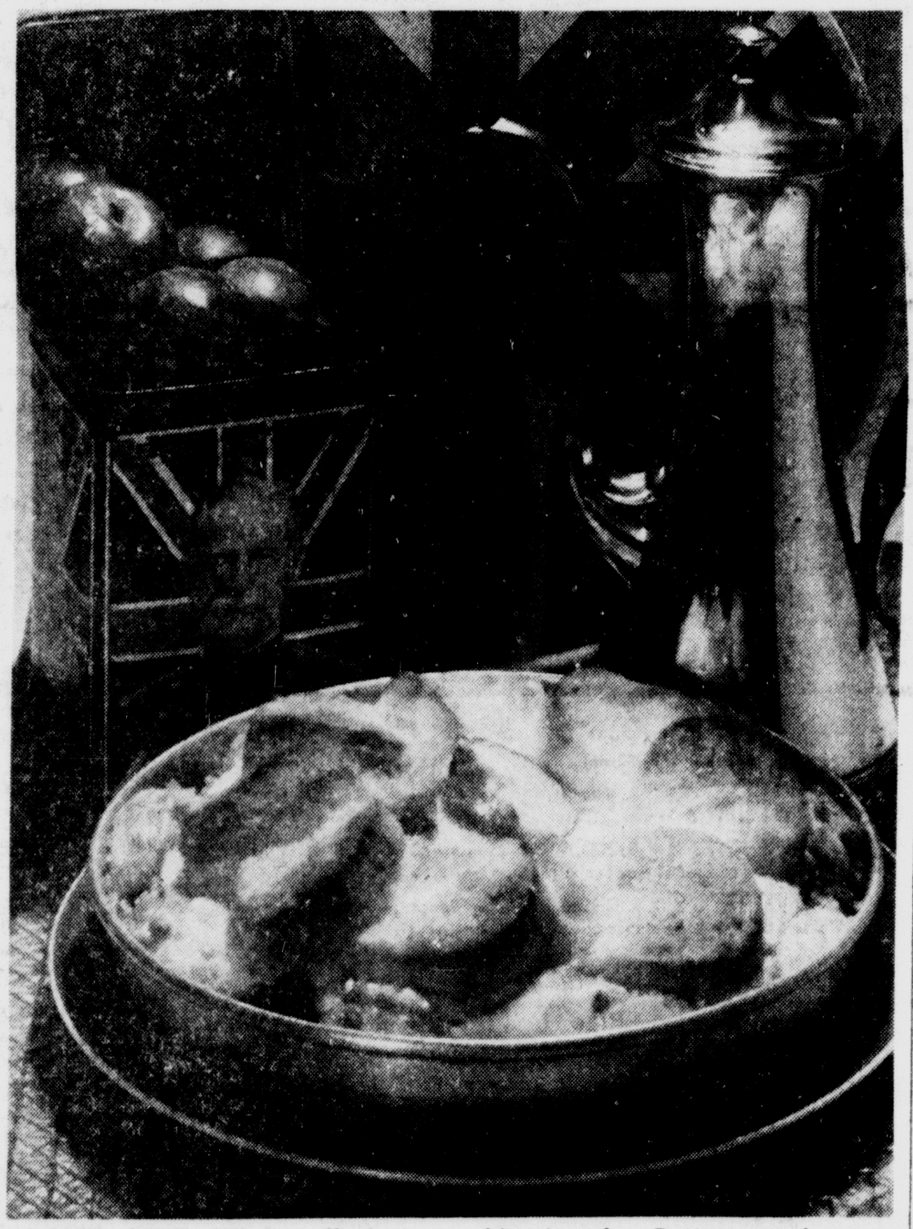

Meatless main dishes provide an excellent way to stretch your grocery dollar. By planning some meals around fish, eggs, cheese, or vegetables, you can substitute the protein you ordinarily get from meat and often save money well.

Among these meatless main dish recipes is an old Italian favorite —Three-Cheese Manicotti. Mozzarella, Parmesan and cottage cheese are combined with two eggs to supply all the protein and nutrition an average family needs in one meal. This dish can be served with a tossed salad, toasted French bread and red wine.

THREE-CHEESE MANICOTTI

1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 envelope spaghetti sauce mix
2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese
1 cup cream-style cottage cheese
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 beaten eggs
¼ cup snipped parsley
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
8 manicotti shells, cooked and drained

Blend tomato sauce, spaghetti sauce mix and 1½ cups water. Simmer, uncovered, 10 to 12 minutes. Meanwhile, combine 1 cup of the mozzarella, the cottage cheese and Parmesan. Add eggs, parsley, salt and pepper; mix lightly. Stuff manicotti shells with cheese mixture, using about 1/4 cup for each. Pour 1/2 cup of the sauce mixture into 12x7 1/2x2-inch baking dish. Arrange manicotti in dish; pour remaining sauce atop. Sprinkle with remaining mozzarella. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees till bubbly, 25 to 30 minutes. Serves six.

DON'T GIVE UP on all those delicious ripe plums in your yard, add them to your dessert list, including this tempting plum and biscuit cake. Better yet, freeze, can or dry them for those winter months when you'd love to taste a bit of summer.

Paella: A Spanish Mixture That Is Always Popular

Paella is a Spanish dish that has won its rightful place on every cook's best food list. The mixture of seafood, poultry and saffron rice gives this appetizing favorite a special niche in summertime menu-planning.

With this easy recipe, Paella can be a menu repeater. Just prepare, cook and serve it to your family in one dish, and use those extra minutes to enjoy the season.

PAELLA

1 pkg. (9 oz.) frozen artichoke hearts, partly thawed
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen green peas, partly thawed
1 pound frozen shrimp (cleaned and ready to cook), partly thawed
½ cup oil
8 (approximately 1½ lbs.) chicken thighs
1 lb. Italian sweet sausage, cut in ¾ inch slices
1 cup green pepper, coarsely chopped
1 cup onion, coarsely chopped
1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes, drained and chopped
1 can (6½ oz.) minced clams
1 cup boiling water
2 pkg. (6 oz. each) yellow rice with saffron
1 jar (4 oz.) pimientos, drained and sliced

Remove artichoke hearts, peas and shrimp from freezer and allow to thaw at room temperature while preparing paella.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

In four-quart glass-ceramic Dutch oven, heat oil; add chicken and brown well on both sides. Remove from Dutch oven. Add sausage, pepper, onion and tomatoes to Dutch oven, and saute about five minutes, stirring constantly. Stir in clams (with juice), water and rice. Add browned chicken. Cover. Place in preheated oven and cook 30 minutes. Add artichoke hearts, peas and shrimp. Stir to blend. Cover and continue cooking 30 minutes. Serve immediately. Garnish with pimiento slices. Serves 8.

SAVE YOUR CROP

It's Fruit For Winter Enjoyment

WEST HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — So your strawberry crop is finished and it's too early for the sweet corn and the peaches. But the tomatoes are ripening faster than you can eat them and the summer squash seems to grow from a few inches to baseball bat size almost overnight.

What can you do to salvage the fruits and vegetables of your garden?

Farmer John Youngs and Wanda Mead, a Nassau County home extension specialist, came up with some practical, economical answers in demonstration lectures here: freeze or can them.

Youngs is a fourth generation farmer who sells the produce from his 130 acres at his own road stand.

HE HAD tips for recognizing maturity and ripeness:

Fully blood red tomatoes have optimum flavor. Growth cracks are normal and do not affect flavor or quality.

Skinny carrots may look pretty and they will be tender, but they lack the full flavor of mature ones.

Beets about two inches in diameter are ideal. Larger ones may be woody.

Mature peas have nicely rounded pods that are green. When they start to turn white, the vegetable is past its prime.

Pick broccoli before the tight green buds of the florets start to open into yellow blossoms.

Pick hybrid summer squash such as yellow straight neck and zucchini while they are small. They will be more tender and flavorful than large ones. Don't let them grow to the size of baseball bats or they'll finish the plant.

If you buy summer squash instead of growing it, look for vegetables covered with light fuzz. It means they are freshly harvested.

Most people eat corn too young, Youngs said. Tiny kernels, like skinny carrots, are tender. But full flavor and sweetness come from ears with kernels about one-fourth inch wide, or slightly larger for some varieties.

REFRIGERATE CORN right after picking if you are not going to cook or can it at once. Left unchilled, all its sugar will turn to starch within 10 hours.

You don't need a lot of expensive equipment to freeze or can your garden produce.

A blanching basket is useful but either a colander or cheesecloth makes a satisfactory substitute for dunking fruits and vegetables in scalding water for specific amounts of time to stop enzyme and bacterial action that can spoil frozen food.

PEANUT BUTTER jars with rubber sealing rings in their lids are safe for packing pickles by the open-kettle or the water-bath method.

Mayonnaise jars also can be used safely with both canning methods, but their tops should be replaced by self-sealing home canning lids or new rubber rings and porcelain-lined zinc lids.

Until now, both the state extension services and the U.S. Department of Agriculture have warned against reusing commercial canning jars for anything except foods packed by the open-kettle method and sealed with paraffin.

Mrs. Mead said the new recommendations were made by Cornell University's College of Human Ecology, following extensive testing. She said that commercial jars free from scratches, chips or cracks actually are safer than old canning jars that have been knocked around and weakened during years of storage. Any jar that is scratched or has chips at the top or a warped top can let air in and spoil the food, she said.

Commercial canning jars can also be used for freezing food, she added, but square or rectangular containers are preferable because they take up less space.

ROUND JARS are best for canning because they permit safe, even heat penetration to the center.

Mrs. Mead said food also can be frozen safely in plastic or good coated containers from dairy sour cream, cottage cheese, margarine, whipped toppings and the like. But their lids are not as secure as those on home freezing containers, and should be sealed with freezer tape.

Coated cartons made especially for home freezing also can be reused, she said, because the food in them must first be sealed in plastic bags. To prevent bulging, place the bag in the carton before you fill it.

Some plastic bags are made ade especially for home freezing, but Mrs. Mead said any good quality plastic food bag is suitable. It can be sealed with either a wire twist or an electric iron, using the lowest heat setting.

Plastic food bags are handy also when you soak a large number of cucumbers in brine for pickling. Mrs. Mead warned against using plastic garbage bags for this or any other kind of food storage, because some are treated with deodorizing chemicals.

Western Sandwiches For A Quick Lunch

Round up cooked beef leftovers and prepare wild western sandwiches in a jiffy.

Beef slices simmered in a spicy tomato sauce with beans cook down to a zesty barbecue filling to go between bun halves.

TEXAS JOE BARBECUES

1 pound cooked beef, thinly sliced
1 medium onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
2 Tbsp. cooking fat
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1 Tbsp. prepared mustard
1 Tbsp. vinegar
1 Tbsp. chili powder
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
⅛ tsp. hot pepper sauce
1 can (15½ ounces) red or kidney beans
8 hamburger buns

Cook onion and garlic in cooking fat in frying-pan until lightly browned. Add tomato sauce, mustard, vinegar, chili powder, salt, pepper and hot pepper sauce, stirring to combine. Stir in beef and beans, including liquid, and cook slowly, uncovered, 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve on hamburger buns.

Yield: four cups.

Mayonnaise To Make At Home

Radio hostess Jorie Parr of San Rafael is one of many believers in homemade mayonnaise. There are few things on your table that aren't enhanced by this all important, popular staple, so why not perk up its flavor by making your very own at home, with her quick blender method.

BLENDER MAYONNAISE

1 egg
½ tsp. mustard
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. vinegar
¼ cup oil
¾ cup oil

Put all ingredients, except ¾ cup oil, in blender and whirr briefly, about 20 seconds. Slowly pour in the remaining oil while blender is going. Refrigerate.

Four Monks sherry vinegar is best, said Mrs. Parr, and the best oil combination is half olive, half salad. Two, three or four cloves of crushed garlic can be added at the beginning for an interesting sauce for charcoaled fish, she added.

Sticking Tendency

When you are baking a fuit-abd-nut quick bread (good to take on picnics) line the bottom of the loaf pan with wax paper because these breads have a tendency to stick. Some cooks like to grease the wax paper but this is not strictly necessary.

Cole Slaw Addition

Canned pineapple makes a delicious addition to cole slaw. You can use pineapple tidbits or the crushed variety.

GIVING CALIFORNIANS an alternative is the campaign platform of Socialist Worker Party candidate for governor, Olga Rodrigues of Los Angeles. Her party, said Miss Rodrigues, is getting a hearing from all sectors of society in California. "Disgust with Watergate is deep," said the 1973 candidate for mayor of Los Angeles.

DESPITE THE ODDS

Minority Candidate Serious About Running For Governor

By KAREN PETERSON

Gubernatorial candidate Olga Rodrigues readily admitted she is faced with a triple-barrelled political handicap as a woman, a Chicana and a member of the Socialist Workers Party.

Even so, and wearing a slight "I-knew-you'd-ask" smile, Miss Rodrigues said she and all Socialist Worker candidates "run to win every campaign."

(The SWP and four other political parties are currently involved in a suit filed by the Committee for Democratic Election Laws to change the ruling on how new parties and independent candidates are placed on the ballot. If it is not heard before the November election, Miss Rodrigues will run as a write-in candidate.)

"Disgust with Watergate is deep" and contributed to the low voter turnouts in the primary, said the 26-year-old Texas native. "(People) are looking for alternatives."

Miss Rodrigues, who polled seventh in a field of 13 in last year's Los Angeles mayoral race, was in San Rafael Friday on one leg of a campaign that began with her nomination in February. Her campaign, and that of the eight other SWP members running for state office, has a budget of less than $30,000.

THEIR SPENDING is gathered from contributions of "young working class" people "interested in Socialist alternatives," she said. (The SWP has refused to submit names of contributors to the government because, said Miss Rodrigues, the reform laws are designed to "harass smaller parties.")

But said the articulate Miss Rodrigues, who is most serious about her candidacy, more people "are giving our campaign a hearing. People's eyes are opened because of Watergate... (they're) willing to give a hearing to (SWP) candidates."

"We're not embarrassed to defend our program. If (people) disagree, we try to convince them. We don't say different things to different people. Our interest is in telling the truth about what is going on."

The SWP is helping to build the "independent struggles of the oppressed in California, said Miss Rodrigues, a five-year member of the party. Her campaign, and that of the 100 candidates for state and national offices throughout the country, is one of offering an alternative; letting people know, she said, that it is "not necessary to vote for the lesser of two evils."

"Our campaign seeks to address the needs of the population as a whole and provide answers," she said, adding that the economic situation "weighs very heavy. (It's) a general attack against all working people."

Price controls meant "no controls at all," said Miss Rodrigues. While fuel and food costs rose during the last year, "working people's wages were down 3 per cent.

"Someone has benefited, not the majority of the population," she said.

The SWP platform would fight high prices by ending wage controls, and add cost-of-living clauses to all union contracts and pension, social security, welfare and unemployment benefits, she said.

THE 7 PER CENT unemployment rate issued by the California Development Agency doesn't take into consideration the thousands of workers who are not counted on the unemployment compensation rolls, continued Miss Rodrigues. "You just have to look around, there's no need for unemployment."

Unemployment could be eliminated, she said, by shortening the work week with no cut in pay, setting up a government program, paying union wages, to build housing, hospitals, schools and mass transportation systems, and paying compensation to all those laid off because of shortages, graduates, Vietnam veterans and strikers.

"All benefits come about from mass struggles, not from individual lawmakers," said Miss Rodrigues pointing to the examples of the Suffragettes and trade unions.

Social change will not come from supporting a good or bad Republican or Democrat, she said.

"I don't think the current government is cleaned up. The filth of Watergate extends to every section .. all politicians are using the same methods."

Does she see a socialist America.

"We're realists," she stressed, "not crystalball gazers."

There have been "good indications," she added, there have been social movements "fighting against exploitation."

When a group such as the feminists win a victory they don't just "sit back and relax" becase the ruling class will take back the gains just won, she said. "(You) need to answer attacks and attempts to turn them back as well as to advance your cause," said Miss Rodrigues, an ardent supporter of minority and women's rights movements.

ACTS OF individual terrorism are not the way society is going to change, said Miss Rodrigues in reference to the Symbionese Liberation Army. "The masses themselves have to mobilize."

The SWP has disagreements with the tactics of the SLA but they are "absolutely opposed to the holocaust carried out on 54th and Compton" by Los Angeles police, she said, "the police acted as "judge, jury and executioner."

The battle between police and the five SLA members in May was a political action, believes Miss Rodrigues.

"You know darn well that it would have been an entirely different operation in Pacific Palisades or Beverly Hills," she said.

The SLA activities only "take the onus off of where the real violence in society comes from," she said, and that is from those who sanctioned bombing "southeast Asia to rubble" and those who are responsible for keeping people "locked up in the barrios and ghettos."

Miss Rodrigues will speak Friday on "Portugal and the African Revolution" at 8 p.m., 1849 University Avenue, Berkeley.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

It May Not Be Called Battering A Child, But Trauma Nearly Same

DEAR HELEN:

Someone mentioned as an example of a paradox the person who campaigns against legalized abortions, yet believes we should keep the death penalty.

How about this paradox: Mothers who are horrified by stories of battered children are often the same ones who scream at, threaten, and slap their little kids in supermarkets. True, they aren't "battering" them (yet) but the assault could be almost as great to the children's nerves.

Yet no one tries to stop these mothers — and they are numerous! Yesterday I saw one grab her toddler and shake her by the arm as if she were a rag doll, then she gave her a hard slap, and threatened more "if you don't stop crying right now."

The more I observe mothers in stores displaying their obvious dislike for their offspring, the more I believe that people should be psychologically tested before they are allowed to produce children.

Why not require a license to have babies? After all, you must pass tests before you're allowed to drive a car, become a lawyer, etc. Isn't child-raising just as important? — FOR BABY LICENSES

DEAR FBL:

Nothing turns me off more than the "supermarket syndrome" you mention. And I'm quite sure these short-fused mothers continue the yelling and slapping at home.

But I doubt that testing for "baby-maker licenses" would eliminate all bad parents anymore than drivers' licenses stop all highway accidents. (Besides, think of the enforcement problems!)

Perhaps instead: neighborhood classes in "parenting," and inexpensive nurseries where mothers can leave their children occasionally before they become overwhelmed by them. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I was interested in the letter from the person who wonders where old-fashioned home cooking has gone in these days of quick-burgers and pre-packaged sameness.

But would dishes like "mother used to make" appeal to moderns brought up as they are on ersatz, reconstituted and reprocessed foods?

Try giving kids freshly squeezed orange juice and you'll see what I mean. They'll call it "too sour," and wonder why it's got "all that junk in it," because they're used to "orange concentrate." And what young person doesn't prefer canned soup to homemade stew? Or that nothing-filled soft white bread to the crusty, crumbly whole wheat creation in grandma's kitchen? (At any rate, after it gets cold.)

My children will eat canned spaghetti and tomato sauce by the canful, but if I make a sauce from garden-picked tomatoes, they complain it isn't smooth enough and "tastes funny." Actually, it tastes real, but I've about given up trying to fight the modern trend, especially when convenience food is so much easier.

It's sad, but I'm afraid "grandma's cooking" wouldn't sell very well these days. — FRUSTRATED COOK

DEAR COOK:

You may be right, although old-fashioned cooking still appeals to me. (But then I'm the type who has yet to buy a package of "meat stretcher" or cookie mix.)

A quote from the Wall Street Journal bears you out: "In researching the idiosyncrasies of the national palate, manufacturers have stumbled upon a surprising discovery: Despite the clamor in recent years for a return to 'natural' foods, most Americans have grown so accustomed to mass-produced, artificially flavored foods that anything else tastes peculiar."

. . . Pity! — H.

PARENT AND CHILD

Don't Always Fault Student In 'New Math' Programs

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

If you are studying the "new math" in school, especially if you are floundering, how can you, a student, make sure you are not getting poor teaching?

Let's get one thing straight right off. A great number of math teachers in U.S. public schools are not mathematicians. Most elementary school teachers who teach arithmetic have no deep love for or understanding of mathematics.

This means that you may have a history teacher who is absolutely "dotty" about history, who reads widely in the field, who wants to bring the past alive for you right here and now. Your history teacher may act as though there is something absolutely fundamentally wrong with you if you do not want to read every book in the bibliography.

But your math teacher may not have any of that enthusiasm for the subject. If, however, he or she does love math like the history teacher just described lvoes history, then you do not need to read the rest of this column.

On the other hand, if your math or arithmetic teacher merely hands out assignments and workbook sheets, corrects them, explains in the driest of terms how to calculate and generally makes math teaching a cut-and-dried affair, then you need to read further.

PARENTS CAN insist that the school district retain all those who teach math and/or arithmetic. They can insist that the hiring of new math teachers must include, as a qualification, a deep love for and understanding of new math. But you, the student, have a part to play, too.

A great many of the textbooks try valiantly to explain the new math in such a way that concepts will come through. They try to enable you to do your own reasoning and discovering. These texts have been written by people, unlike many classroom teachers, who do love and understand mathematics.

So, read what the texts say very carefully. Ask your teacher to let you read the teacher's manual. Generally, these have fuller explanations of how concepts develop and what leads to discovery.

If you know that one of the teachers in the school is better than all the others in understanding math, then ask to have that teacher come to your class at least once a week.

If your school is holding in-service training for its teachers in the new math, ask to attend the sessions. When a really good math teacher comes to the school to work with the staff, see that he or she works with you as well.

IF YOU KNOW that some of your fellow students have a pretty good grasp of math, ask that they be allowed to teach short courses in particular aspects of new math.

If you are in junior or senior high school and you are pretty good at math, ask the school system to let you teach in the elementary grades.

Take negative numbers, for example. Chances are that most elementary arithmetic teachers do not understand what they are, how they work, or how to explore ideas in math using them. Chances are, you do understand negative numbers. You should see to it that you teach some time every week in the lower grades.

You would be surprised at the number of elementary school teachers who do not have the least idea about negative numbers. They can, if they remember, apply the rule about "changing the signs and adding," but they cannot tell you why it works out correctly that way.

Hence, you have to help the younger children while your parents are helping the school district see that it must invest in massive teacher retraining over the next decade for all those who teach arithmetic and math.

Knowledge Of Home Pays Off

CHICAGO (UPI) —A woman's knowledge of the home gives her a distinct advantage over men for counseling in real estate, says the president of the women's council, the National Association of Realtors.

Says president Angeline A. Kopka, "How many men know if a kitchen has an efficient layout, accessibility to appliances and adequate cabinet space? How many men can tell whether the laundry area is in a convenient location, whether there is enough closet space and whether the traffic pattern is favorable?

Because many women have an inherent knowledge of the real estate product, the home, they start out with a greater insight into home buyers' and sellers' needs than most men."

Panelists Hard Put To Define Style

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The factors which make for style are as elusive as those which create charisma.

We say Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis has style. Her late husband, John F. Kennedy, was a President with charisma.

But what the descriptions really imply are hard to put in a few words, even with the help of the dictionary and a panel of experts.

I attended a seminar on "What is Style?" and found the experts just about as hard put for a definition as the rest of us would be if asked.

Peter Farb, an author and style in Melanesia."
linguistics, attempted to define style this way: Every society is set up with options for each to decide. "It's like a bagful of marbles. . . two levels, one the entire bag, two the individual's choice.

"STYLE IN the United States for instance is different from style in Melanisia."

Farb was one of 10 influentials from the worlds of architecture, the arts, food, fashion, television and movies, and the manufacturing and retail fields who spent a morning hacking the subject at the invitation of William M. Fine, president of Wamsutta Mills. Fine called the session simply "Conversation."

Robert Bendheim, chairman of the board of M. Lowenstein and Sons, Inc., of which Wamsutta is a division, came up with these comments on style.

"Not even the dictionary defines style precisely," he said. "Webster's Seventh calls it a mode of expressing thought in language; overall excellence, skill or grace in performance; manner or method of acting or performing. . . a way in which people of fashionable society dress, speak and conduct themselves. . .

"For all elusiveness, style. . is the vantage point from which we deal with life. Style keeps us civilized. . . in an uncivilized world.

"If style's meaning is elusive, its implications are very real. . . an understanding of style gives us a clearer understanding of ourselves. To people who deal in tastes and choices, a grasp of the meaning is the brick and mortar of success."

Ed Bacci, of the men's wear firm of Cluett Peabody, thought that style "is a personal thing. . . one thing certain about it, it changes. . . sometimes in fashion saturation of one style sets about a change, as we've seen in sportswear."

THE PANEL, with Edwin Newman, NBC news correspondent as moderator, also looked into what style might mean in the future.

Roy Amara, president and senior research fellow at the Institute for the Future, thought one of the strongest influences would be technological changes. The role of communications would be vital.

He asked, but did not answer, whether tension in national and world events might lead to more uniformity of style — "or more individual approach?"

John B. Hightower, president of the Associated Councils of the Arts and former director of the Museum of Modern Art, foresaw "more experimentation. . . a shifting in individual interests."

"Conversation" apparently was more an exchange of ideas rather than conclusions. Newman, summing up the definition of style, as the panelists saw it, used a string of words that included adventuresomeness, casualness, experimental, flamboyant, mobility as Americans move about increasingly, craving for convenience and comfort, desire or disdain for material things."

Smithy Hammers Out Her Career In What Once Was Man's Work

CHICAGO (UPI) — The 5-foot-5, 120-pound woman musters her strength and lugs a 175-pound anvil across her garage. She forges a fire.

She wrestles with the business end of nervous, temperamental horses.

People say it's man's work, but 27-year-old Sandy Klopp shrugs it off. She heats a steel bar until it's white hot, then hammers it into a "u" that will make a perfect fit.

Some days, she shoes as many as 10 horses — including the mean ones that have broken every finger on her heavily calloused hands and kick her.

"It's what I want to do. I love it," Miss Klopp said. She is a country girl from Monee, Ill., who became a licensed horseshoer two years ago.

"I suppose I could be called a blacksmith, but really I'm a farrier (a person who shoes horses). I would say I'm just about equal to the men as far as my customers go. They don't hold it against me because I'm a woman.

"I think they wonder if I can do it. Then, when they see me get the job done, they're always happy. I've never had any gripes," she said.

Horses occasionally rear up and come down across her back, she said, and "you can pray to God if you're still alive to talk about it."

Sandy Klopp just comes back for more, and treats the horses more tenderly than ever.

"I can go in and talk to horses and shoe 'em where a man can't go near them," she said. "Horses are made mean by men because men have no patience."

Miss Klopp learned the trade from the late Ed Johnson, who taught her in a horseshoeing class at Kankakee Ill. Community College five years ago. He made her his apprentice. Johnson died in late June at age 63 after 25 years of horseshoeing.

"Some people want to be a doctor," she said. "Horseshoeing has the same attraction for me. It's an art in itself, and there aren't very many horseshoers left around.

In Illinois there are 300,000 horses and probably only 250 licensed horseshoers, she said.

That means more than enough business for Miss Klopp and a chance to meet people. A year ago, while she shoed several horses on a farm near Frankfort, Ill., she met Fred Hartmann. They'll be married in October.

SLENDER SMITHY — Sandy Klopp, 27, the "village smithy" of Monee, Ill., hammers a horseshoe into shape. Miss Klopp, 5 feet, 5 inches and 120 pounds, became a licensed horseshoer two years ago. (UPI Telephoto)

Soviets Finally Allow Marriage

MOSCOW (UPI) — Diane Nemec, 22-year-old daughter of a retired Chicago police officer, married her Russian fiance yesterday, after overcoming Soviet red tape that blocked the ceremony for weeks.

Miss Nemec, who is four months pregnant, married Sergei P. Iganshev, 34, in a 10-minute ceremony at Moscow's Central Wedding Palace.

"I'm so happy that it's finally over," said the bride. "Right up until the end, I was afraid they would do something to stop it."

Sonny, Cher Dissolution

SANTA MONICA (UPI) — Dissolution proceedings began in superior court yesterday for entertainers Sonny and Cher Bono.

The singing and comedy team separated earlier this year, ending a successful television and record partnership.

New Veteran Head Asked Of Nixon

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ray R. Soden, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, called on President Nixon yesterday to appoint a new chief of the Veterans Administration as soon as possible.

Ross Council Get School Plan Again

Proposed renovations at Katherine Branson School will be reviewed for a third time by the Ross Town Council tomorrow at 8 p.m. in town hall.

The school proposes to demolish a carport, storage area, house and incinerator and relocate a garage, storage area and two tennis courts on the site. Paving of what opponents call a "football field sized" parking lot is also proposed.

Councilmen approved the plan in mid-June but then reversed themselves two weeks later at a special meeting when attorneys for neighbors of the school threatened to sue the council to overturn its decision. Councilmen then pledged to review the renovation plans once again at their regular July meeting.

Councilmen will also review noise, scenic highway and seismic safety elements of the town's proposed general plan as prepared by James M. Campbell, planning consultant.

The noise element outlines state and federal noise regulations, notes that need for regulation is greatest in town center and residential areas and says timing for enforcement is "a matter of local determination."

The highways element calls for local zoning to protect state and county scenic highways and the seismic safety element calls for local, county and state cooperation to identify and mitigate dangerous areas.

Rohnert Park Budget Set At $1.7 Million

A 1974-75 budget of $1.7 million, about $300,000 greater than last year's, has been adopted by the Rohnert Park City Council.

Despite the increase, City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan said, a 5-to-15-cent reduction in the city tax rate is likely when property assessments are announced next month.

The 1973-74 tax rate is $1.57 per $100 of assessed value, and the Sonoma asssessor's office has forecast increased property values in the Rohnert Park area averaging 55 per cent, resulting in higher taxes while allowing a tax rate cut.

The Rohnert Park City Council Also:

PARKS — Agreed to end consideration of an ordinance, heavily opposed by local developers, which would have required them to donate 10 to 12 per cent of their commercial and residential land for park development. In lieu of land, they would have had to pay a fee of $1,000 per acre developed for residential use or $5,000 for each acre of commercial land.

GRANT — Agreed to seek a $38,000 state grant to help acquire land for the proposed Rapozo Regional Park.

BOWLING ALLEY — Heard James Decker of Santa Rosa outline his plans for a proposed 36-lane bowling alley on Golf Course Drive.

AWARD — Presented a plaque to Edward Bishop commemorating his eight years on the parks and recreation commission.

Texas Anthrax Spread Feared

MARLIN, Tex. (UPI) — An outbreak of anthrax which killed more than 100 cattle in East Texas may have already spread into Oklahoma. National guardsmen and animal inspectors today manned quarantine roadblocks in Texas but Oklahoma officials eased regulations on cattle movement in the state.

Officials said eight to 10 cows died yesterday at the Oklahoma City stockyards, and most of them were confirmed as victims of the contagious disease. Oklahoma health officials said all stockyard cattle exposed to the disease would be vaccinated and released. They maintained the state ban on Texas cattle.

Dogs For Blind

Fifteen blind men and women from across the nation will receive their Guide Dogs at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in ceremonies to be held at Guide Dogs for the Blind at 350 Los Ranchitos Road in San Rafael.

Bargain On TV Really Wasn't

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Lester Urbina, 22, thought he had a good deal when two men sold him a television set for $200 on a street corner.

Police say that Urbina took the set home, plugged it in and nothing happened. He checked inside the box and found it was empty.

Urbina told officers that the cabinet looked attractive.

Fairfax Trustees Wrap Up Budget

The Fairfax School District board last night approved a publication budget of $1,460,220, up from this year's $1,334,188.

The board said it will adopt the fiscal plan at 7:45 p.m. Aug. 6, according to Supt. H. Reginald Hammond.

Hammond estimated the budget will require a tax rate of about $3.60 per $100 assessed valuation, down 60 cents from this year's $4.20 rate.

The budget is up about $24,000 from the district's preliminary spending plan, since more money than expected was collected from taxes this year, Hammond said.

The surplus fund will be used to give employees an 8.5 per cent pay hike. Classified employees will receive a 13.5 per cent increase, Hammond said.

The Fairfax School District board also:

BOND ISSUE — Said the district will probably place a bond issue for a recreational center on the March ballot. A $750,000 bond issue was rejected by voters in June.

SALE — Said the district will sell a jeep and a pickup truck, and asked for bids by Aug. 6.

PAVING — Said the asphalt areas at Manor School will be repaved at a cost of about $4,000.

EMPLOYEE — Hired Carole Swain at $17,500 annually to head the district's early childhood education project.

BIDS — Rejected all bids for the district bus transportation contract and called for new bids by Aug. 6.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:45 p.m. Aug. 6.

Thieves Ransack Yachts In Boatyards

Thieves entered two San Rafael boatyards Monday or yesterday, ransacking yacht cabins and stealing electronic equipment.

San Rafael police said tape decks were taken from two yachts under repair at Harbor Boat Sales, 377 Francisco Boulevard, and a portable radio was taken from one of two boats ransacked at Golden Gate Yacht Sales, 620 Grand Avenue.

Ray Seeks Delay On Trial Hearing

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Attorneys for James Earl Ray asked a federal judge yesterday to delay a scheduled Sept. 30 hearing on Ray's motion for a new trial for three weeks to give them time to gather witnesses.

Ray's attorneys contend he was coerced into pleading guilty to the April 4, 1968, assassination of Martin Luther King Jr. by his former attorney, Percy Foreman of Houston, and author William Bradford Huie of Birmingham, Ala.

Inmates Rest Case In Punishment Trial

SAN QUENTIN (UPI) — Six inmates housed in the maximum security Adjustment Center at San Quentin Prison yesterday rested their case in a suit over whether the center is unconstitutional because long confinement there is cruel and unusual punishment.

The inmates, who are all confined to the Adjustment Center, are asking U.S. District Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli to shut it down.

Final witness for the plaintiffs, Stanford University psychologist Philip G. Zimbardo, testified that in his opinion the six prisoners were ready for progressive release from the center into the mainline of the prison and back into society.

"The longer they are kept in the adjustment center the more difficult it will be for them to make the transition back into free society," Zimbardo said.

A San Quentin spokesman said the Adjustment Center houses the "hardest to manage inmates, usually those involved in some type of violence in the prison." He said the inmates were not allowed to mix with the general prison population and could only mingle among themselves during their three-times-a-week exercise periods.

Zimbardo conceded that confinement in the Adjustment Center did not constitute "an extreme form of solitary confinement."

Under cross-examination by Deputy Attorney General Sanford Svetcov, Zimbardo said he does not really consider himself a prison expert and had visited only three prisons in his life.

Svetcov also challenged Zimbardo's conclusion that the six inmates felt such a sense of hopelessness in the Adjustment Center that they didn't identify with the future.

Svetcov said one of the prisoners, David Johnson, had plans to work with minority groups and also had a job offer to be a law clerk. He said that another inmate, Luis Talmantez, was taking a history course and he said a third inmate, Willie Tate, was studying economics.

Other testimony indicated that five of the six prisoners had taken either high school or college courses while at the center.

The state will begin its defense next Tuesday. Svetcov said he expects to call six or seven witnesses, including San Quentin Warden Kenneth Britt and Department of Corrections Director Raymond Procunier.

Egyptian Sub Stalked Ship

LONDON (UPI) — An Egyptian submarine put to sea to torpedo the British liner Queen Elizabeth 2 carrying 590 Jews to celebrate the 25th anniversary of Israel last year, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said last night.

Sadat, in an interview screened on British Broadcasting Corp. television, said he personally countermanded the order — given by an "Arab leader" — and told the submarine captain to return to Alexandria.

Sadat was interviewed by Lord Chalfon, former Foreign Office minister of state.

What's in store... SUMMERTIME AND THE LIVING IS EASY

With warm weather, kids home from school, and vacation time schedules, summer is meant for relaxation. Simple, but nutritious, foods should be planned for the menu. Fresh fruits and vegetables are plentiful. Many make excellent snack foods for between-meal-munching or quick additions to a patio meal.

Cold, frozen orange juice and lemonade are much less expensive than most soda drinks and have far more nutritional value. Try adding less water to the concentrate, then freezing the juice in ice cube trays for "kid coolers." (What a long line of neighborhood children joined my own at the refrigerator when I passed out these cubes in napkins!)

For mealtimes, outdoor barbecuing is great. The house stays cool, and the whole family can get into the act. If your own backyard isn't large enough, visit a nearby park for a special treat. Use a special basket or let the children decorate a box for the picnic. Colored napkins and other paper goods make the picnic seem festive—even if it's just hamburgers.

It's surprising how many splendid entrees can be found in the frozen food cases these days. With a large fruit or mixed salad, which is easily prepared, the addition of one of these main course delights can make meal preparation almost like "dining out." I spotted Italian and Oriental dishes, Mexican specialties, and many beef, chicken, turkey and tuna casseroles, as well as the old favorites, fried chicken, sliced beef, and fish fillets. Use a colorful garnish in dressing up the serving plate. Red tomatoes and radish roses, purple onion slices, green cucumbers, parsley, and lettuce leaves, orange carrot curls or citrus slices can make the entree look "chef prepared."

It's a fact, that some of these frozen dishes are the same as served in fine restaurants, but available at Alpha Beta at a fraction of the cost. Many frozen entrees can be purchased for 30 to 50 cents a serving, proving that convenience is not always costly. Live "easy" this summer.

EARL L. BUTZ

Butz Sees Higher Food Prices Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI) Consumers can expect higher food prices soon, says Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz.

At a news conference yesterday, Butz said a report to be released July 31 will show a substantial increase in domestic raw farm product prices after a four-month decline, which will likely result in higher retail food prices.

The secretary appealed to reporters to do some "retrospective interpreting" when the reports appear. He said consumers should be reminded that a February-June slide of 18.7 per cent in farm prices helped dampen inflation by offsetting increases in industrial prices.

But he said the summer increase in farm prices, caused partly by smaller than predicted 1974 grain crops, is likely to ease in the fall. An increased supply of beef in the fall and winter is likely to bring a decline in cattle prices then, he said.

On July 31, Butz' department will issue a monthly raw farm product report showing national average prices as of July 15 compared to a month earlier. Butz said daily reports on some major farm commodities indicate the monthly report will show a jump from June.

Hard wheat at Kansas City, for example, was $4.38 a bushel on July 15 compared to $3.89 a month earlier, and choice grade steers at Omaha were $43 a hundredweight compared to $33.50 in mid-June.

Despite the price recovery, Butz said, current prices remain below February peaks. He said farm prices now appear to be fluctuating as in the past, but at a higher level than two years ago.

Earlier this year, administration economists predicted that retail food prices for all of 1974 would average 12 per cent above 1973. Butz said increases since January "have just about reached that level." He said average retail price levels for the rest of the year, "may increase a little more, but not much more."

Butz also said the United States will ship food to India if aid is needed to prevent hunger. "But I'm not too enthusiastic about it," he said, because of Indian's recent explosion of a nuclear device.

$3 Million Reed Budget For Schools

The Reed School District board last night approved its 1974-75 publication budget of $3,432,445, up $427,275 from last year's, according to Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello.

Giovanniello said the figure was down $2,809 from the tentative budget approved by the board in the spring and said much of the decrease stemmed from cuts in spending for special education programs which now will be paid for by the county.

The Reed School District Board also:

BUSES — Awarded a bus transportation contract for 1974-75 to School Bus Services of Indian Wells, Riverside County, which will charge the district $54,194 for the service.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of June Braden, teacher at Granada School.

LANGUAGE ARTS — Approved guidelines for the district's 1974-75 language arts program.

A Big Problem For Dick Schultze

Dick Schultze, a member of the Terra Linda High School coaching staff the last four years, is wrestling with a problem.

Schultze was appointed athletic director at Terra Linda High last week. The problem is that before the appointment he had planned to take over as head baseball coach at Novato High while still teaching at Terra Linda High.

Teaching at one school and coaching at another is not exactly unheard of in the Marin County Athletic League. But to be athletic director at one school and head coach of a major sport at another would be a MCAL first. The question is: will Schultze want to be the one to set precedent?

He had agreed to the Novato baseball job before the possibility of his becoming the Terra Linda A.D. came up. But his name went into the suggestion box after Terra Linda's Don Lucas decided to quit as athletic director and remain as head football coach. And Schultze would be the first to admit that when he applied for the A.D. job he didn't expect to get the appointment.

Schultze is a former star athlete at Terra Linda High who has returned to his alma mater. He was all-league in football as a Trojan quarterback in 1962 and was a two-year all-leaguer in baseball, as a catcher in 1962 and a second baseman in '63.

Now 29, he has been assistant varsity football coach and has handled Terra Linda's frosh baseball team. He teaches physical education, health and typing, but as athletic director would be teaching P.E. only.

In the midst of all this, Schultze is in the process of moving from Petaluma to Rohnert Park. He'll try to sort things out in his mind and make a decision on how he's going to solve his problem in the next two weeks. It won't be easy.

PAUL NEILAN, one-half of Hughes and Neilan Athletic Enterprises, the sporting goods store recently opened in Novato, sent in the results of that store's own balloting for the American and National League all-star teams and it shows that there are a lot of hometown voters.

It's all right that A's players received many of the votes of the 120 who cast ballots, but it's rather strange that some of the Giants finished high, such as Chris Speier as No. 1 shortstop and Tito Fuentes No. 2 second baseman.

The Novato voters followed the national totals pretty closely in the American League, picking Chicago's Dick Allen at first base, Minnesota's Rod Carew at second, A's shortstop Campy Campaneris at short and Boston's Carlton Fisk the catcher. Leading vote getter among the outfielders, of course, was Reggie Jackson, but the other All-Star starters, according to the Hughes and Neilan poll, would have been A's Joe Rudi and Texas' Jeff Burroughs. They hit it right with Burroughs, but the other starter will be New York's Bobby Murcer. At third, the H and N pick was Sal Bando who finished second to Baltimore's Brooks Robinson in the real poll.

In the National League the H and N voters picked correctly five of eight positions — Cincinnati's Johnny Bench and Joe Morgan at catcher and second base, Dodger Ron Cey at third and outfielders Hank Aaron of Atlanta and Jim Wynn of Los Angeles. The Hughes-Neilan poll had San Diego's Willie McCovey at first instead of Dodger write in winner Steve Garvey, Speier at shortstop instead of Philadelphia's Larry Bowa and Bobby Bonds in the outfield rather than Cincinnati's Pete Rose.

Back to the ballot box, you guys.

Strikers Look To Canton

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Canton, Ohio, one of pro football's historical landmarks, could emerge as the first battleground of the season during the players' strike.

The National Football League Management Council, which is representing the league in negotiations with the striking Players Association, said yesterday that all pre-season games will be played, even if rosters are filled with rookies.

The College All Star game traditionally kicks off the exhibition season but that was canceled and the next preseason game scheduled is the Hall of Fame game July 27 at Canton between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Buffalo Bills.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the Players Association, insists there will be no games played.

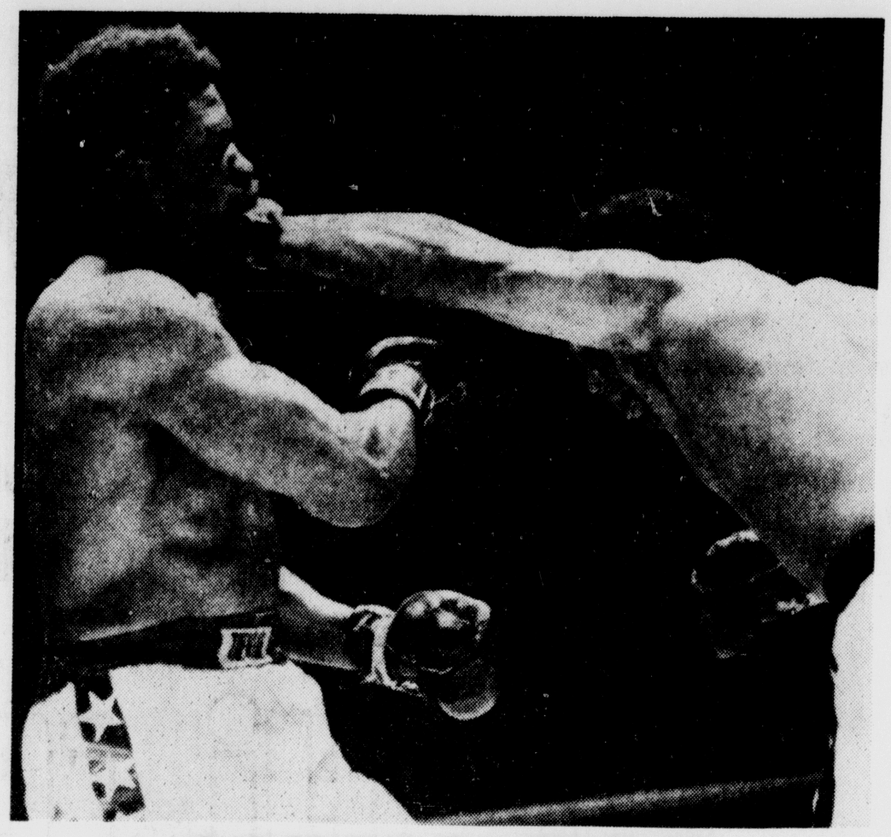

"There won't be any games unless there's a collective bargaining agreement," Garvey said. "The All Stars helped set a precedent by saying they wouldn't play that game unless there was a contract. It's one thing for a rookie to practice but it's another thing to play a game. We plan to talk to them and see that the game doesn't happen.

"We feel the owners will cancel the game if they see the rookies aren't going to play and unless I'm wrong, we will have a substantial picket line at Canton."

There were a few scattered defections yesterday Veteran punter Bobby Walden became the first Pittsburgh Steeler veteran in camp.

Also, players at the Bengals' training camp voted unanimously not to meet with Players Association representatives.

Cleveland players practiced without interruption from pickets but striking veterans ran into trouble with their self-training camp at nearby Beachwood High School.

ONE OF THE FEW FOR ELLIS

Jimmy Ellis (right) landed a square punch on Ron Lyle's face during their heavyweight bout last night in Denver, but Lyle went on to win a unanimous decision and move back into the championship picture. Lyle, who weighed 215½, now has a 28-1-1 ring record while Ellis, former world champion who weighed in at 194, now is 39-10-1.

Glad Tidings For Westrum

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — When you have been going as bad as the San Francisco Giants, happiness is winning a ball game.

That the Giants accomplished, and with some degree of enthusiasm last night, routing the New York Mets 9-4 hours after learning Manager Wes Westrum had gotten the word he will be the leader again in 1975.

Gary Matthews, last year's Rookie of the Year who has been having his problems this year, lashed out four hits and drove in two runs while Chris Arnold, who has waited three years to get a chance to play regularly, had three RBIs and Garry Maddox had two.

Beneficiary of the attack was Jim Barr, a pitcher not used to seeing his teammates score runs. In fact, in his eight previous starts, the Giants scored a total of 16 runs.

"We all know the hitting is there," Barr said, "but we have to push to get it out. Maybe now we can get straightened out."

Barr, now 6-5, said he didn't have his best stuff against the Mets, but once his teammates scored six runs in the fifth he figured he had a chance to win.

Batting Coach Hank Sauer worked with Matthews in pregame hitting drills and Gary said it paid off in his 4-for-4 night.

"Hank got me to straighten up a little more," said Matthews.

As for Westrum, he said owner Horace Stoneham told him to "forget all the interim stuff" because he would be back next year.

"I haven't signed a contract," said Westrum, "But Mr. Stoneham's word is good enough for me."

A'S TRIUMPH, 4-3

Holtzman, Fingers Give Each Other Needle, Help

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ken Holtzman says Rollie Fingers, his roommate with the Oakland Athletics, is a pain.

And Fingers says Holtzman gives him a pain, too.

The two pitchers exchanged the needles after Fingers recorded his seventh save while preserving Holtzman's 10th victory in a 4-3 decision over the Baltimore Orioles last night.

Asked what he thought of his roomie, who fanned four of the six batters he faced, Holtzman cracked "he's a pain, and you have to live with him to know why. But he's a super pitcher."

Fingers, being interviewed on a radio broadcast, was momentarily defenseless. But when he reached the locker room, the relief ace was quick to join in the banter.

"He's a pain to me, too," Fingers said. "He ought to go nine innings once in awhile. He always says something bad after I save him."

With the needling about even, the roommates then passed out the compliments.

"We've been rooming together since 1972," Fingers said, "and we've always gotten along well."

Fingers, Oakland's bullpen ace who has been in 41 games and has a 7-2 record in addition to his seven saves, was in a brief slump until getting back in the groove recently. "I was strong and alive for awhile," Fingers said. "I was messing around with a fork ball and changing speeds, trying to get out of it. Now, I just try to throw as hard as I can."

2 Dodgers Head All-Star Staff

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers, who dominated the selections for next Tuesday's All-Star game along with the Cincinnati Reds, will also be well represented on the National League's mound staff.

Andy Messersmith and record-setting relief ace Mike Marshall were both named to the NL's eight-man pitching staff yesterday by All-Star Manager Yogi Berra of the New York Mets. Four of the eight pitchers were with other clubs last season.

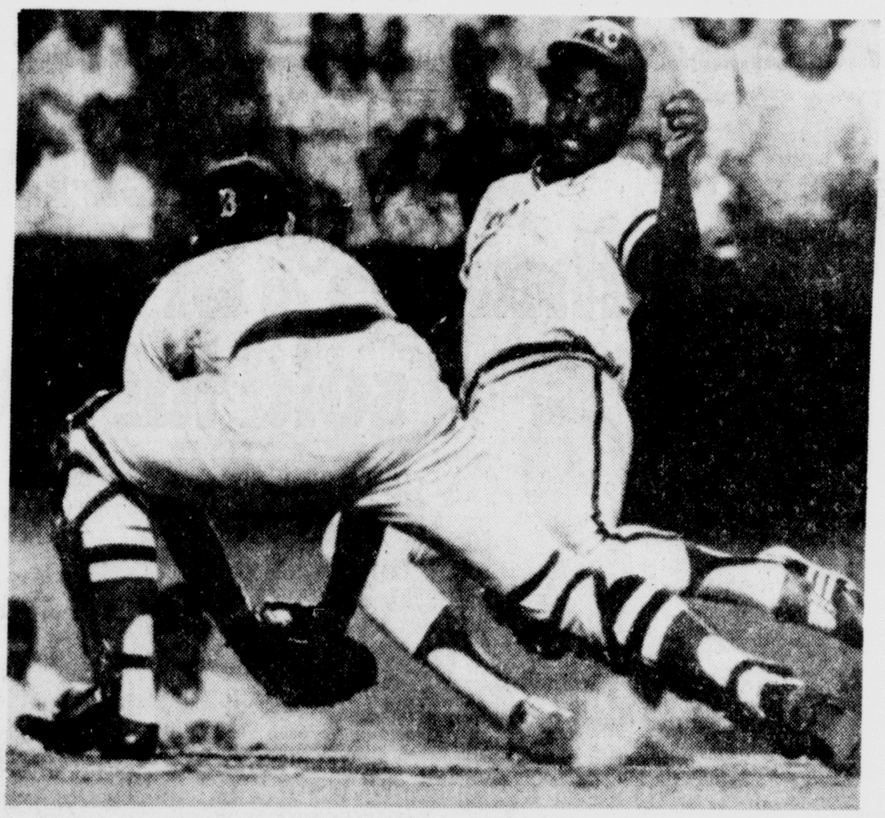

Marshall, obtained by the Dodgers in an off-season deal, set a major league record by appearing in 13 consecutive games from June 18 to July 3 this year. Messersmith, a hardthrowing righthander, is 10-2 for the season with a 1.96 ERA.

Three left-handers were also named to the staff. Steve Carlton of Philadelphia, Ken Brett of Pittsburgh and Jon Matlack of the Mets were selected. Carlton is 11-7 with a 3.11 ERA, Brett is 11-6 with a 2.76 ERA and Matlack sports an 8-6 record with an impressive 2.59 ERA.

In addition, Buzz Capra, the suprise sensation of the Atlanta Braves, Lynn McGlothen of St. Louis and Steve Rogers of Montreal were also named to the squad.

Capra, the League's ERA leader, was named NL Player-of-the-Month in June. Capra, 9-4, has been a surprise since moving into the starting rotation in mid-May. He was purchased from the Mets by Atlanta this past winter.

McGlothen, who has kept the Cardinals in contention this season in the NL East, is 12-5 with a 2.74 ERA. Rogers, 10-10, has pitched strong recently after a slow start.

AND A CLOUD OF DUST

John Mayberry of the Royals tried to score from first base on a double in the sixth inning of last night's game in Kansas City, but Boston catcher Bob Montgomery took the throw and tagged him out. Kansas City won, 5-4. See baseball roundup, page 29.

Santa Rosa Takes Ruth Tournament

SANTA ROSA — Members of the Santa Rosa Babe Ruth 14 and 15-year-old all-star team are packing their bags today for a trip to Stockton.

The Santa Rosans defeated Central Marin, 6-3, last night in the District 9 tournament at Doyle Field to advance to the Northern California tournament beginning Friday in Stockton. Like the District 9 tournament, in which Santa Rosa won all four of its games, the Stockton tourney will be one of double elimination, involving eight teams.

Last night's game was won in the bottom of the fourth inning when Santa Rosa scored four runs. Steve Schroff got his first hit of the tournament in that inning, a two-run triple. Other extra base hits for Santa Rosa, all doubles, came from Don Ballard who had three hits in four at bats, winning pitcher Doug Silva and Mark Sampietro.

Central Marin, trailing 5-1, started a rally in the top of the fifth inning and scored two runs before reliever Paul Matulich put out the fire.

Central Marin pitcher Tony Guralas, although stung with the loss, was named the tournament most valuable player. Also a shortstop, Guralas had eight hits in 16 at bats in the tourney, including a three for four performance last night.

Hamilton Nips San Rafael In Senior Baseball

Hamilton All-Stars edged San Rafael, 5-4, in a District 3 Senior Little League Tournament game at Albert Park last night.

Big inning for Hamilton was the bottom of the fifth when it scored three times, Rich Flaherty singling home one run and two others scoring on errors.

San Rafael's Dave Nichols hit a three run homer off winning pitcher Mark Bosia.

San Rafael will face Fairfax tonight in a loser's bracket game at Albert Field, starting at 6 o'clock, while Hamilton goes against Marinwood, 12-0 winner over Fairfax Monday, in a winner's bracket game tomorrow, 6 o'clock.

All-Comers Track Set At Sonoma State

An all-comers track and field meet will be held from 5 p.m.-8:45 p.m. today at Sonoma State College under the auspices of the Valley of the Moon track club.

The first hour is devoted to age group competition for boys and girls, and the remaining time for high school, open and masters men and women. Further information is available from meet director Fred Kenyon, 1609 Mariner Drive, Sebastopol.

Intrepid Defeats Courageous

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Defending champion Intrepid, taking advantage of a homestretch gust of wind, edged challenger Courageous yesterday as observation trials continued for this year's America's Cup series.

Intrepid won the battle over the 9.7-mile course by 1:24 minutes and the results should be encouraging to the Intrepid camp. Her alterations for this series had greatly improved her heavy weather performance.

Intrepid's crew includes three Marin men — Doug Best of Belvedere and Bob Norman and Steve Taft of Mill Valley.

There was no difference in distance between them until a quarter-mile from the finish where the wind, which had shifted to South-Southwest, freshened for Intrepid and gave her 100 yards before it reached Courageous.

Novato National Triumphs In Little League

Novato National Phillies blanked San Rafael National's Bank of Marin, 6-0, behind Marlin Warren's one-hitter last night at Hamann Field in Novato, one of eight opening round games of the Marin County Little League team tournament.

Warren struck out 11 batters and was helped along by Steve DeLoach's three-run homer, one of three hits by DeLoach.

Fairfax Shell of Sleepy Hollow Little League thumped Gallinas Valley's Odd Fellows, 13-1 at Central Field in Fairfax and the Elks Club of San Rafael American defeated Sausalito Oaks, 7-5, at San Quentin. Pitcher Melvin White won his own game in that one with a two-run homer in the bottom of the sixth.

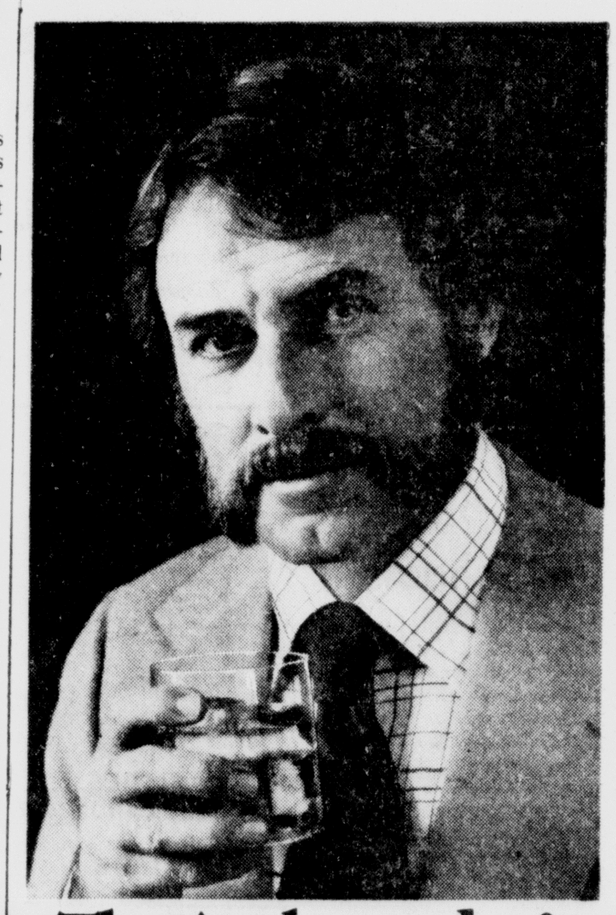

In other games last night, San Geronimo whipped Strawberry, 16-8, at Larkspur-Corte Madera School; Hamilton-Loma Verde walloped Mill Valley National, 17-7 at Hamilton Field; Novato American blanked Kentfield-Greenbrae, 17-0, at Rancho Field in Novato; San Anselmo drubbed Tiburon, 19-3, at San Anselmo, and Twin Cities outslugged Marinwood, 14-10, at Marinwood.

Babe Ruth 13s Commence Play

ON BASEBALL

By GARY HUGHES

Alonzo Perry's Giant Contribution

Does the name Alonzo Perry mean anything to you? It probably doesn't ring any bells but Alonzo Perry had quite a bit to do with the history of the Giants.

Tonight, N.B.C. is doing a special on Willie Mays. It concerns Willie as he is today, just having finished his career. The script was written by Mill Valley's Charles Einstein. Don't miss it. But what about Alonzo Perry, you say?

JACK SCHWARZ, the head of the very fine Giants' scouting system, happened to drop into the press room the other day after a ballgame. This particular locale has been the scene of the telling of many a fine tale over a couple of tall cool ones. With the likes of Garry Schumacher, Frankie Bergonzi and Joe Orengo usually holding forth, the hysterical as well as the historical background of the game has been covered, and in some instances, recovered. Schumacher's classic line that "we'll have one more and then we'll go", has been the signal for many a story to begin. But what about Alonzo Perry you continue to inquire?

Let Jack Schwarz take it from here.

"In the late 1940's the Giants, because of one thing or another, found themselves in desperate need of a first baseman. Jackie Robinson had already broken the color line and we had begun dealing with the colored leagues for ballplayers."

"NOW THE NEW YORK Cubans (a negro league ballclub) were owned by Mr. Alex Pompey. Mr. Pompey was one of the wisest human beings I have ever known. When our need for a first baseman became apparent, I called Mr. Pompey to see if he had anyone that might be able to help us.

His answer was honest and to the point. He said he had a good first baseman but that he really wasn't sure if the guy was good enough to make it with us. He suggested that we send a scout down south, where the Cubans were playing, to see for ourselves."

"Rather than send a scout we sent two, Bill Harris and Eddie Montague. Harris covered Virginia, at that time, and Montague covered Alabama. The New York Cubans were scheduled to play in Alabama against the Birmingham Black Barons. Getting the two opinions would hasten our quest for a first baseman."

"I GOT A CALL from Bill Harris early one morning. He said that the first baseman probably wouldn't be able to help us but that the Birmingham team had a young player who was very good.

Eddie Montague then got on the phone and said he was sure that the first baseman would be better off staying with the Cubans but that Birmingham had the greatest young player he had ever seen. He felt that the young man would be in the Polo Grounds in two years."

"A Mr. Hayes owned the Birmingham club. We contacted him about his young player and were informed that the Braves had already offered $7,500 for him and another $7,500 if the young man stayed for 30 days. If he didn't he'd be returned.

Hayes did say that though it was a fair offer he didn't like to make deals contingent on a player making it for a set amount of time. It was for this reason that he accepted our offer of $10,000 cash for Willie Mays."

I'm sure you can guess who the first baseman of the New York Cubans was. Right! Alonzo Perry.

Gaters Fall To Denver; Host Riders

The Golden Gaters are back in the Bay Area today, preparing for tonight's match at the Oakland Coliseum Arena against the Houston EZ Riders and trying to ease the pain of last night's loss.

Host Denver edged the Gaters, 26-25, in World Team Tennis action.

Most of the trouble came in the women's matches, as Lesley Hunt lost to Francoise Durr, 6-2, and the team of Hunt and Ilana Kloss fell to Durr and Kris Kemmer, 6-3.

Dick Bohrstedt won men's singles over Andrew Pattison, 7-6; Frew McMillan and Bohrstedt took men's doubles from Pattison and Tony Roche, 6-2; and McMillan-Kloss won mixed doubles from Roche-Kemmer, 7-6.

Dodgers' Marshall Valuable Reliever

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Should Mike Marshall, premier relief pitcher of the Los Angeles Dodgers, win the National League most valuable player award in 1974, he would be the first "fireman" to do so since Jim Konstanty of the Philadelphia Phillies in 1950.

Konstanty, appearing in 74 games in 1950, helped the Phillies to the National League pennant with a 16-7 record that year and a 2.66 earned run average.

IN THE 440

Veronica Still Setting Records

The records keep falling as Veronica Venezia keeps running.

Last Saturday the 15-year-old high school junior from Terra Linda lowered her own best time in the 440 yard sprint, thereby winning the Pacific Association, Amateur Athletic Union Junior Olympics at Mills High School in Milbrae.

The time, 56.2 seconds, set a Pacific Association record and made her the odds-on favorite to win the same event at the Region 13 Junior Olympics meet Saturday in Reno.

Veronica also anchored the Terra Linda Track Club's 880-yard girls medley relay team that set a national AAU record with a mark of 1:48.2. Heather Hewitt, Candy Yamagata and Sandy Rapatz, all 15 and all of San Rafael, combined with Veronica for the mark.

Veronica, who runs for the Track Club after the season is over at Terra Linda High School, now holds both California Interscholastic Federation and Pacific Association AAU marks in the 440. She claimed the former with a 56.4 clocking that won her the state high school title last May in Bakersfield.

Jim Dillon, her coach at the T.L. Track Club, has no doubts of her potential, and complete confidence in her ability. "She's sure to break her record this week in Reno," he boasts. "She'll wipe it off the books."

Dillon forsees a 55.5 showing for Veronica, which would surpass by three tenths of a second the national high school record held by Sheila Ingram of Washington, D.C. And he doesn't rule out the possibility of her breaking the national AAU age group record of 54.8.

One other girl from the T.L. Track Club, Mary Haitt, will make the trip to Reno. She won a spot in the meet with her second place finish in the 100 meter hurdles at Millbrae.

OAKLAND — The California Golden Seals have signed top draft pick Rick Hampton to a multi-year contract that makes the 18-year-old defenseman the second highest paid athlete his age in sports, according to personnel director Garry Young.

Young said of yesterday's signing that only tennis player Bjorn Borg is making more among 18-year-olds.

But Young insisted that Hampton, star defenseman with St. Catherine's in junior hockey, is worth it. "In over 20 years of scouting, I've never seen a player his age with more maturity and ability," he said.

Marin's Hall Out Of Slump

Cliff Hall of Marin City broke out of a slump and Novato's Russ Dillon continued his winning ways in minor league baseball action last week.

Hall, playing for Newport News of the class A Carolina League, broke a one-for-18 slump with 10 hits in 24 at bats. He had a double, a triple and four rbis to lift his season's average to a respectable .274.

Dillon, who went into the week with two wins and no losses for Eugene of the class A Northwest league, doubled his record with a pair of complete game victories. He recorded 11 strikeouts and allowed 19 hits.

Other Marinites playing in the minors also fared well. Tom Thomas of Novato raised his season's average to .326 with four hits in 12 trips for the class AA team of Thetford in the Eastern League. Jim Wilhelm of Kentfield had eight for 24 in action with Walla Walla of the Northwest League.

Bob Long of Corte Madera, playing in the Appalachian rookie league, went six for 20 and raised his season's average to .294. And Tom Olson of Kentfield, with Anderson of the Western-Carolinas class A league, went seven for 29 with a double and two rbis.

Marin's other minor league pitcher, Dewey Forry of Terra Linda, saw action in one game with Waterbury of the Eastern League. He pitched two innings, allowing four hits.

Bud's Wins, 29-0, In Rec Softball

The question is: what was the turning point of the game?

Bud's Travel last night defeated Western Travel, 29-0, in a San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league game at Albert Field. And the game only lasted three innings.

Little Store defeated the Debators, 11-1, in the other game.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Tips For Boatmen Who Use Trailers

It's ironic, but some of the most active boat clubs in the country are based in the desert. There's a dry lake in California that hasn't had water in it for a couple of million years, but the boat club on what might have been its shores has a couple of hundred members.

Obviously like three or four million other Americans these active boaters maintain their interest by trailering. And the desert boatmen mentioned are luckier than a lot of us. They are within 73 miles of good boating water. Thousands of trailer boatmen go twice that far every summer weekend.

I'VE NEVER met a trailer boatman who felt sorry for himself just because he had to berth his boat in the backyard or garage. Most of them like the idea because they can pick and choose their waterways.

Many recent surveys by boating groups show conclusively that launching ramps, not marinas and docks, are the most urgently wanted facilities by the boating fraternity.

It's a fact that many boating facilities on the drawing boards today allow more space for parking cars and trailers than they do for mooring craft in the water.

Trailers are changing, too, as more are being designed to match a specific boat or hull shape. Many more are being built for sailboats, particularly the kind of light speedy sailing craft with centerboards or retractable fin keels that are becoming popular.

IT'S NO HARDER to trailer a sailboat than a power boat and the same basic rule for selecting a trailer still applies . . . make sure the trailer fits the boat. Don't get a trailer which is too small, too short or too narrow. Make sure the boat has adequate support so that it will maintain the shape the naval architect built into it.

There's one major thing to look for in a sailboat trailer and that's a good mast chock (or similar device) for holding the mast while under way on the road.

Imagine the terrifying possibilities of a 20-foot mast breaking loose while you are belting along the highway at 60 mph. Another thing with the long mast, don't let it protrude over the stern too far or it may increase the over-all length of the car and trailer beyond the legal limit. In most states this is 50 feet, but it's wise to check your own state law and the laws of other neighboring states in which you might operate.

There's a lot to trailering as indicated by some of the questions we've been asked:

Q. How strong must trailer safety chains be? How do I find out?

A. It will be set out in your state Highway Traffic law. Usually the description of the safety chains says that they must be strong enough so that the trailer will be held if the primary connection to the car is broken.

Q. How big a sailboat can I tow behind a Vega, one of the new sub-compact cars?

A. Here's the accepted formula: the total of all — car, trailer and all loads — should not exceed twice the car's empty weight. For instance, if the car weighs 1,600 lbs. empty and two passengers and baggage weigh 400 lbs. (total 2,000 lbs.), the trailer with it's load can weigh 1,200 lbs., to reach the allowable overall weight of 3,200 lbs. You could tow a 19' Lightning class boat, weight 700 lbs. This would allow 500 lbs. for trailer and gear.

Q. I'm told that sailboats break loose from trailers more easily than power boats. Is it true?

A. I think it has been true in the past because people were learning to adapt trailers to the different shape of sailing craft. There is one thing, most power boats on trailers have tie-downs only at the stern, depending on the winch line to keep the bows down. But experienced sail-trailer boaters recommend tying down a sailboat at the front as well as the back, particularly if it has any kind of overhang.

Arnold Ponders The WFL

HOUSTON (UPI) — Steve Arnold of Corte Madera, owner of the World Football League Houston Texans, says it will take time for the new team to jell but he expects it to happen.

"By design we have put together a veteran team," the 36-year-old lawyer said yesterday. "Some of the players we have haven't played for a year or two. It's going to take them a few games to get back in the swing of things."

The Texane lost their opening game last week to the Chicago Fire 17-0. They meet the Philadelphia Bell tonight in Houston.

Other WFL games tonight find Birmingham at New York, Florida at Detroit, Jacksonville at Chicago and the Hawaiians at Southern California. Tomorrow night's televised game is Portland at Memphis.

WFL officials are especially interested in the Birmingham-New York game, which will give a clue as to the league's popularity in the nation's media center.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Record Doesn't Show It, But Rooker Is Starring

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Jim Rooker is pitching the best ball of his life but you couldn't tell by just looking at his record.

Rooker scattered eight hits to pick up his sixth win of the season last night and Ed Kirkpatrick's two-run single keyed a four-run third inning rally as the Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed the Houston Astros, 6-2.

Rooker has a record of 6-7, which isn't overly impressive at first but the numbers could be better according to Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh.

"Jim is pitching the best ball I've seen him pitch and his record could very easily be 10-5 instead," Murtaugh said. "He just hasn't gotten too many runs from this club in support or his record would be a lot better looking."

Reds 12, Cardinals 7

Don Gullett banged out three hits and drove in three runs besides pitching six-hit ball for 6⅔ innings to raise his record to 11-6.

Expos 8, Dodgers 7

The Expos nipped the Dodgers as they scored twice in the ninth. Willie Davis, an ex-Dodger, knotted the score with his fifth hit of the game and Ken Singleton brought in Larry Lintz with a sacrifice fly as the Expos scored two runs in the ninth inning to win it.

Padres 5, Phillies 4

Bobby Tolan singled in Dave Robers from third with two out in the ninth inning after Nate Colbert, Willie McCovey and Dave Winfield hit successive solo homers earlier in the inning to help the Padres down the Phils and up San Diego's record in one-run games to 22-7.

Cubs 7, Braves 2

Billy Williams drove in two runs with a double and two singles to back the seven-hit pitching of Rick Reuschel and lead the Cubs to victory over the Braves.

Milwaukee 5, Minnesota 4

Fighting broke out after Minnesota pitcher Ray Corbin hit the Brewers' Bob Coluccio in the head with a pitch in the seventh inning. Coluccio was hospitalized overnight. Johnny Briggs hit two home runs to lead Milwaukee's victory.

Chicago 6, Detroit 0

Dick Allen belted his 23rd home run and Jim Kaat pitched a two-hit shutout as the White Sox subdued the Tigers.

Yankees 2, Rangers 0

Doc Medich pitched a five-hitter as New York downed Texas.

Angels 11, Indians 2

Frank Tanana, who hadn't won a game since May 25, pitched two-hit relief ball over the final six innings to pace California over Cleveland. Joe Lahoud drove in four runs with a pair of homers for California.

Royals 5, Red Sox 4

Al Cowens bounced a two-run single in the sixth inning to lift Kansas City past Boston.

THEODORE W. ROSENBERG
Must define 'path'

Black Point Group Picks New Leader

Theodore W. (Ted) Rosenberg is the new president of the Black Point Improvement Association.

Rosenberg, 44, is a self-employed interior designer. He has lived in Black Point since 1968. He is presently building a new home at 177 Crest Road into which he hopes to move by September.

He thinks the association's most important responsibility is defining the path "between urbanism and open space" which the Black Point community will follow as the county population spreads west.

Rosenberg, who moved to San Francisco from Chicago in 1957 and then came to Belvedere a year later, says he loves Black Point "because it reminds me of Belvedere in the old days."

Asked if he feared that suburban sprawl would "Belvederize" Black Point, Rosenberg said that he was confident that people's new concern for open space made possible a rural atmosphere in a residential area.

In designing a community which retains this rural and residential balance, Rosenberg said "we feel a little bit oppressed by stringent county zoning right now, which fairly well ties our hands as far as moving ahead with any residential development at all."

Rosenberg is unmarried. He is a graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago and the Harrington School of Design in Chicago.

Other officers elected are Clarance Bracy, vice president, Julie Kranhold, treasurer, and Kathleen Taylor, secretary.

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Wednesday, July 17, the 198th day of 1974 with 167 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

American television personality Art Linkletter was born July 17, 1912. Comedienne Phyllis Diller is 57 today and actor William Gargan is 69.

On this day in history:

In 1821, Florida was formally ceded to the United States by Spain.

In 1936, the Spanish Civil War began.

In 1848, Southern Democrats from 13 states organized a "state's rights party" and chose a presidential slate for the November election.

In 1955, Arco, Idaho, a town of 1,300 persons, became the first community in the world to receive all its light and power from atomic energy.

A thought for the day: British statesman Lord John Russell said, "If peace cannot be maintained with honor, it is no longer peace."

Sometimes Two-Way Finesse Will Also Work With A King

Sometimes you can finesse through either opponent for a key card if you can only guess which opponent has it. The two-way finesse usually applies to a queen or jack but may work equally well when the missing key card is a king.

NEEDS THREE

West opened the nine of hearts, and declarer put up dummy's king to win the trick. South could count on winning two hearts and four clubs, so he needed three other tricks.

It would do no good to lead the queen of spades for a finesse or to lead the low spade from dummy and finesse with the jack. This would produce only two spade tricks no matter which opponent had the king. South would wind up with eight tricks.

TYPE OF FINESSE

Instead, South got to his hand with a club and led a low spade toward dummy's queen. This was a type of finesse. South was playing West to have the king of spades.

If West put up the king of spades, dummy would play low and declarer would later get three spade tricks. As it happened, West played a low spade, and dummy won with the queen. This gave South only two immediate spade tricks.

But now South had eight fast tricks. He cashed the rest of the clubs, the ace of hearts and the ace of spades, reducing West to the king of spades and four diamonds. Then South could lead a spade to make West return a diamond up to the king.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer, at your left, opens with one club. Partner doubles, and the next player bids one heart.

You hold:
♠ - 10 9 5 3
♥ - Q J 10 8
♦ - 9 7 5
♣ - 7 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Your partner's double is for takeout, but the intervening bid relieves you of responsibility. You would bid nevertheless if you had a king more in the hand (instead of any low card), but with the actual hand your best bet is to pass and hope everything blows over quietly.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Hold Arcata; Sell Collins And Aikman

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I hold 2,000 Arcata National (NYSE) and 1,000 Collins & Aikman (NYSE). I am not in need of income or funds at present and if you so advise I will continue to hold these stocks. — C.B.

A. Collins & Aikman derives about 20 per cent of its business from the automotive industry, an increase which has been experiencing reduced sales. Conditions have also been adverse household fabrics (36 per cent of sales) and in the doubleknits and hosiery segments of the company's apparel division (42 per cent of sales). In view of the stock's unimpressive earnings outlook, shares should be sold.

Although sale of Arcata's telephone interconnect system last year resulted in a 60 cents per share charge, it has paved the way for a strong earnings rebound in fiscal 1974. For the nine months through March, income had advanced 60 per cent year to year. For the full year, $1.35 per share appears attainable. The company's redwood operations are highly profitable, contributing only 10 per cent of sales but 50 per cent of pretax earnings. Arcata's printing division, which accounts for the bulk of sales, has been less profitable. Interest expenses on short and long-term debt bite heavily into earnings. Rising sales and continued profit-margin expansion should boost earnings despite Arcata's substantial debt-service burden. Hold.

Q. My daughter is working and able to invest $2,000 annually. She holds 720 shares of Energy Fund. Should she continue adding to this? — H.C.

A. As the name implies, this fund's holdings are in companies which are in some way related to the production or use of energy, although up to 20 per cent of assets may be in other areas. Major commitments are held in American Telephone (NYSE), Atlantic Richfield (NYSE), Du Pont (NYSE) and Eastern Gas & Fuel (NYSE). With management's increasing emphasis on direct energy source stocks, it seems safe to assume that the fund's record will be more dynamic in the future. This investment should be retained, but new money should be invested in funds such as Babson Investment or Johnston Mutual Fund.

Late Stock Rally Pulls Market Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market rallied strongly late today in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The demand for commercial and industrial loans at New York's leading banks declined last week, according to the Federal Reserve Board, and this might have been a factor in the late rally, analysts said.

There was virtually no news to stimulate investors who have taken to the sidelines lately because of concern over rising interest rates. They were encouraged late last week when most major banks held the line on the prime rate — that charged key corporate customers—at 12 per cent.

But there is considerable speculation the rate will climb to 13 per cent soon. Other rates have continued to rise.

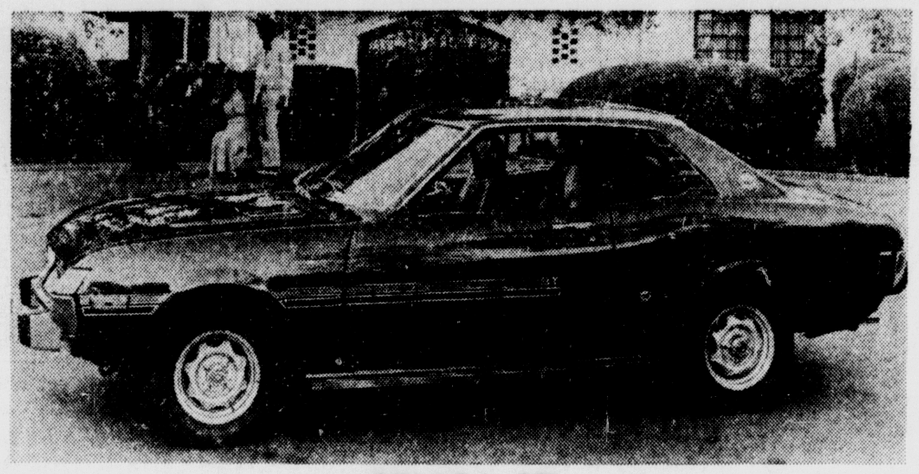

DuPont and Eastman Kodak, both components of the Dow Jones industrial average, were on the down side most of the day. DuPont reported rather disappointing earnings, analysts said.

Some of the oils headed lower. Getty Oil, Halliburton and Kerr McGee all were down during the day.

Gold mining issues, however, showed some strength as bullion prices rose on foreign markets. Dome Mines and Campbell Red Lake were pacesetters.

Silver Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Handy and Harman today quoted silver at $3.99 cents per fine ounce, down 6 cents. Engelhard quoted silver bullion at $3.99, down 6 cents and fabricated silver at $4.09, down 6.1 cents.

CELICA ST

Mid-year changes made in Toyota's Celica ST include styled steel wheels, redesigned vents behind the rear quarter windows, a new logo for easier identification, and some interior modifications. It is equipped with a standard four speed manual transmission and offers an optional three-speed automatic. Toyota also offers a Celica GT model which features a five-speed manual transmission as standard equipment.

INFLATION, TIGHT MONEY

Home Mortgages Are Next To Impossible Across U.S.

By LEE MITGANG

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's housing and mortgage slump has grown into the worst on record, according to some bankers and builders.

Inflation and tight money have crippled banks' ability to provide mortgages. Building material costs have skyrocketed and supplies are tight.

Bankers in Boston and Seattle say they're out of money for mortgages and a contractor in Annapolis, Md. complained recently he couldn't find nails for carpentry work.

With most consumers now largely priced out of the housing mortgage markets, John M. Wetmore, director of economics and research at the Mortgage Banks Association, said many banks now extend mortgage credit only to top executives of companies which do business at the bank.

"Sure it's discriminatory," he said, but added that there seems no other way to distribute what little money a bank has to lend in mortgages.

One such local VIP, who declined to be quoted by name, recently bought a $50,000-plus home in Glenwood, Ill., a Chicago suburb. He was a general manager of a local business and had tried eight lending institutions before one finally gave him a 7.8 per cent mortgage.

"I got my mortgage through what you might call 'influence peddling.' The bank told me the mortgage market was tight and I told them I'd help them to a certain extent with a savings deposit. I used money and clout," he said.

It's an ugly picture for most other home shoppers.

The Commerce Department says home building declined 11.1 per cent in May from the previous month, and 38 per cent from a year ago. Building permits for the nation declined 43 per cent in May from a year ago, and reached the lowest level since April 1967. Last year, 2.06 million permits were issued, but this year, according to Michael Sumichrast, economist for the National Association of Home Builders, the figure will be more like 1.45 million.

Construction firms must pay anywhere from 2-5 per cent above the bank prime lending rate, which now stands at about 12 per cent at most banks. Smaller contractors often pay even more. The higher interest rate translates into a bigger price tag on a new home. The cost of the average new home has jumped nearly $20,000 since 1970.

In an effort to relieve the situation, the Nixon administration last May committed up to $10.3 billion in credit to bolster the nation's sagging mortgage and home building markets. Some of that money, to be raised on the open markets rather than from the U.S. Treasury, will be channeled into the hard-pressed savings and loan associations that provide much of the nation's mortgage money. Must of the rest will be used to subsidize lower interest rates through existing Federal Housing Administration home mortgage insurance programs.

Bank mortgage loans are hard to get anywhere, and in some places virtually nonexistent. Through May, the nation's savings and loan associations granted $18.18 billion in loans to home buyers, down a whopping 20.4 per cent from the comparable period last year.

Interest rates on conventional mortgages for both new and previously occupied single family houses in June averaged 8.84 per cent, according to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

The board said rates for new homes compared with 8.74 in May and 7.79 per cent in June 1973. For previously occupied houses, the earlier rates were 8.67 and 7.79 per cent.

But the range varies widely from state to state, depending on local usury laws designed to prevent lenders from charging excessive interest rates.

Net Income Announced

Independent Bankshares Corp's net consolidated income for the six-month period ending June 30, 1974, was $628,522, an increase of 11 per cent over the same period last year, it has been announced.

Per share earnings (based on a larger number of shares outstanding) were $1.52 versus $1.53 for the previous year.

Deposits totaled $170 million, up 14 per cent. Loans totaled $124 million, up 23 per cent from a year earlier.

Independent Bankshares Corp. affiliates include Bank of Marin, Bank of Sonoma County, the First National Bank of Cloverdale and Independent Bankers Trust Co.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Raccoon Feeding Is Dangerous Practice

Befriending and feeding nature's creatures such as the raccoon can be a rewarding experience, but that rewarding experience can just as easily turn to agony for both the animal and its benefactor.

Raccoon feeding and its attendant problems are of such public health concern that Marin County Health Officer Carolyn B. Albrecht has issued this special appeal: If you simply cannot resist feeding raccoons, throw food to them from a safe distance. Do not under any circumstances hand food to them or let them take it from your hand; sooner or later you will be bitten intentionally or accidentally. Also, do not attempt to set out a bowl of food. A number of bitten persons reported that the animals were so eager that they "rushed" and grabbed the feeder's hand instead of, or along with, the food before the benefactor could pull his hand back.

EVERY BITE incident reported results either in distress to the victim or death to the animal, and in many instances both.

Within the past eight months, three individuals have had to undergo antirabies treatment because they were bitten while feeding raccoons in Marin County and the animals either disappeared or were never later identified with certainty.

Offending animals that are caught face certain extermination because of the need to have their brains examined for rabies. Thus, well-intentioned animal lovers may quite unintentionally cause premature death to a perfectly health raccoon.

THEY ALSO do the animals no favor by letting them become dependent on man for their food and perhaps multiply excessively because of man's generosity. Such an artificial multiplication can upset the balance that nature maintains with its natural checks and balances on the numbers of each species.

Dr. Albrecht reports that 56 raccoons were examined in Marin last year, and 21 during the first half of this year. All tests proved negative, but the animals must continue to be sacrificed in each instance regardless of the odds against finding them rabid.

While raccoons are not nearly as likely to have rabies as skunks and bats, there have been three laboratory proven cases of raccoon rabies in the county. One was found on Lincoln Avenue in San Anselmo in 1953, the second on Glen Road in Black Point in 1955, and the third in the McNear's Beach area in 1961.

ANIMAL LOVERS can contribute both to their own well being and to the preservation of nature's creatures by heeding the warning of the county health officer.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Dixie District Rates 3 R's Over 'Family Life' Courses

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Those who judge what's important in public schools by the volume of debate at school board meetings are likely to think "family life" and sex education are rated above all else by parents.

Those who judge what's important in schools by the content of education publications are likely to think self-recognition and getting along with one's peer group are rated tops by educators.

DIXIE DISTRICT is in a typical area of "new suburbia," with a moderately affluent population made up largely of commuters. All of its 10 schools now in use, as well as most of its single-family homes and apartment houses, have been built within the last two decades. Its sixth grade pupils rated in the top 10 per cent statewide on last year's California state tests. Its median teacher salary and tax rate are also within the top 10 per cent.

It is in such districts, according to popular belief in and out of educator circles, that innovation thrives, that "educating the whole child" has pushed subject matter into the background, that basic studies are sneeringly referred to by the sophisticated community as "the three R's."

It didn't turn out that way at all.

Westinghouse Learning Corp. surveyed 1,699 residents, representing 72 per cent of the families with children in the schools; plus 161 Dixie teachers and 120 eighth grade students. The survey questionnaire dealt with 44 goals, which turned out to rank, in order of importance, from "master fundamental mathematical operations" to "acquire ability to perform instrumental and/or vocal music to personal satisfaction."

HERE ARE THE top five needs, as viewed by the community: Mathematics, reading study, reasoning skills, written and verbal English, and reading comprehension.

At the very bottom, in the community rankings, is "have ability to get along with family" (one of the purported purposes of "family life" courses). Just above it were acquiring improved nutritional habits, playing and singing music, and physical education.

Teachers rated getting along with family somewhat higher — but still 30th in importance among the 44 goals. Students rated it 41st.

SEX EDUCATION (listed as "developing awareness of factors in human reproduction") was rated 38th in importance by the community, 35th by the teachers, and 33rd by the students.

That shibboleth of modern education, getting along with one's peer group — which is largely responsible for automatic promotions, educator attacks on grading, etc. — was seen as 20th in importance by the community, 15th by the teachers, and 35th by the students (to whom it is supposed to be overridingly important).

AND THAT DARLING of school psychologists, "positive image of self," was rated 21st in importance by the community, 20th by the teachers, and 12th by the students.

One section of the questionnaire sought to place the schools' responsibility for achieving each of the 44 suggested goals. The community rated mathematics, reading study, foreign languages, reasoning skills, and understanding processes of science as the top five areas for which the schools are responsible, in that order. Four of these — all except foreign languages, which was replaced by geography — were among the top five on the teachers' list.

ANOTHER SECTION asked for the biggest problems with which the schools must deal. First on all three lists was vandalism. Rated second through fifth by the community were inadequate discipline, lack of pupil interest in learning, financing, and pupil disrespect for teachers. The faculty members (not surprisingly) rated financing just behind vandalism, followed by disrespect for teachers, lack of pupil interest, and inadequate discipline. Students rated lack of pupil interest second, then pupil disrespect for teachers, inadequate discipline, and inefficient teaching methods and lack of parent interest (tied).

District Supt. Clifford W. Campbell was not surprised by the results. He said he had believed all along that people want a sound basic education for their children, and the survey bore this out.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Why Doesn't Marin Have Free Dumps?

I've often wondered how some people could be so thoughtless as to dump their garbage out in the country by the side of the road, until recently when I gained insight into this gross phenomena.

After phoning the "local" San Rafael dump, I realized it would cost me between four and five dollars just to unload my pickup truck. The last three counties or districts I've resided in (Santa Clara; N. Vancouver, B.C.; and Sonoma) had free dumps, so why hasn't Marin?

Is it because we residents are supposed to be so rich that we don't mind paying truly outrageous prices? I would be interested to know exactly what our tax money does pay for.

Gov't Corruption Is Top Pollution

Cozy as we are in a lurching, not to mention corrupted, way of life, we really must shudder with Governor Wallace at the thought of an "exotic new Left" in federal government.

Could be, for instance, that the best of all possible buccaneering can finally accommodate itself to the thought of an anti-war, prople-over-profits existence in order for the flag to fly proudly again.

Could be, as we look around the world — then what for you and the jackals, Governor?

With White House corruption the top pollution, good men can end it. Dwarfs still defend it. Temporizers extend it.

Ernest Gallo Cites Fact 'Distortions'

My brother, Julio, and I are distressed by the position taken by some groups on the jurisdictional dispute between the United Farm Workers of America and the Teamsters Union. This dispute has escalated to include boycotting of Gallo products, and some UFW boycott committees throughout the nation have resorted to false statements about our company in their efforts to gain sympathy and support.

Unfortunately, as it has turned out, we did not take firm steps to refute these falsehoods and distortions of the truth as soon as they began to be circulated. We knew Cesar Chavez to be a man with honorable motives and we had held him in high regard, personally. We also knew that he has encountered many difficulties administratively in developing his young union. We gladly gave him facilities and every possible assistance when he represented our ranch employees from 1967 to 1973, for we share his beliefs in the rights of farm workers and his aspirations to better their lives.

We realized that the inflammatory statements originated with the zealots in the various committees and trusted that (1) it was another administrative problem and would be corrected internally by the executive level of the UFW and (2) the statements were so patently lies, distortions and exaggerations that few would believe them. We now know that we were mistaken.

We now believe that we have turned the other cheek long enough. It appears that a number of groups have endorsed a boycott of all Gallo products in the sincere but mistaken belief that we are cruel and inhuman exploiters of farm workers and their families. Further, many supply an endorsement without inquiring about the facts; and many supply an endorsement of the lettuce and grape boycott only to learn later that they are also being credited with an endorsement of the Gallo boycott.

I will tell you quite frankly that this has been a saddening and disillusioning experience for my brother and me. Because we have honored and respected the wishes of our farm workers to change unions, we have been caught in the middle of a jurisdictional dispute between the two unions. This in turn has subjected us to vilification and character assassination. If there is any moral justification for this, we are at a loss to find it.

. . . The highly ethical manner in which the news of this jurisdictional dispute has been presented by the media in various areas has alleviated an otherwise distressing experience for us.

League Supports Ballot Measure

We are writing in response to a letter from W. S. Richards regarding Assembly Constitutional Amendment No. 40, the constitutional revision measure which will be on the November ballot.

Correctly, the writer states that if confirmed by the electorate, it would remove Article 34 from the State Constitution. Article 34 requires that federally funded public housing projects, which have been approved by local governing boards, must be confirmed by a referendum of the voters in the locality.

The League of Women Voters urges passage of this measure (ACA 40) for two primary reasons. First, there is a real need for constitutional revision, and secondly, local governing boards have the ability to make decisions on public housing.

The long, confusing and cumbersome California Constitution has been in the process of revision since 1963. The purpose of the revisions is to have a more understandable and concise Constitution by removing the highly detailed provisions and the clutter of the superfluous and inappropriate parts.

The Constitution should provide a sound framework of basic law. The Legislature and the administration should have the flexibility to adjust legislation to meet changing conditions and changing needs.

Article 34 is inappropriately included in the Constitution because there is a sound process for decisions on public housing without it. We agree with Senator Behr who has expressed confidence in the wisdom of local governing boards in making these decisions. Individuals and groups of all persuasions have the opportunity to inform their representatives of their recommendations through public hearings, which are held on all proposals for construction of publicly assisted housing. Such decisions are part of the responsibility of elected officials. The addition of a referendum adds an unnecessary public cost.

Realization of these issues may have had something to do with the fact that Article 34 passed by only a 50,000 vote margin statewide. California is the only state which has such a referendum requirement in its Constitution.

Changes Needed In Veterans Benefits

Significant changes are needed in veterans' benefits laws and in the Veterans Administration, in regard to services for Vietnam-era veterans. I am a veteran who wants to see these changes made, and I would like to locate other veterans who can contribute good ideas or useful energy in these directions.

For example, certain changes in the laws could free thousands of veterans to pursue alternative learning experiences of all kinds, not necessarily related to working towards a degree. This could include such things as carrying out a self-designed learning project, pursuing an apprenticeship in crafts, or starting an experimental living-learning community. These are only examples of the wide number of possibilities not yet explored, and currently denied to veterans.

Other areas are equally important. I'm particularly interested in setting up a nationwide skills-ideas-friendship exchange network among veterans. Such a network could lead to many good experiences, as well as to ways to get changes accomplished.

If you are interested in these things, and are a veteran, I'd like to hear from you.

Ford Is Acting Properly In Worldwide Barnstorming

WASHINGTON — It is unfair to suggest that because he is the busiest, talkingest, travelingest Vice President in memory, Gerald Ford is thereby trying to pre-empt the 1976 Republican presidential nomination.

He isn't. He has repeatedly said he has no intention of seeking the nomination.

It is believable because Ford is an unusually straightforward and candid politician.

TO THE SKEPTICS it is believable for an additional reason. He is completely free to change his mind at any time and, if he did so, he would not have to do anything differently in order to be the leading contender.

Ford is in just about the same political position as Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.). He will have to say no in order to avoid getting the nomination, and I suspect it may be harder for Ford to say no than Kennedy.

The significant fact which surrounds Ford is that everything he properly and usefully does as Vice President is exactly what he would be doing if he were an active candidate.

That is a utopian political position, and the Vice President is aware of it. It gives him no pain.

WHAT PRESIDENTIAL candidate wouldn't welcome the travel, the speaking dates, the applauding audiences, the fund-raising opportunities to win the goodwill of the party leaders which Ford has had during the seven months he has been in the next-to-highest office? During this time he has planed more than 400,000 miles, visited 33 states (which might produce an electoral majority), was a principal speaker at 75 GOP fund-raising events and is continuously campaigning for Republican congressional candidates who will not likely forget his help when he might want theirs.

THESE ARE HIS proper chores as Vice President. Every Vice President performs them.

All presidential contenders seek opportunities to go abroad to show they are on good terms with foreign leaders and are up on foreign affairs. Sen. Kennedy recently visited Moscow and Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) has just returned from China.

FORD WILL OUTMATCH them. My information is that soon after the congressional elections this November, he will, with the approval of the President and secretary of state, be taking a wide-ranging trip to a number of foreign countries. As it is now being discussed, it will take in Western Europe, the Middle East and Russia — and quite possibly Peking and Tokyo. Mr. Nixon made such trips for President Eisenhower, Lyndon Johnson made such trips for J.F.K. They are a proper function of the Vice President. They do two things. They consolidate good relations and they help prepare the Vice President if he ever has to succeed to the Presidency.

SOME COMMENTATORS have reported that there are strained relations between Ford and Mr. Nixon over Watergate. I find no such evidence. They have talked at length about Watergate and the President is not distressed because of Ford's divergent views.

My guess is that Mr. Nixon wants Ford to be the 1976 nominee and is already trying to enhance his opportunities. The President certainly needed no introduction when he got off his plane at Loring Air Base in Maine, after his trip to Russia. But he went out of his way to share with the Vice President his large and ready-made audience.

Uncontrolled Strip Mining Destroys Homes And People

WASHINGTON — Over here, we have the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the National Coal Assn., the Peabody Coal Co., the Island Creek Coal Co., all the rest of the coal companies, the electric utility companies and the President of the United States.

Over here, we have Roy Owens and Lawrence Mitchem of Eureka Hollow, W. Va.; Mrs. Elsie Ferguson of Fort Pierce, Fla., formerly of Eckman, W. Va.; Herschel New of Baisden, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Mullins of Slate Creek, Va.; the late Mrs. Alice Fugate of Grunday, Va.; Ransome Meade of Brushy Ridge, Va.; Thelma Cornett of Linefork, Ky., and thousands of others of similar station in life.

WE ALREADY KNOW a lot, though still not enough, about the financial status and political connections of the first group. Not so the second. But without demanding full financial disclosure from each of those individuals, I would doubt that any one of them is worth $20,000 net.

What the Mitchems, News, Fugates, Cornetts and their kinfolk have been doing all these generations is not accumulating wealth or lobbying expertise but merely fighting our wars, paying taxes, squeezing a few potatoes and string beans out of their hard-scrabble farms — and being victimized by the strip mining of coal.

This was the lineup — the President, the coal and electric companies and the chamber of commerce on one side, and the unorganized people on the other — as the House met this week to vote on a strip-mining-control bill. Its members could choose among (1) a strong bill, gradually to abolish stripping; (2) a committee bill, to impose some regulations but not soon enough; (3) a farce of a bill, so meaningless as to have the approval of even the pro-stripping lobby, and (4) no bill at all.

THE COAL AND utilities industries have been lobbying at full voltage against genuine controls since long before the Senate passed a companion bill last fall. The White House has made clear Mr. Nixon's support for the industry position. Only lately has the chamber of commerce's role in this effort become known.

Rep. Patsy Mink (D-Hawaii), chairwoman of the mining subcommittee, discovered that the chamber sent out a 20-minute taped program of what she calls "barefaced lobbying" to more than 800 radio stations. Of course, it is against tough controls — in fact, its main star is Rep. Craig Hosmer (R-Calif.), sponsor of the industry-approved measure. Not only is the tape free of charge, it masquerades as "public service" programming. Mrs. Mink said that, unless the stations using it agreed to run her taped response to it, she would seek action by the Federal Communications Commission.

THE RANK-AND-FILE citizens against stripping have no taping facilities. They write letters to their country weekly papers or talk to their congressmen if they happen to come around. In case after case, they relate how their hillside farms, their homes, their very lives are snuffed out by callous stripping.

Skeptics might do well to interview Mrs. Alice Fugate's widower. When blasting from a strip mine worked close to their house, her husband went up the slope to ask the operators to be more careful. When he came down his wife was dead, crushed by a boulder that had rolled down the hillside.

Those talking about the wonders of "reclamation" of stripped land should call Thelma Cornett as a witness.

"We have proof for anyone to see that the land in these mountains, when they have once been augered and stripped, can never be reclaimed, and it also ruins what level land and garden spots we have at the foot of these mountains," she wrote to the Mountain Eagle in Whitesburg, Ky.

And anyone doubtful about whether these people are serious should shake hands with Ransome Meade. After a 36-inch boulder dug into his yard from above, he said, "The strip miners shoot at me with boulders, but of course it would be against the law for me to shoot back at them. Isn't that a double standard? Of course, I'm a pacifist and wouldn't shoot at anybody, but is that really fair?"

Congressmen have a chance this week to record their replies.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

July 17, 1964

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, in a speech accepting the Republican nomination for president, declared: "Extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice."

A U.S. enlisted man was killed by Viet Cong fire in the Mekong Delta in Vietnam, the 159th U.S. death in action in the Vietnam War.

20 YEARS AGO

July 17, 1954

George (Machine Gun) Kelly, serving a life sentence for the kidnaping of Oklahoma City oil man Charles F. Urschel, died in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kans.

There was speculation in baseball circles as to whether Walter Alston would last out the season as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, because of the team's severe slump.

WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .

"Well, all I know is just what little testimony I read in the papers every day. If a man is not testifying about oil, or bonds, or votes, why, he is testifying about coal, or railroad rates, or miner's wages, or something.

"My school for public testifying that I wrote you about is gathering recruits every day. Men that had no idea they would be called on a month ago, are now enlisting for short courses in my school." April 8, 1928.

In Washington they're saying the agreements reached at the Moscow summit meeting were better than nothing, but it was a close contest.

If they keep trying to hang things on the President's friends, the White House may soon issue a statement saying, "Bebe WHO?"

The way the Nixon people fouled up that $100,000, Howard Hughes may never let them touch his petty cash fund again.

Washington fairy tale: The milk producers have learned their lesson. This year they're giving money only if they can be sure milk supports will be reduced.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By MARY LEYDECKER

Even The Cows Change Color To Satisfy Consumers' Taste

Ever wonder why most of the cows you see grazing peacefully on West Marin and Southern Sonoma county hills are black and white?

If you have a few years under your belt, you probably have a memory tucked away of a nice brown and white jersey or a golden guernsey cow who was the source of good, rich milk in your childhood.

But those cud-chewing old girls are persona non grata these days.

IT'S TRUE THAT their reputation for turning out rich milk was a deserved one. In fact, according to the dictionary, both jerseys and guernseys were bred especially to produce milk with lots of butterfat in it.

But the mamas who used to encourage their children to drink their nice rich milk, who slathered the biscuits with as much yellow butter as they could afford and who urged the family to ladle some more whipped cream on their shortcake, have changed.

IF THEY'RE NOT on a diet, eating low-fat cottage cheese and drinking skimmed milk, they're worried about cholesterol.

Butter fat, once a highly desired commodity, is almost a drug on the market.

In fact, the price of butter, once several times that of what dairy ranchers called "its substitute" or "its competitor," has risen scarcely at all, even in times of galloping inflation.

INDEED, BUTTERFAT has flalen into such disgrace, it's a wonder that it isn't made into dog food or some other product that gets the bottom-of-the-barrel produce of this country.

Instead of the jerseys and the guernseys, the belles of the barn now are the holsteins.

These obliging animals produce large quantities of milk — and, according to the trend of the times, it comes with low enough butterfat content to please today's market.

SO WHEN THE broad-bottomed shopper bellies up to the dairy section and gathers up her low fat cottage cheese and milk, she can take the responsibility for the change in the cows' colors.

To paraphrase an old motto, "Never underestimate the power of the consumer."

Board, Navy Are At Odds Over Fire Protection For Hamilton

The Novato Fire Protection district board and the Navy are still at loggerheads over fire protection for most of Hamilton Air Force Base and Raphael Village.

The board on Monday remained firm in request for $214,865 per year for such fire protection and noted that even then such service would not be immediately available, said board member Ray A. Landi.

"The board feels that residents of the district are being double-taxes for fire protection on the base," he said. Residents pay income taxes to the federal government and taxes to the district.

The flight line has its own Air Force Reserve fire fighters, but the rest of the base is protected by firemen hired by the Navy, Landi said.

The Navy may get rid of these firemen and contract with the Novato District for fire protection, he said. However, the Novato district could not provide such service until its Ignacio Station is constructed, he said.

At its July 1 meeting the board authorized starting deannexation proceedings to cut the base from the fire district. Landi said that if it does, it will be held in abeyance until such time as the district can come to an agreement with the Navy or fail in an attempt to reach an agreement on fire protection.

The Novato Fire Protection District board also:

FAIR — Discussed but did not reach an agreement to furnish fire protection to the Renaissance Pleasure Faire in Black Point.

AMBULANCES — Heard a report from the Ambulance committee that the three ambulances which the district contemplates buying will cost approximately $17,000 each, and a report from insurance carrier Paul Terry that insurance on the ambulances will run about $1,100 a year on each ambulance, expected to be in service about Jan. 1.

CONTRACT — Awarded a $700 contract to Lockton-Grippe and Associates of San Rafael, lowest of three bidders, to survey and make a topographic map of its Ignacio property.

EXAMINATIONS — Set July 27 as the time for the written examination for the 113 applicants for 14 positions with the district.

Ross Sanitary Adopts A $3.1 Million Budget

The Ross Valley Sanitary District board has adopted a $3,107,363 budget for 1974-75, a $283,874 increase over this year's spending.

The board adopted the budget Monday after making only three changes in the proposed budget submitted by Dist. Mgr. Ned J. Ongaro.

Trustees added $16,000 to the cost of sewer line replacement from Berry Lane to Ross General Hospital and added $500 each to the cost of a new van and car.

The additions were offset by an increase in tax revenues over previous estimates, Ongaro said.

Most of the budget will go into district reserves for state-mandated sewer improvements with $1,025,000 set aside for trunkline replacement underway in Ross and San Anselmo.

The district's operating budget for 1974-75 is $424,169, up from the current year's budget of $384,643. Approved budget amounts (with last year's figure in parenthesis) are:

Treatment plant, $133,136 ($108,940); maintenance, $102,109 ($80,663); administration, $97,700 ($82,292); and infiltration, $91,224 ($112,748).

Ongaro said the budget will require a tax rate of $1 per $100 assessed valuation, unchanged from this year's rate.

Agreement On Flu Shots To Older Persons

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Department of Health and California Office on Aging yesterday jointly announced an agreement on administering influenza vaccine to older persons.

An allocation plan has been developed by the two departments for the vaccine distribution, based on the estimated population of senior citizens in each county.

The agreement carries out provisions of a measure passed by the current legislature. As many as 700,000 doses of the flu vaccine will be given in the first year of the new program using a $420,000 appropriation, the departments said.

Good News For Dreamers: They Can Direct The Plot

(The Christian Science Monitor News Service
Copyright 1974 The Christian Science Publishing Society))

There was a time when those of us especially gifted at dreaming —well, why be modest? — had to conceal our talent. The law of Freud seemed out to prosecute us poor superdreamers. Dreams, so the Freudians assumed, were pent-up repressions sneaking out of their clammy detention cells while the superego slept.

At every party furtive, uncreative people lurked, murmuring in bad Viennese accents: "Uh-huh. I see. You dream of high places, you say? Very interesting . . ."

Dream analysis invariably was bad news. No matter what your favorite nighttime plot, a nasty interpretation for it stood ready and waiting.

GOOD NEWS at last, fellow champion-dreamers. In a recent issue of Psychology Today, David B. Cohen suggests that Jung was nearer the mark than Freud when he wrote: "The dream is the small hidden door in the deepest and most intimate sanctum of the soul." Meaning, dreams aren't necessarily man's demons staging a Walpurgis Night. Good Guys as well as Bad Guys are down there in the underground world of sleep.

MOST EXPERT dreamers could have told Dr. Cohen that. For dreams are more controlled than non-dreamers suspect. In fact, before a certain kind of dreamer falls asleep, he rather consciously has a script in mind. Sleep is the signal for him to pick up his director's megaphone and cry: "Let 'em roll!" Then, if he is between the ages of 8 and 13, he dreams of striking out Hank Aaron in the last of the ninth on three straight pitches. Bases loaded, of course. After his final hapless swing, Hank says softly in that nice Southern accent: "Wow, kid! I never saw a ball hop like that."

This is the Walter Mitty fantasy — almost a daydream but not quite.

IN A SECOND kind of dream, the dreamer may still be the star —to carry out the cinematic metaphor — but he is no longer the director. In fact, he no longer really knows the script. He can feel himself trying to keep things under control, trying to make it all come out right. But there he is — one blue, one brown sock on; he forgot to shave; and (what do you know?) he's wearing this old checked suit he gave to the Goodwill at least seven years ago.

Dreaming the second kind of dream is like driving down a narrow winding road at ever-accelerating speeds in a 1959 car whose brake doesn't seem to work and whose steering wheel keeps winding but without taking much effect.

A THIRD VARIETY of dream finds one neither directing nor acting but in the audience out front. This dream consists of scenes as vague, as fragmentary as a bad foreign film. The dreamer can scarcely remember the content afterward. But he sees some great old faces and places this way. Classrooms and playgrounds, dated around the age of 6 or 7, are a regular feature.

Why aren't you present in this third kind of dream, except as the proverbial fly-on-the-wall? Who knows? But if you aren't there, neither is anxiety, and for that pleasure most dreamers will allow the teacher to mark their ego "Absent."

NATURALLY, NOW that dreams are certified not to be the proof of repression, we will all want to have only the fullest, the most richly detailed dreams.

Another psychologist, Ann Faraday, is helpful here. People forget their dreams, Dr. Faraday argues, not because the superego censors them, as Freud thought, but because the darn things are just so hard for us to remember. Her advice to those who want total recall: When you wake up, keep your eyes closed, and don't for goodness sake sit up.

PERHAPS — though we doubt it — all this revisionism on the theories of dreams will bring back a 1970 paperback known as "The Complete Dream Dictionary," a sort of snorer's crystal ball. Looking under C, for instance, the dreamer discovers that celery in a dream "speaks of prosperity and power beyond your wildest hopes." And if you dream of eating it, "unlimited love and affection will be showered upon you" — though probably not until you stop that awful crunching.

On the other hand, to dream that you are in the act of writing "denotes a blunder of the head that will cause a loss in business." Laugh if you will, but a lot of us journalists have to go along with that one.

Owner Of Snake To Leave City

KENOSHA, Wis. (UPI) — A 24-year-old woman who has a boa constructor for a pet said yesterday she would move out of the city and into the country so she can keep the snake.

The city council, in a move aimed at forcing Miss Caprice Curns to give up her pet, adopted an ordinance Monday banning wild animals within the city limits, except those in circuses or carnivals.

One neighbor told the council that knowing the snake was nearby had ruined her entire summer because she would not go outside for fear the snake was loose.

Miss Curns said she would give the constrictor to a friend "until I can move out of this city."

"It's insane to ban him," she said. "He's harmless and there's no reason to ban him except people's ignorance."

"He doesn't wag his tail like a dog or purr like a cat," she said. "But you know he likes you."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Skin Blemishes Can Often Be Covered Up With Cosmetics

Skin blemishes, especially on the face, never are welcome. When these imperfections are not amenable to treatment or removal, the person must learn to live with them or conceal them with cosmetics. Preparations which conceal the blemish usually lessen embarrassment and allow the man or woman to carry on.

"Covering" creams of these types are made by cosmeticians who are experts in formulating suitable mixtures. This is not easy because the preparation must cover and blend well in order to create a natural appearance. It must be durable and compatible with skin color, especially when used by women.

MASKING CREAMS are most effective when they cover a skin level spot such as a birthmark or white patches. Raised or indented scars usually can be moderately hidden by masking cream.

Masking creams include a "covering" chemical such as zinc oxide or kaolin. They are mixed with the ingredients found in ordinary cosmetic creams such as mineral oil, lanolin, paraffin, and other oils or waxes. Color is added in a wide range of shades.

Four pigments are essential for this purpose: A white and brown masking cream to hide the blemish, and a red and a honey-colored toning product to cover and color the layer of masking cream so it blends with the surrounding skin. As a rule, the finished product contains 60 per cent of the pigment.

SUCCESSFUL USE depends upon choosing the right color and perfecting the art of application. The right color is most like that of the surrounding skin. When the user applies his own mixtures, each cream is applied spearately. When the skin is pale or pink, the brown base is put on first. If the skin is yellow or tanned, the white base is used initially. Then a toning cream is rubbed in to impart a flesh tint to the skin.

There are many tricks in this field. If the masking cream must cover the bridge of the nose or base of the chin, a small amount of rouge over the cream makes it look more natural. A shading cream helps to create the normal shadow under the eyes.

PINWORMS EFFECT

P. W. M. writes: What complications can develop in neglected pinworms in a child?

REPLY

Itching may interfere with sleep and the scratching may lead to exzema or infection near the anal opening. The infestation tends to disappear after puberty.

TB SYMPTOMS

A reader writes: What are some of the symptoms of tuberculosis and what places does it attack?

REPLY

Cough, chest pain, blood in the sputum, fever, and weight loss are the most common manifestations of tuberculosis. The condition may be a fooler by not causing distress until it is well advanced. Tuberculosis usually involves the lungs, but may settle in other tissues such as the bones, kidneys, skin, larynx, glands, or blood.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Show Hostess Had Tape Made

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Television talk show hostess Christine Chubbuck wanted a permanent record of her on-camera suicide which horrified viewers of her daily "Suncoast Digest" program Monday.

Officials of WXLT television said yesterday that Monday's program was videotaped at the special request of the 29-year-old Miss Chubbuck, who died 14 hours after shooting herself in the right temple with a .38-caliber revolver.

Police said Miss Chubbuck's script included a news-like account in the third person of her suicide and listed herself in critical condition. She was in critical condition before she died at Sarasota Memorial Hospital 14 hours after the shooting.

Legislator Asks Turkey Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., urged President Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger yesterday to try personally to convince Turkey not to resume opium production.

Wolff said if that appeal failed, Congress should halt all economic and military aid to Turkey. "I think negotiations are still possible, but it must be done at the highest level," Wolff told the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Hiker Spends Four Days Seeking Help After Fall

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Daniel Baker, who tumbled down a 50-foot cliff while hiking along a steep trail in Griffith Park, shouted for help for four days.

No one heard him until yesterday, when a woman detected his faint shouts drifting from the hills behind her home near the park.

Mrs. Francis X. Olamie Jr., her son, Andre, 20, and a neighbor clambered 300 yards up a steep fire trail and found Baker swallowed up in thick, tall grass.

"The grass was so thick," she said, "we couldn't see him until we were standing right over him."

Baker, 32, said he fell down the cliff Saturday.

Test Tube Conceptions Bring Doubt

LONDON (AP) — A British doctor's claim that babies were conceived in test tubes and then placed in their mothers' wombs raised confusion and doubt in British medical circles yesterday.

Dr. Douglas Bevis, a professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Leeds, said Monday three babies had been conceived in this way, one of them in Britain.

Bevis said eggs were taken from the mother, fertilized with male sperm and replaced in the womb. He reported the pregnancies and the babies were normal.

Bevis personally was not involved in the three cases, but claimed knowledge of them. He refused to give the names of the doctors, parents or children involved.

Since he made the claim no other scientist has come forward to corroborate it. His secretary said Bevis was back at work in Leeds, inundated with telephone calls and refusing to talk to the press.

Two of Britain's leading experts in the field expressed doubts and concern about the claim, which could eventually benefit women unable to have children because of blocked fallopian tubes.

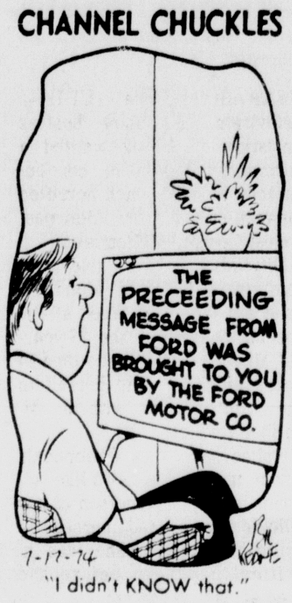

One of them, Dr. Patrick Steptoe, said, "I am astounded that Bevis should have made this statement. As far as I know no one in this country or anywhere else has yet succeeded in this technique."

Steptoe has been working for five years on the problems of fertilizing eggs outside the womb. He has conducted experiments at Oldham General Hospital involving some 200 women unable to have children.

"If this is not authenticated," Steptoe said, referring to the Bevis claim, "it could be very distressing for the patients."

Another leading British expert in the field, Dr. Robert Edwards, said in Cambridge, "I know nothing about this. It has nothing to do with me."

Disney Productions Plans Tahoe Resort

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI) — Walt Disney Productions said yesterday it is planning a major tourist and ski resort in the Independence Lake region north of Lake Tahoe.

Disney announced an agreement to join with Southern Pacific Land Co. and Sierra Pacific Power Co., who together own 9,500 acres in the area, in developing the project.

If the plan proves feasible and meets all governmental and environmental restrictions, the resort could be operating in about four years, Disney said. It would be built entirely on private land, although some of the neighboring land, owned by the U.S. Forest Service, would be needed for hiking and skiing room. Disney will have to provide an environmental impact report to meet state conditions.

Disney has been trying for 10 years to develop the Mineral King Valley in the Sierra Nevada, near Sequoia National Park, but has been stymied by court suits by conservationist groups, and that project appears to be indefinitely delayed.

Unlike Mineral King, where Disney had to negotiate with the Forest Service, the National Park Service and the state for land and road rights, the land in the Independence Lake area is privately owned by the land and power companies.

More Weekend Gasoline Service Being Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The percentage of service stations selling gasoline after 6 p.m. on weekdays and Saturday and all day Sunday continued to increase this week while prices remained stable, the American Automobile Association said yesterday.

AAA said 76 per cent of the 5,018 stations it contacted in all states but Alaska reported they were open and pumping gasoline after 6 p.m. on weekdays. Last week's survey showed 73 per cent of the stations selling gas after 6 p.m.

The percentage of stations open after 6 p.m. on Saturday increased one per cent, to 67 per cent, while the percentage of stations open on Sunday jumped two per cent to 57 per cent.

The survey showed no change in average prices: premium grade gasoline 60 cents per gallon and regular 56 cents. It was the fifth straight week that no change was shown in premium prices. Regular grade prices have not changed for two months, AAA said.

Texas still has the lowest gasoline prices, AAA said. Regular sells for an average price of 51 cents per gallon in Texas, premium grades 54 cents on the average.

Hawaii continues to have the highest prices, with regular selling for 61 cents and premium for 64 cents.

The number of stations out of fuel ropped to 0.2 per cent while stations limiting purchases made up 0.3 per cent of the stations surveyed.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Medical Care Documentary Is Ambitious But Flawed

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC News' fine "Close-Up" series takes a badly-needed look tonight at a question we rarely hear much about — the adequacy of the health care this wealthy nation provides the children of its poor.

The one-hour show, which concludes that such care is woefully lacking, deserves an "A" for intent. Alas, it also deserves a "D" for execution in its attempt at telling a compelling, difficult story.

It is over-written, dispassionate to a fault and weighed down by various studies that have all the right figures, all the strong conclusions and none of the impact television can and should provide.

"This is a program about a stark, painful reality," narrator Herb Kaplow observes in the show. "It's about families who find it difficult or impossible to pay for medical care for their children. And so it's about inadequate care or no care at all."

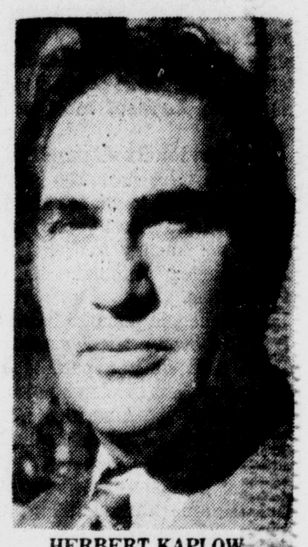

Moments earlier, an impoverished Appalachian mother has recounted how a doctor at hospital emergency room turned away her seriously ill son because she couldn't immediately pay for the boy's hospitalization.

She says when she told the physician she lacked both cash and medical insurance, the doctor told her: "Well, just take him home and give him some aspirin."

This is intended to be the reality of which Kaplow speaks, but nowhere do we learn any details — the type of insurance she meant, the nature of her son's illness, or even the name of the doctor and what he might have to say in his own defense.

It seems to typify a basic flaw in the show, a reluctance to stray from easily researched statistics for detailed stories of children who need and aren't getting adequate health care.

There are several heart breaking interviews with such children and their parents, but no specific follow-ups, no grillings of the officials directly responsible for seeing that the kids are helped.

Numbers 25 Hudsons Among His Children

WEST POINT, Va. (AP) — Joseph P. Jacks, a 70-year-old retired mill worker, lays claim to 31 "children". Five sons, one daughter and 25 Hudson automobiles.

The Hudson hasn't been manufactured since 1957, three years after the company merged with American Motors. But, says Jacks, it was practically the foundation of all automobiles.

"It's the most copied car in the world," he says. "It's also still the safest on the road today."

Jacks began restoring old Hudsons that others had given up for junk in 1960, transforming them into smooth-running, brightly polished roadsters. He now has five in top-notch condition.

The pride of his collection is a Hudson Hornet he has owned since it was new in 1954. Two years ago he drove it to California and back, "and it outran everything on the road. I turned down $7,000 for it. I also turned down two Lincolns."

And his 1954 Hudson Jet — "That's the first compact ever built. No one wanted one that small, then. Now, what do they want? Cars just like it."

Jacks admits that many of the Hudsons he's rescued from the junk heap might never get into working condition. Making the old cars run is his part-time hobby, and he makes almost all the needed parts, since parts for Hudsons are extra-scarce these days.

Jacks is proud of the Hudson's history. In stock car races, he says, "It won every time. It outran them all."

And on the highway, he adds, it still does.

To prove his point, he takes his Hornet out on the back roads around this eastern Virginia town, hitting the gas pedal until the car zooms like a jet. Jacks grins.

"When the people of West Point see a Hudson fly by," he says, "they know it's Joseph P. Jacks."

Senator Knocks Reagan Veto

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Democratic lawmaker today criticized Gov. Ronald Reagan for vetoing legislation which would have allowed high school students to smoke in restricted areas.

"Gov. Reagan and I agree that smoking is a harmful and offensive habit," said Sen. Arlen Gregorio of San Mateo.

"We apparently disagree, however, on whether locally-elected school boards can best determine how to control and minimize it in their own schools."

Under the measure (SB71) a local school board could permit student smoking in restricted areas.

He Knows Problem Of Feeding Six

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Here's some advice from a shopper who says he saves 25 per cent in feeding his family of six.

And he should know. He is James Keating, chief of the state Division of Consumer Services.

Keating said in a recent interview that storekeepers "are in business for a profit. I am in business to conserve as much of my earnings as I can."

He was doing it long before going to work for the state.

First, a "professional shopper," as he calls himself, must be single minded. Every store advertises weekly specials at or below cost to entice shoppers who might then buy everything else at the same store. A professional shopper will watch the ads and buy only the specials, he said.

A freezer is helpful. That's where Keating puts the 65-pound cases of whole chickens he buys when one market has sales. He also watches for bargains in large packages of fish and squid.

More advice:

Bread from a day-old bakery can save almost half.

Meat that begins to discolor is often reduced from, say $1 to $1.30, when it begins to discolor, but it is still just as good.

Mix your own powdered milk. To improve the taste, mix it the night before, adding the powder slowly and stirring quickly.

Buy fresh fruits and vegetables, not frozen.

Look for dented cans.

They're probably safe if not dented at the seam.

New Zealander Claims His Unit Killed Six Americans

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (UPI) — Did a New Zealand army patrol kill six American soldiers found torturing civilians in South Vietnam?

The New Zealand government promised a full inquiry last night after an emotional caller telephoned a report of the slayings to an Auckland radio station.

The obviously distressed man, his voice breaking, said he had wanted to get the story off his chest for two years, but would not identify himself unless granted immunity from prosecution.

The caller, in remarks broadcast live over a telephone talk show, said he was part of a four-man New Zealand patrol that found six American GIs "interrogating and torturing" civilians in South Vietnam.

"The civilians were bound and the Americans were hitting them with truncheons," he said. "It looked to us as if two of the civilians were already dead when we arrived."

He said the New Zealanders didn't know what to do at first, but decided to intervene when the beatings kept on. Two New Zealanders approached while the others covered from a distance.

The caller said a GI pointed a gun at one of the advancing men, a New Zealander "shot and killed the American" and then "everybody just started shooting."

The caller said two Americans were killed, two wounded and two unharmed. He said the surviving GIs put down their arms, but the New Zealanders decided to cover up the incident by shooting and burying them in a deep hole.

"We never thought we'd get away with this...we kept it to ourselves...it's as if the whole thing never happened," the caller said.

Defense Minister Arthur Faulkner said the New Zealand government would investigate the report "with the utmost vigor."

He said the caller did not appear to be acting. "It's difficult to tell, but I don't think he could sustain an act so long," he said.

(In Washington, Pentagon sources said a check of the records of the 300 American servicemen missing in South Vietnam failed to show six men missing on the same day in the same place under such circumstances.

(The officials said, however, the bodies could have been recovered during the war, and the men declared dead as a result of a presumed ambush.

Budget Vote Postponed In Novato

The Novato Unified School District Board did not approve a publication budget last night because it was not ready, and set 8 p.m. Tuesday for a special meeting to consider it.

Last Friday the state asked the district to recalculate its income back to 1972-73 in reaching the estimate for this year's income, according to Annette Conklin, director of publications.

The budget that had been prepared for last night's meeting had to be changed and was not ready for board consideration.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

BIDS — Set Aug. 1 for opening bids on painting Hill Junior High School.

INVENTORY — Hired General Appraisal Co. of San Francisco to make a state required inventory of the school district equipment at a cost of $10,000.

INSPECTOR — Hired George Haskell as building inspector at Hill Junior High School gymnasium at $1,200 per month when working full time and later at $600 per month when working part time.

MONEY — Authorized borrowing up to $1,000,000 from Marin County to carry the district until the tax money comes in.

POSITIONS — Established 489 certificated positions in the district as required annually by law.

REPORT — Heard a preliminary report by a committee studying year-around schools and asked the committee to continue its work along with staff studies of districts which now have it.

BLACKTOPPING — Received a request from the Pleasant Valley Parent-Teacher Association to blacktop the play area at the school. Cost was estimated at $10,000.

GIFT — Accepted a gift of $400 from the Hamilton Parent-Teacher Association.

States To Share Railroad Costs

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Gov. William G. Milliken and Gov. Malcolm Wilson of New York said yesterday that their states will share the cost of reviving passenger rail service from Detroit to New York City this fall.

Michigan funds making the Amtrak train service possible were requested by Milliken and approved last week by the legislature.

The New York-Detroit trains ceased operations in 1971.

Schools Told To Change Vacation From Easter

MIAMI (UPI) — Dade County schools have been ordered to stop scheduling spring vacations around the Easter weekend because the practice has the "direct and immediate effect of advancing religion."

The order by U. S. District Judge C. Clyde Atkins came as a result of a lawsuit filed by Leonard A. Speiller, a social studies teacher who is Jewish.

Atkins also ordered the Dade (Miami) County School Board to allow teachers to use as much of their annual 10 days sick leave as they wish for religious observances. The board had limited use of sick leave for observance of religious holidays to two days a year.

Speiller's suit argued that Christian teachers get paid vacations at Christmas and on Good Friday while non-Christians must take sick leave to observe their religious holidays.

In an opinion issued over the weekend, Atkins ordered the Dade County schools to set spring vacation over a "uniform established period that does not fluctuate from year to year."

However, he ruled that since Christmas always falls on the same date and has a "secular and indeed universal image," the winter recess may continue to coincide with Christmas.

A school official said the 1975 spring vacation had been scheduled for March 24-28.

PINT-SIZED COMPOSERS — Teacher Gerald Ginsburg points out a melody to some of the students he teaches to write songs in his Columbia Prep music course. In the class the children devise, compose, arrange, and write lyrics for their own songs. Not musically precocious, the children produce some fine pieces of work in the open, creative structure of Ginsburg's classroom.

Class Produces Young Composers

By MARY KELLY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK — Gerald Ginsburg held the attention of a group of five- and six-year-old composers as he stood at the blackboard.

The little girl playing the xylophone could hardly wait for her cue. (The delicious bass "boong" that rang out was worth waiting for.)

The little boy playing the glockenspiel kept a precise watch on the notes.

On the blackboard was the score for "Hello! Good-bye!" a song the children had written for a teacher who was going on vacation:

In Paris, I'll climb the Eiffel Tower.
In London, I'll visit the Queen;
I'll dive for treasure under the ice
And find the spout of a red-nosed whale
A picnic basket of tunafish sandwishes . . .

These children are in a special music class, yes. But that quality is in the way the class is taught, and not in the inborn musical talent of the students. Ginsburg, himself a child prodigy, doesn't single out the "musical" child. Nor does the class meet "just to sing a little song."

According to him all children today "want to be doing something . . . they want more active participation."

They get it in Ginsburg's Columbia Prep classes.

Columbia Prep is affiliated with Columbia University, though it is run independently by a separate board of trustees. And though it is not a "free" school, its atmosphere is informal. Originality is stressed in all classes.

(For the 10- to 12-year-olds in one of Ginsburg's classes that originality took the form of a mini-opera with a Greek chorus which starred a fighting women's liberationist.)

Ginsburg's students think writing a song is fun: "The children put play and adventure into it," he says).

But it takes a lot of work too.

To write a song, first the children work out the words and tune imaginatively. Then, on their miniature instruments, they develop the accompaniments. They talk over the rhymes, words, and musical structure; then they revise.

The ideas behind the song are important: "Children are sophisticated. They are aware of the world situation, aware of the feelings of people," says Ginsburg.

According to him, "It takes about four lessons to create a song."

His course provides discipline in reading music and in timing, he feels. And there is a great emphasis on exactness, in analyzing each note.

Ginsburg got his start in Lincoln, Neb., where at 16 he was the youngest audition winner to perform with the Lincoln Symphony. He received a bachelor of music degree from Oberlin College in Ohio, and a master's from the Manhattan School of Music.

But he got his ideas for teaching music, he says, "out of his own heart and soul." He got interested in it after becoming convinced that the public school system doesn't "afford enough oopportunity for creativity."

That certainly isn't the problem in Columbia Prep's music classes. Consider "Wacky Weather," a fantasy written by Ginsburg's fifth-grade pupils:

A tropical rainfall of snow
Will make the thermometer go
To twenty degrees down below
In Acapulco, Mexico.
The swimmers will freeze
In the icy-hot breeze
Which would probably please
An Eskimo . . .

Enrollment Drops Bring Problems

By KENNETH G. GEHRET
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Public-school enrollments are declining. The school population boom of the 1950s and early '60s began tilting the other way by the late '60s as a lower birth rate started to show up in kindergarten and first grade.

The U.S. Department of Education predicts a 10 per cent fall-off in public elementary enrollment between 1972 and 1982, and 13 per cent in high schools. These statistics spell trouble for local school districts.

Salt Lake City has felt the problem earlier and more severely than most communities. Enrollment is down 35 per cent in the last eight years, resulting in the closing of 20 schools to date.

Wichita, Kan., shut down 13 schools over the past five years for lack of pupils.

In Louisville, Ky., enrollment is off 12 per cent in three years and will drop another 20 per cent by 1981.

The elementary-school population in Pittsburgh, Pa., has decreased about 25 per cent from its peak in the '60's, and that in Buffalo, N.Y., some 20 per cent.

Many school officials see an opportunity to reduce overcrowding, expand curriculum, and add specialized activities or facilities. Dr. William T. Gibbs, superintendent in Arlington, Mass., views the decline in his school enrollment (6 percent in the past three years, another 6 per cent likely in the next three) as providing "relief in space."

He plans to build cafeterias and gymnasiums into his elementary schools and to "change what those schools look like," including combining several rooms into a resource center in each building.

In nearby Wellesley, where total enrollment has fallen 7 per cent since 1967 and is projected as declining as much as 20 per cent more by 1980, Superintendent Richard H. Goodman expects to seize the opportunity to improve programs for students who will not be going to college. Setting up middle schools and career-education programs are part of his plan.

School districts like these seem likely to view smaller enrollments as a chance for improving education and incidental services. Or for augmenting their normal activities by setting up preschool centers or adult education programs.

But the main thrust, some observers fear, will probably be to cut back and save money. Dan Pinck, school researcher and a staff member at Harvard University, expects a major move toward retrenchment.

Whether the trend in a given district will turn toward cutbacks or improvements may not depend entirely on the attitude of schoolmen and school boards. Other groups will want to have their say. On the one hand, taxpayers are likely to take it for granted that costs and taxes will be cut as enrollment declines. On the other, teacher unions will strive to maintain teaching and supportive staffs at current levels, without layoffs, arguing for smaller class-size and expanded services instead.

Few districts have faced up to declining enrollments yet, according to Dr. Harold V. Webb, executive secretary of the National School Boards Association. One reason is that the full impact lies in the future; most high-school figures still are increasing. Also, just what the local impact will be usually cannot be foreseen.

Nationwide statistics have little meaning for an individual school district. Aside from possible differences between the national and local birth rates, population movement in or out of the district can be critical.

Migration from city to suburbs, or from suburbs on the edge of a city to outlying areas, can mean not only more or less total population but families that are younger or older, with many or very few school-age children.

Further, shifts within a district can result in schools being in the wrong part of town. Some communities are making annual door-to-door surveys to keep posted in advance as best they can of these developments.

Some cities, moving against the national trend, are experiencing strong growth in school enrollments. Houston and Dallas are among the communities in this category, as are Atlanta and San Jose, Calif.

How long the decline in birth rates will continue, and whether it will hold firm or rise slowly or sharply, has school authorities baffled. One outcome is a wait-and-see attitude that leads to "mothballing" some empty school buildings against possible future need.

Other districts are disposing of their surplus property. While such sales bring in revenue and cut maintenance costs, there appears little chance for smaller school budgets and lower taxes in the years ahead.

Inflation alone seems likely to offset any savings in sight in the typical district. Further, new trends in education — some of them required by state law — are sure to increase school outlays. These include movement toward:

More widespread kindergarten and other preschool programs.

Greater services for handicapped children.

Increased busing for the above pupils and in pursuit of integration.

Emphasis on vocational training and career education.

The overall outlook is for more rather than less cost per pupil.

THAT OLD LIMELIGHT — The Limeliters will bring their old hits, including "Those Were the Days" and "The Far Side of the Hill" to the Marin Civic Center on July 21. They are (left to right) Lou Gottlieb, Glenn Yarbrough, and Alex Hassilev.

Experimental Plant Recovers Waste Waters Successfully

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Salty, agricultural waste waters are being successfully recovered in new experimental testing by the state Department of Water Resources, Director John R. Teerink announced this week.

Teerink said the tests at the Waste Water Treatment Evaluation Facility near Firebaugh have resulted in a 90 per cent recovery of the otherwise unusable agriculture waste water.

"The 90 per cent recovery success enhances the prospect of using treated agricultural waste water for power plant cooling, thus reducing the future fresh water demand and alleviating agricultural disposal problems in the San Joaquin Valley," Teerink said.

The process, he added, also has the potential for use in the giant desalter to implement the Colorado River salinity control program of the federal government under an agreement with Mexico.

The recovery process utilizes "reverse osmosis desalting," Teerink said, and involves a complicated ion exchange.

An over simplification of the process, he said, would be to compare it to a home water softener.

The Firebaugh studies, Teerink said, have been in operation since July of 1971 in conjunction with scientists from the University of California at Los Angeles.

Funding for the project so far has totaled about $600,000, with $100,000 coming from the Federal Office of Saline Water.

Teerink also said his department expected to design a larger pilot plant next year. That plant, he added, would provide the cost information necessary to evaluate the possible use of the process as a means of handling the agricultural waste water of the rich San Joaquin Valley.

Limeliters To Return To Marin On July 21

Glenn Yarborough and the Limeliters — recently reunited and on the comeback trail — are returning to Marin July 21 for an 8:30 p.m. concert at the Marin Veterans' Memorial Building at the Civic Center.

Yarborough is a former Sausalito resident — whose hit "Baby, the Rain Must Fall" is probably the group's best known song.

The Limeliters — Yarborough, Lou Gottlieb, and Alex Hassilev — broke up in July, 1963. Their music was similar in style and content to that continued into the later 60s by the Kingston Trio and Peter, Paul and Mary.

The reunited Limeliters have been touring the country in recent months and will release an album next month titled "Limeliters' Reunion."

Justice Department Sets Caseload Record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department has reported it had filed or taken part in 236 civil rights violations cases in fiscal 1974 — a record for the department. It said 32 of the cases involved criminal charges.

Numbering 27 more than in the previous fiscal year, the cases included 179 legal actions the department filed itself, 19 private suits in which the department joined as a friend of the court, and interventions in six suits.

Assistant Attorney General J. Stanley Pottinger said the department last month included these major cases:

It obtained a consent decree requiring the city of Los Angeles to hire more blacks, Mexican-Americans, and Asian-Americans in its fire department, and also open the fire fighting ranks to women and change the name of department personnel from fireman to firefighter.

The Supreme Court upheld federal laws that give American Indians preferential hiring and promotion status in the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Medvedev, Russ Dissident, Feels Changes Are Coming

By DIANA LOERCHER and PAUL WOHL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — Zhores Medvedev describes Soviet society as "inert in general." But in a recent interview he acknowledged subtle changes in Soviet policy toward its dissident writers, scientists, and intellectuals that point to a "slow transformation" into a less monolithic and repressive culture.

Medvedev, a renowned geneticist and biochemist, is the author of "The Rise and Fall of Lysenko," "The Medvedev Papers," "A Question of Madness," and most recently "Ten Years After Ivan Denisovich," a stirring blow-by-blow account of Alexander Solzhenitsyn's fall from grace after the favorable reception of his first book, "A Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich."

A friend of Solzhenitsyn's, Medvedev's own dissident scientific and political views brought him into conflict with the Soviet government and resulted in his incarceration in a mental hospital for 19 days in 1970 (a harrowing experience recounted in "A Question of Madness" which he co-authored with his twin brother, Roy).

Medvedev has been living in England since last year, perhaps as a permanent exile. After giving him permission to undertake scientific investigations at the National Institute for Medical Research there, Soviet authorities confiscated his passport last August. When he gave "Ten Years After Ivan Denisovich" to London publishers, they accused him of distributing slanderous material about the Soviet Union.

He wishes very much to return to his country, but he discussed the likelihood with an air of philosophical detachment, almost contemplativeness, which perhaps every Soviet dissident must cultivate in order to maintain his sanity:

"I don't know. It depends on many factors. I think that I must wait for some changes in the ruling group. Because in the Soviet Union a lot of things change in connection with changes at the top level."

A gentle man whose benign manner almost conceals the armor beneath, Medvedev retained his stoic calm throughout the interview, voicing neither bitterness nor resentment over his own plight. "I never take a personal approach to political matters," he commented in his thick, throaty accent. "I always try to be objective."

He describes himself as a "democratic socialist in the sense of Dubcek" (former First Secretary Alexander Dubcek of the Czech Communist Party in the short-lived attempt of 1968 "to give communism a human face"). Medvedev criticizes Alexander Dubcek only for moving too quickly. But he contends that "a socialist country can be more tolerant of dissidents and adopt a freer position" than the Soviet Union now holds.

ZHORES MEDVEDEV
Looks for change

The action taken by the Soviet government against Medvedev and the deportation of Solzhenitsyn coincide with "liberal trends within the party system," and together epitomize what Medvedev construes as the increasingly "contradictory" nature of Soviet policy.

" This contradictory policy ... is connected with the fact that the government itself doesn't know what to do. They try to experiment one way, then the other way; so there's the problem that sometimes they react irrationally and induce a lot of trouble for themselves. Then they try to take more moderate actions later, and people take advantage of this opportunity ... Diversity is very widespread but within definite limits, and many people are still outside these limits ... But the problem now is that information and publications are so diverse that the censorship and the party simply cannot control everything."

For example, the underground press, known by the Russian term "samizdat," is more active than ever in Russia and publishes in a greater number of areas: religious, political and literary. "If Xerox machines were available in the Soviet Union as they are in this country, the whole censorship system would collapse," observed Medvedev wryly.

Another sign Medvedev considers encouraging is that more writers are publishing abroad with greater ease.

Medvedev told the story of how Soviet nuclear physicist Andrei Sakharov negotiated a contract for a new book with Alfred Knopf publishing house simply by making a telephone call.

"Two or three years ago it was impossible to talk with a foreign publisher by telephone ... The policy now is not as strict, and communication is possible."

The danger of reprisal does remain, such as expulsion from the Writers' Union (to which each professional Soviet writer must belong to have his works published), confiscation of manuscripts, or deportation in extreme cases.

But the prospects of reprisal are tempered by the fact that "the Russian agency that was created for copyright is now in a very difficult position because they want some favors from foreign publishers, such as permission to reproduce technical journals; so they are afraid that if they start to persecute Soviet writers, they will suffer themselves."

Proscribed books published abroad often are smuggled back into the country, as in the case of Solzhenitsyn's, and circulate widely. While Medvedev estimates that only a "small fraction" of the Russian people have read Solzhenitsyn's books, he characterizes them as "an important and influential body of intellectuals" and draws an interesting contrast between the power of the pen in the Soviet Union and in the so-called "free world."

"Here everybody is free to say anything, and one person can say something very important, but his voice is very small because there are hundreds of others saying the same thing in other publications. In the Soviet Union a few people — even if they are not very well known — when they say something against the political system their voices are heard because they speak in a political vacuum ... In your country the number of dissidents is much greater — but Solzhenitsyn is an example of how much one person can achieve when he is very strong and courageous. He is quite a good example of how one man could withstand the battle with the KGB, (security police), the whole bureaucratic system ..."

As for publishing within the Soviet Union, Medvedev feels that there has been significant improvement only in the scientific area.

"The government now does not interfere in the structure of scientific research in the natural sciences. The government tries only to interfere in the humanitarian sciences ... Science has become such a big institution that the government can no longer control it."

Medvedev estimates that there are more Soviet writers and intellectuals living abroad now than ever before, involuntarily for the most part, since Russians are notoriously patriotic.

Medvedev reports that he doesn't feel "too strange in Britain because it has some elements of socialism," and compared with the U.S., which he recently visited for six weeks, he finds Britain more "tolerant and flexible."

"The difference between the Conservative and Labor parties is more important than the difference between the Democrats and the Republicans.

"In British political life there is a bigger margin between different alternatives. The United States is too uniform ... It has a complex about trying to save the world from communism. I have felt more pressure here from audiences to say something sensational and more of an attempt to force ideas upon me ... America is the Soviet Union of the capitalist world."

San Diego Tries To Open Its Port To Citizens

By LARRY WOOD
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

SAN DIEGO — There's a new mood on the waterfronts of the Pacific Coast.

Everywhere in port cities there's been a growing effort to share some of the water's edge with citizens.

Almost everyone likes harbors, and port cities are realizing that their planners must combine industry's demands for commerce with people's needs for recreation.

In the past few years, community action, city and port planning, plus federal government environmental controls have resulted in significant and exciting changes all along North America's Pacific edge.

San Diego is a city that's often led the way. Today the results of its endless, insistent concern for its shoreline is an example to coast cities everywhere.

It seems as if California's oldest city and fifth busiest port has always had a special pride in its setting as one of the world's most beautiful natural harbors.

San Diego has long been determined to keep its harbor and embarcadero pleasant for people as well as convenient for the Navy and shipping industries using its wharves and docks.

"An open door to the waterfront has been port policy for many years," says William Dick, director of community and government affairs for the port.

"There is a minimum of fencing and very few 'no admittance' signs to block access to the harbor. Recent developments and future plans are aimed at making the waterfront even more of a people place."

San Diego's success in letting people get down to the waterfront is outstanding. The port is a blend of harbor and industry with vistas and overlooks, bikeways and pathways, parks, esplanades, public marinas, and piers.

An attractive example of how they do it is the recent development of their old Broadway pier, a terminal for ocean liners that became outdated for commercial cargo use.

Here the city removed overhead steel girders, tore out railroad tracks and deck aprons. Then it built a pier-park that includes planter boxes and benches, wide walkways, a two-level Customs Building, ships' service facilities, and net-tending areas for tuna fishermen.

It is 1,000 feet long, 130 feet wide, and San Diego spent $685,000 to make it a pleasant place where people can enjoy harbor activity.

The Broadway pier is typical of the way the thriving Port of San Diego makes room for its citizens as well as for its business and industry. Their officials say that this blend "has proved to be good business because it attracts discriminating investors."

Authorities are trying to do the same thing in the northwest city of Vancouver, B.C, the Pacific Coast's busiest dry cargo port and the world's leading grain port.

Another city — Richmond, Calif. — has already completed a long-term harbor study and has voted to carry out a multi-million-dollar master plan for a port renovation.

Stalled Driver Gets An Assist On Rio's Bridge

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — At least 15 cars a day run out of gas, sputter and come to a full halt on the more than eight mile long Rio-Niteroi bridge, this city's Transit Department recently revealed.

For drivers who find themselves in such a predicament, highway police in charge of the bridge's custody will two the stalled cars, free of charge, to the nearest gas station. Besides being towed, the hapless driver also gets a piece of free advice: "Next time please make sure you have enough gas before crossing the bridge."

The Rio-Niteroi bridge inaugurated in 1974 connects the city of Rio de Janeiro to the city of Niteroi across Guanabara Bay.

OPENING PORTS TO PEOPLE — San Diego's Harbor Island is one example of the recent moves by West Coast port cities to open their waterfront areas for citizen use. The cities are trying to balance commercial needs in the port area with the public's right to recreation along the ocean.

ALONE WITH THE CLOUDS — All across America more and more people are becoming devotees of gliding or sky sailing. In slim, motorless planes they soar and drift for hours and hundreds of miles, using winds currents and temperatures to move their planes up and down. (Christian Science Monitor photo)

Sky Sailing: A New Sport Keeps Rising In Popularity

By PETER TONGE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

SALEM, N.H. — When the ridge of black clouds began to move in closer with an accompanying clap of thunder, the dozen or so sailplanes that had been circling the countryside here like so many bright dragonflies came gliding in on the grassy landing strip.

"It can get just a little rough up there if you hang around in a storm," commented one pilot dryly, as he anchored his craft to the earth. An hour later, the storm over, snorting little tow planes were hauling the graceful gliders back up into a clear blue sky.

Whatever the weather, it has been largely plain sailing for this unusual sport in the past decade and a half. In 1960, for example, the Soaring Society of America (SSA) had 3,200 members. Today that membership tops 12,000 — an almost fourfold increase. Then, too, there are an unknown number of nonmembers who soar.

The Europeans also are big on gliding. The Germans are probably the most gliding-conscious nation in the world, and the British are not far behind. On a per capita basis, "they probably have more people soaring than we do," says a spokesman for the SSA.

Everyone from garbage collector to tax collector, from laborer to lawyer, apparently is being drawn to the pastime.

Dr. Wehrner von Braun is one of the more famous of the devotees. The man who sent other men to the moon reached for his own piece of sky when he took soaring lessons last year at Harris Hill, Elmira, N.Y., considered the soaring capital of America. It's a great way to "retire" from flying, Dr. von Braun says.

Former U.S. astronaut Neil Armstrong, with soaring's gold badge (50 kilometers cross country, an altitude gain of 1,000 meters, and a flight of at least 5 hours duration), says it is the ideal way to relax. Several other astronauts go gliding, too. Their profession, it would seem, makes soaring a natural recreation for them. Similarly, many who pilot high-flying jets around the world are drawn to the sport. But so are others.

Barry Cullen of Nashua, N.H., has no such professional background. He was drawn to soaring when, as a boy, he watched with envy the way sea gulls, hawks, eagles, and other birds soared with barely a flap of the wing.

He read up on the subject, took lessons in Salem, and eventually built his own sailplane which he flies "whenever there's lift in the air."

The discovery that there are several forms of atmospheric lift is what has added so considerably to the adventure and scope of soaring.

At first, pilots limited themselves to "ridge soaring"; wind forced upward off a ridge allows glider pilots to gain altitude rather than merely glide back to earth.

Then enthusiasts discovered "thermals," updrafts of warm air rising from rocky outcroppings, buildings, even plowed fields. Pilots can soar upward in a thermal, glide to the next thermal, regain altitude, and so on. This way, flights of hundreds of miles became possible.

More recent still is "wave flying." Winds blowing over mountain ranges build up high, unseen, standing air waves in their lee. These sometimes build as high as 10 miles up.

Says Harner Selvidge, a past president of the Soaring Society of America: "Sailplanes have flown the Sierra wave to altitudes in excess of 46,000 feet. At such heights there is the wandering jet stream, with its fascinating challenge. The soaring pilot of today is a true brother of the man who first spread sail and braved the frantic deep."

In many ways, soaring the skies is similar to sailing the seas. In fact "sky sailing" is another term frequently used for the sport. But there is one major difference as the sky pilots are quick to point out:

"If you run out of wind on the water you simply relax on deck and wait; if you run out of lift in the air you're still moving and the only way is down.

Students Plan 3-Day Dive In Folsom Lake

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two Sacramento youths plan a three-day stay on the bottom of Folsom Lake near here — as soon as they get their telephone.

That's right, students Rick Ostton, 20, and Bob Fennessy, 21, want a regular publicly connected telephone in the 16-foot steel cylinder they are preparing for the experiment.

And they plan to give the number to everyone they know.

"We would like people to call us," said Ostton in a recent interview. "I want to make people more aware of oceanography. It has taken a back seat to space, and it is actually more important because it is the main part of our ecological system."

Ostton, Fennessy and Wayne Kenneweg, 19, an electronics specialist, built the "habitat," they call it, out of 3½-foot diameter shipping containers for jet airplane parts. There is room for one person to sleep and one to handle the controls.

Once settled about 20 feet under the surface, they will get air from pumps on shore.

In December, 1972, a similar project by Ostton, Fennessy and two other youths ended in tragedy when one team member, Stan Montgomery, drowned while scuba diving near the sunken craft.

This time "everyone's been a little bit more serious," said Ostton.

Ostton, a student of oceanographic technology at American River College, will get academic credit for the project. Fennessy and Kenneweg, who are studying communications at Cosumnes River College, won't — but all three expect the experience to advance their careers.

"We plan to come up with a lot of data. A lot will be the first ever compiled on the lake," Ostton said.

The data is to include oxygen levels, temperature readings, the classification of organisms, and some silt sampling.

They say the data should be helpful in managing the popular recreational lake.

They have scheduled the three-day stay to begin July 27 — if they get their telephone. If not, they will delay it until they do, said Ostton.

Island Casinos Closing Doors

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — The Dorado del Mar Hotel this month became the second luxury hotel in Puerto Rico to close its gambling casino because of financial losses.

The casino at the Puerto Rico Sheraton Hotel was closed several months ago.

While the casinos several years ago were the biggest profit makers in the hotels, several hotels have reported they have begun losing money on the operations. They have asked thegovernment to legalize slot machines to help them out of the financial crisis.

Dry Years Are Seen For West

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A National Weather Service official said this week the western half of the nation faces a severe drought in the next few years comparable to the dry spells of the mid 1950s.

Allen Pearson, director of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center, said nature's weather patterns indicate dry, hot periods for at least the next two years.

Pearson said the key indication is regional drought this summer in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona.

"Once weather patterns get set up, they tend to be repetitive," Pearson said. "If you have a large area of parched ground, it allows more heat to be trapped and it seems to make its own barrier for a wet weather pattern."

Pearson said rainfalls may be 10 to 20 per cent less than in recent years. But he added that temperatures won't be quite so hot as in the dust bowl days of the 1930s.

"There are some indications that pollution is causing temperatures to drop somewhat," Pearson said. "Flood control projects also make a difference, and in those days there weren't nearly the number of farm ponds and lakes we now have. Those, along with expanded irrigation, hold temperatures down slightly."

But farmers can expect rough times the next few seasons, he said, and it will be "kind of a worrisome period for Midwest agriculturalists."

Dry conditions will also force farmers to tap deeper wells for water, and that water will have a higher salt content, Pearson said. The result could be a slight deterioration in soil quality for crop production.

"Another thing to worry about is forest fires and grassland fires in the Far West," he said. "That's where the drought cycle gets vicious. If we have a drought, particularly in the mountains, and lightning starts a fire, it will denude the land and that land can't hold water from subsequent rains."

The big question in the drought picture is how far it will extend. Pearson said he did not know if the dryness would reach northern and eastern states.

But he said the Southeast and the Great Lakes area probably will follow the traditional pattern of adequate rains in times of widespread drought.

Petaluma River Dredging Operation Is Scheduled

The Petaluma River will be the scene of a major Army Corps of Engineers dredging project from October to December this year and from April to June of next year.

The first phase will include removal of about 350,000 cubic yards of silt from the river mouth to a point about five miles upstream, according to a corps spokesman.

The second phase will include removal of about 270,000 cubic yards from the upper reaches of the river channel upstream as far as the Washington Street bridge in Petaluma. The small boat turning basin just downstream of Petaluma will also be dredged.

The dredging is to maintain an eight-foot-deep channel from Petaluma to San Pablo Bay.

Channel width along the San Pablo mud flats will be 200 feet; between the flats and Western Avenue in Petaluma, 100 feet, and from Western Avenue to the Washington Street bridge area, 50 feet.

The downstream area of the river is normally dredged every 12 years, the corps said, while the upstream portion is done every four years.

Spoils from the upstream operation will be dumped on the river's north bank about two miles downstream from Petaluma, while the river mouth spoils are to be dropped into San Pablo Bay.

India, Argentina Could Develop Nuclear Arsenal

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence analysts believe India and Argentina are prime candidates to develop nuclear weapons.

Recent intelligence reports suggest the United States is watching both countries for signs of atomic weapon preparation.

Some senior U.S. military officers scoff at India's disclaimer of any intentions to produce nuclear weapons. India exploded its first nuclear device two months ago, saying it was designed for peaceful purposes such as earth-moving.

One intelligence report said more than 30 Indian officers at their country's National Defense College have urged that India develop nuclear weapons, arguing that national security requires it. The report also describes senior Indian military officers in agreement.

In this hemisphere, U.S. intelligence analysts said Argentina soon will be in position to develop nuclear weapons.

They noted that Argentina's first nuclear power reactor, built by a German firm, has gone into operation and that a second, bigger plant is under way.

Both plants could be adapted easily to produce plutonium, a key element to nuclear weapons, intelligence sources said. Argentina also has substantial uranium reserves to sustain production of plutonium, they added.

Mansion Bids To Be Taken During July

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state plans to advertise for bids for construction of the proposed $1.45 million governor's mansion in the last week in July.

State Architect John C. Worsley said this week the contractor should be picked early in September with ground-breaking expected in the middle of that month.

Worsley's statement came only three days after a superior court lawsuit was filed seeking to halt any further action on the six-bedroom home on a bluff overlooking the American River.

The suit charged the state failed to prepare a proper environmental impact report on the project. A hearing is set for July 24.

Worsley said, "On this job, I would expect a good interest. It's a fairly prestigious job. Of course, the real moment of truth is when you open the bids."

The white adobe' red-tile mansion will include a courtyard, swimming pool, sauna, tennis court, guest rooms, formal and family dining rooms, two rooms for employees and a study.

Summer School Classes Open

There are still openings for some classes in the final two-week session of the Mill Valley School District summer school, beginning July 29, district officials have announced.

Students entering grades four through eight in September can register at the Mill Valley Middle School between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. weekdays for openings in archery, electricity, physical education, guitar, math lab and reading lab.

Students entering grades one through three in the fall can register at Alto School from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. for openings in math lab, physical education, story time and arts and crafts.
